 "A NEWSPAPER IS A CITIZEN OF ITS COMMUNITY"

UNCLE SAM'S BUDGET TROUBLES

President Roosevelt's acceptance of Senator Pat Harrison's proposal for a joint Senate and House special committee to study the budget can mean one of two things. It can mean a serious and constructive study of actual requirements. It can mean an effort to heal party feuds and keep the budgeting under strict party control for the election year. It signifies in any event Democrat awareness of budget as a major issue.

The president has recommended a total budget of approximately $8,400,000,000, about $700,000,000 less than for the current year during which we added nearly $4,000,000,000 to the "red." We are perilously close to the 45 billion limit on national debt. The president's claim that Uncle Sam has $7,000,000,000 assets in sinking funds and government corporations does not greatly alter the picture because a great deal of the government's corporate business is pretty shaky.

Normal tax receipts may approach $5,500,000,000, if improved business brings the anticipated revenue increase of $882,000,000, but it will require new "war taxes" to finance the vast defense program to which the president has shifted the major portion of spending under his personal control. The president has not asked for additional "emergency powers" but his secretary of the navy, Mr. Edison, has proposed it and therein lies the makings of plenty trouble.

The importance of national defense cannot be denied, but the effort for permanent economic and social correctives cannot cease. The New Deal's many costly failures cannot be covered up with flagwaving, and as Senator Taft has pointed out the key to real economy lies in the elimination and simplification and rigid control of the endless bureaus the Roosevelt regime has created.

And as the saturnine Borah has remarked of the defense budget:

"There ought to be time to look those items over before Hitler gets here."

Mr. Roosevelt who has made a complete mess of federal finances has made the long delayed gesture of "economy" but with the other hand waving the flag he reaches for even greater personal power than he has had before. On the record, he shouldn't be trusted with it.

BONNEVILLE "CUTS" INTERESTING

To those who have been protesting Bonneville's political activities, the systematic and relentless invasion of Home Rule in the Northwest, the expansion of the "Master Plan" for electrical distribution into a master political organization, President Roosevelt's budgetary policy with regard to Bonneville is extremely interesting.

Administrator Raver whose specific assignment under the Bonneville Act is to wholesale power (and no political authority is expressed or implied) is offered only $6,000,000 of the $9,200,000 he requested for additional transmission lines and selling expenses. The army engineers who built the dam and are now building the generators to make the power are offered only $800,000 out of an estimated $7,000,000 to keep their end of the program rolling. (They have hold-over funds sufficient to complete the last four of the six first generators and a total output of around 300,000 kw.)

But—the administrative preference for the purely political end of the business is too obvious to miss comment. Perhaps congressmen who have signified a desire to comb the budget would be interested in some of the Bonneville's publicity bureau's handsome photographs of that $2,000,000 "line to Eugene" which STANDS IDLE because political engineering has run so far ahead of the engineering branch. Perhaps they would be interested in Bonneville's "administrative" payroll of 425 souls.

Nobody in the Northwest, least of all any of us in Eugene, would seek to prevent or to retard the orderly completion of the entire Bonneville project, but till Bonneville ceases meddling with Home Rule in the Northwest a "slow bell" is certainly needed.

A new horse-racing system in California makes winners of the last three horses to come in. Riders, who must swap mounts before the race begins, don't know whether they're coming or going.

Women are suddenly taking to aviation, and girls' schools are taking to flying courses. How far away the days of Elsie Dinsmore seem.

America has nothing to worry about so long as we have our traditions of democracy, and our rise and Shirley Temple.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JOHN KELLY

Register-Guard Washington Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8.—New bills to deal with Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, have been tossed into the legislative hopper; others are being written. Report of James M. Landis, Harvard law professor, giving Bridges a clean bill of health, instead of ending the controversy over the alien has but added fuel to the flames.

One proposal goes so far as to withdraw benefits from members of any union which is directed by an alien. The opinion of Landis (he is known as one of the "hot dog boys" because introduced to the new deal by Felix Frankfurter, now an associate justice of the supreme court), that an alien agitator, a man whose allegiance is to a foreign country, can create trouble in the United States with impunity, appears to be shared by few members of congress, and the further fact that the administration has condoned the activities of this alien will be the inspiration for many debates in the months to come.

Already the American Legion and the AFL are preparing to support such legislation as is deemed necessary to dispose of Bridges. There may be reprisal in other directions, such as transferring from Madison Perkins some of the few bureaus which she still retains as secretary of the department of labor. (Miss Perkins has disposed of her famed tractor hat, now wears one which is more becoming, but less distinctive.)

There are a series of measures which appear rather harsh on aliens, and they range from concentration camps for the undesirable undesirable (there are more than 600 Russians Joe Stalin refuses to take back, so they have no country and perform must remain here although the immigration bureau would like to ship them away), to expelling the alien unemployed.

Dean Landis dodged giving an opinion on whether the communist party is a subversive organization, but the Dies committee has submitted evidence to that effect.

President Roosevelt has given the nod of approval, which is the reason the U. S. Maritime Commission is permitting a number of American freighters, which operate between the Pacific Northwest and the Atlantic coast, to be sold to British interests. There appears to be little protest, although the country was indignant when one operating company attempted to transfer registry of eight vessels to the Panama flag.

Behind-the-scenes reason for selling the freighters: Mostly they are old, slow-going tubs, and the commission thinks (has possibly been assured), that the American owners will take the British gold and build new, swift units for the merchant marine. There is such a destruction of tonnage since the war began last September, that when the war terminates the new American freighters will have all the business they can handle.

No provision is being made, however, for the crews of the vessels when the British take them over.

Straws in the controversy over the trade treaties: A national lumber association favors the treaties. West Coast Lumber Association is "ferocious." Cattlemen object to canned beef coming in; the grocery trade is for it. Cane sugar growers in the south protest against treaty with Cuba; expansion of sugar belt—housewives are for cheap sugar, possible by imports. Wheat raisers are in disagreement, depending on the section they live in. One farm organization has denounced the treaties; another has given mild or qualified endorsement. Advocates of the treaties are ready to denounce the Hawley-Smoot tariff until the ears of Willis C. Hawley, in Salem, Ore., should burn. Cotton growers are "for"; the corn belt is "against."

It is an issue on which a democrat cannot be distinguished from a republican, and vice versa. The statesmen will vote according to how the pocketbook of their constituents is touched. It is a dry subject, yet affects every American who can be found by the census enumerators.

There are a dozen communities in Oregon and Washington who have been hoping for a new or an enlarged postoffice. The attitude of the president toward the budget has practically thrown a wet blanket on these hopes and even bills introduced authorizing such buildings mean nothing except that the congressman of the district in which the communities are located has an awareness of the election this year. New postoffices will be few and far between.

Reclamation Commissioner John C. Page is rather pessimistic about starting any new projects and his budget allowance has been substantially reduced. It will slow down land work which is part of the Grand Coulee project, for this project, originally, was not for generating cheap power, but to get water on 1,250,000 thirsty acres. Latterly Grand Coulee has been pictured chiefly as a source of energy, to be linked with Bonneville.

Most popular reading matter in the capital is the president's budget. Not a congressman but is studying how his district is hit—and most of them, outside of big cities, are.

AN EDITORIAL ON HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene and the Health Magazine
 Chiefly significant among symptoms associated with a deficiency of vitamin B is neuritis. There are all kinds of neuritis. Sometimes neuritis merely means localized pain due to disturbance in a nerve. Frequently the nerve which is at fault can be determined by a careful examination on the part of the physician.

In some instances the prescription of large doses of vitamin B has resulted in the disappearance of localized pain of such character. Sometimes there are infections of the human body which interfere with proper nutrition, and the patient develops a deficiency of vitamins. This is true in typhoid fever cases, where the requirement for vitamin B is increased because of the fever, lack of appetite or excessive diarrhea.

Unquestionably the patients of a previous generation who had typhoid fever developed neuritis which was ascribed to the typhoid, but which was apparently due to a lack of vitamin B in the diet.

There are some cases in which poisons are particularly detrimental to the nerve tissues. Sometimes vitamin B seems to bring about relief, but not always. Apparently this is concerned with the manner in which the poisons absorb vitamin B.

There are a number of causes of vitamin B deficiency which are associated with the general metabolism of the body. In many diseases, such as beriberi, pellagra, or diabetes, neuritis is a frequent complication. These diseases are associated with loss of appetite and failure of the bowels to absorb the necessary materials. In such cases, vitamin B is very helpful in controlling the symptoms.

Vitamin B is available in fresh foods, such as potatoes, native vegetables, pork and liver, eggs, milk, fruits and especially beans and whole grain cereals. The substitution of such materials for refined cereals and for dried foods will frequently bring about improvement. If vitamin B is needed, dried yeast, wheat germ, liver, kidney, and pure vitamin B added to the diet will help to take care of the deficiency.

Special attention must always be given to the diet of people who have debilitating diseases of the types that have been mentioned; and especially to people with fever, excessive action of the thyroid gland, or severe gastro-intestinal diseases. The amount to be given must be determined by a physician who has studied carefully not only the patient but also the nature of the case.
