

Diamond "A" Beaten In State Softball

Third, Schlafle scoring on the play. Peer fanned and Miller grounded to first to retire the side.

With two away in the second inning, a bad throw by Ed Russell to first gave the winners life. Consecutive singles by Schlafle and Stremick and an error by Johnny Dain at second accounted for three runs—none of which were earned. The Engineers scored again in the fourth when Farris was safe on Russell's error and scored on Stremick's double.

Trailing 5-0, Verne Adams took the mound for Eugene at the start of the fifth. He gave up two hits and a walk which Bonneville combined with two more Eugene errors for their final two counters—both unearned. Adams hurled no-no ball the remaining two innings, but it was too late for a winning mound performance.

Wee Gals Take Top Swimming Spots

SEATTLE, Aug. 21.—(AP)—One of America's foremost swimming coaches looked at the won-and-lost ledger today and said he guessed the championship era of the powerful Amazons had passed.

The wee gals, said Coach Ray Daughters, whose pupils have won high onto their weights in championship trophies, have pulled to the front with technique and timing.

It was a sad observation for Daughters to make after watching that trim 15-year-old phenom, Mary Ryan of Louisville, Ky., outclass the field in the National A. A. U. Women's championships at Portland.

Daughters has been a developer of the power swimmers. There were no petite lines about the famed Helene Madison, a powerful 150-pounder whom Daughters tutored to 16 world championships, Nor Olive McKean, the tall 140-pound flash who won two national championships. And the Washington Athletic club's championship relay quartet had pounds to spare.

"There's a new type of swimming," Daughters commented. "Power has taken second place. The big, strong girls like Helene have been supplanted by girls like this little Ryan miss. Technique, stamina and perfect rhythm, timing and judging of pace have made the Louisville lady the greatest swimmer of the decade. Nearly all of the successful competitors now are small of stature."

European War Affects Trading In Grain

By Giles Findley
 CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP)—How has the European war affected the American grain trades?

For weeks trading pits of the futures exchanges has been practically idle and now supplies are piling up and owners are frantically searching for storage space.

Last year there were approximately 85,000,000 bushels of old crop wheat carried over, the largest stock since 1933.

When the 1940 wheat crop started rolling to market, it found many elevators filled almost to capacity. Wheat therefore has backed up into country elevators and old freight cars.

Adding to the woes of storage elevators in northwestern states is the huge Canadian surplus which is overflowing into storage bins on this side of the border.

Chicago theoretically has a storage capacity of 53,569,000 bushels, but approximately 16,000,000 bushels of this space is in elevators which are part of feed mills, malt houses, and transfer houses. This leaves about 37,000,000 bushels of space for commercial grain storage. At the start of the harvest season there were already 24,000,000 bushels on hand with more coming all the time.

Easterners say Canadian wheat will roll into the northwest in volume for storage at the head of the lakes, eastern ports and in country elevators.

The official report this week showed 284,000,000 bushels of United States grown wheat carried over at the start of the new crop year, July 1. This was 30,000,000 bushels more than the preceding year.

The United States and Canada thus started the season with approximately 1,700,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand, roughly one third of the supplies in the entire world—and where's the market?

European countries, conquered in military operations in the last year, are reported short of wheat and others are shut off from American supplies by the British blockade.

Argentine exports were halted this week because supplies were running short, estimated today at 15,859,000 bushels whereas a year ago there were 138,042,000 bushels available for export.

This, trade authorities said, left Europe with a potential demand for 400,000,000 bushels of wheat—obtainable only on the North American continent, but which is shut off except for the amounts that Great Britain purchases for domestic needs. All this, of course, comes from Canada's huge stocks under the "buy empire" trade treaties.
