

Junction City Council Has Hot Discussion

JUNCTION CITY, July 13.—(Special)—The city council met this week, Mayor Charles Nelson presiding. There was a heated discussion over the stockyards which are inside the city limits. Efforts are being made by property owners interested to have the yards removed to a point outside the city limits.

A proposition is before the council for the improvement of the sidewalks and curbing in the town whereby the property owners would furnish the material and the labor would be performed by the WPA. A committee is studying the matter.

Mary Lou Murphy, of Oregon City, is visiting with her sister, Margaret Kizer, in Coburg.

FIRE REPORTED

REDSPOUT, July 13.—(Special)—The home of Mrs. Sarah Hurd, of Gardiner, was completely destroyed by fire of unknown origin recently, and all surrounding structures were threatened. Shingles on the Albert Johns home next door were burned or ripped off and the Johns and Jusa woodsheds were completely destroyed. The Carl Pyritz house was also ignited, but was soon extinguished, and the Jewett school building was endangered until the wind changed. The Hurd house is the third in the same block and the fourth in two blocks to be destroyed by fire in a little over a year.

A miscellaneous shower for the Hurd family will be held at the Nels Sorens home soon, as Mrs. Hurd and her three children saved nothing but the clothes they were wearing.

Members of the State Highway Commission met with Gardiner residents recently to consider plans for widening the highway through the town of Gardiner. Plans are also being considered for moving the postoffice across the street from its present location due to the fact that all persons going to and from the postoffice are in constant danger from traffic on the Coast highway which is Gardiner's "Main street."

Flood control work will be undertaken by the crew of the U. S. Engineers survey boat "Gen. Chas. F. Powell," which docked in Gardiner recently.
