New York Markets

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, June 21—(AP)—Buying was concentrated in a few stocks, raising them as much as 2 points, while the market generally prolonged its draft today.

What some brokers described as "long pull" buying in anticipation of business improvement was translated into plus signs for a number of specialties.

American Can and Continental spurted more than a point as the canning stocks drew attention on favorable crop reports. Some merchandise shares were in demand, notably J. C. Penney, Celanese and Public Service of New Jersey were other outstanding gainers.

But minor losses were the rule for the usual speculative favorites, including U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Kennecott and U. S. Rubber, during the greater part of the leisurely dealings. Motor shares stiffened toward the last, erasing earlier losses in General Motors.

Trading ran at about the same pace as in the previous session, approximating 450,000 shares.

While traders in most fields were developments at home and abroad, a recovery trend again was traced in cordisposed to mark time awaiting for corporate bonds.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, June 21—(AP)—(USDA)—Only scattered sales were closed in the Boston wool market today and prices were inclined to be irregularly lower on active wools.

Good French combing length fine territory wools, in original bags, brought 65 cents, scoured basis. Twelve month Texas wools moved at 66 to 68 cents, scoured basis. Mixed grade lots of three-eighths and one quarter blood fleeces were being offered from bright and semi-bright areas at easing quotations. Some users were taking a few offerings, but their purchases were mostly small. Many users were inactive awaiting developments. Bids on fine territory wools, not needed immediately, were distinctly lower than recent and current selling prices on similar spot wools.
