

Hubert Wilkins To Speak in City Wednesday Night

Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins, K. B., famed explorer and scientist, will speak at the University of Oregon on Wednesday, October 23 on "Next Steps Toward Civilization."

Since 1921, when he was second in command on the British Imperial Antarctic expedition, Sir Hubert has been exploring the Arctic and Antarctic regions. Between 1926 and 1928, he went on two arctic expeditions for the Detroit News. On the second of these he flew from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen, a distance of 2,500 miles over the Arctic sea to discover whether islands, which might serve as meteorological bases, existed in the area between Alaska and the North Pole.

Sir Hubert flew the first airplane in the Antarctic in 1928. He explored more than 1500 miles of coast line and several islands in the land around the South Pole.

One of his more recent exploits was his search in 1937 for the lost Russian flyers who had attempted to cross from Moscow to Fairbanks, Alaska by way of the North Pole.

Sir Hubert's present interest is the possibility of forecasting the weather years ahead by means of coordinating information gathered around the polar regions and the weather prediction of the rest of the world.

WAKE UP AMERICA Mondays—9:30 p. m.

HIGHLY STRATEGIC IS Pacific Coast defense by air, rail and highway is Eugene as this drawing shows. Situated at the crossroads where the rail and highway communications come through the mountains between the Northwest and San Francisco Eugene is a control point in all Pacific Coast defense transport with its big railway yards and its many major highways. This may be an important part of the proposal to Major General H. H. Arnold from the city of Eugene offering the contemplated Eugene airport as an army air base. The Columbia river-Puget Sound area, generally considered as a "danger spot" in case of invasion is specially marked in reference to Eugene and the transport situation. Because of remoteness from the big population centers of the East, defense plans call for extreme MOBILITY and POWER in Pacific Coast defense with a dispersion of well chosen bases for all kinds of air craft, heavy bombers inland at Salt Lake, Spokane, Boise, the faster and lighter craft nearer the coast.

Gooey Goings-on Reveal Screwy News of Americans

By GLADWIN HILL
NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Men have sold ice boxes to Eskimos, judges have fined themselves and trucks have collided with their own rear ends, but what ought to stand for some time as the wackiest item on record cropped up in the cavalcade of cockeyed occurrences last week.

Authorities in Brownsville, Tex., discovered a man inexplicably swimming in the Rio Grande river pushing in front of him a washtub containing four parrots.

Tie that one if you can.

If you can't here are some comparable currioditties to sharpen up on—

A Greenville, S. C., man applying for a marriage license, couldn't remember the girl's name . . .

Kankakee, Ill., woman received a letter mailed five years ago 53 miles away . . . and at Anson, Tex., a woman lassoed a hawk . . .

While a Spokane, Wash., cop was hunting for a stolen car, his own car was stolen . . . and a Portland, Ore., police officer, after a very unsatisfactory radio conversation with cruising car No. 11, discovered he was talking to cruising car No. 11 in Fort Worth, Tex.

A possum hound in Elberton, Ga., with a broken leg was taken on a hunt in a wheel barrow, and freed four possums without even standing up . . . the East Greenbush, N. Y., education board, after pondering hundreds of suggestions for a name for a school, finally decided on: "East Greenbush Central School."

A 74-year-old Jefferson, Va., man married a 16-year-old girl . . . and the first pair of horn-rimmed glasses Harold Lloyd wore in the movies in 1916 were mysteriously mailed back to him from Lisbon, Portugal.

Draft doings . . . the first man in line for registration in Chicago was George Washington . . . an 86-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., man tried to register on the ground he had been too young for the Civil war and too old for all the wars since . . . and in Marietta, Ohio, a 31-year-old woman insisted on registering.

In Elgin, Ill., a bull charged into a windmill—and knocked it down . . . an eagle dove-bombed an automobile in Albuquerque, N. M. . . . and in Oakland, Calif., a steamroller collided with a locomotive.

And government records disclosed that areas in five states, because of hazy treaties, were not part of the United States.

U. S. Embassy Glass Shattered by German Bombs Dropped in London

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Windows were smashed in the United States' big new embassy building on Grosvenor Square in a recent nazi air raid, but the red brick, white-trimmed colonial structure was not badly damaged.

No member of the staff was injured.

Permission was given today by British censors to tell about it.

A German plane laid a stick of bombs across the big square in London's fashionable West End. One demolished a house, damaged two others across the square and blew in a few windows of the embassy.

Another bomb failed to explode immediately, but dug itself a deep pit about 50 feet from the front door. It went off a few hours later, blasted more windows and

FOODS HELD NO ENJOYMENT IN HER CONDITION

Mrs. Kime Suffered Terribly After Every Meal She Ate: Wanted A Medicine To Fit Her Case So Badly . . . Found It In The KruGen Capsules

"I had tried many different kinds of medicines but my choice of them all is KruGen," said Mrs. Maud Kime, a highly respected lady of East Bellevue St., Salem, (near Eugene, Oregon) in a recent statement reaching the Hiron's Everybody's Drug Store, 906 Wilamette St., this city.

"Faulty elimination first started my health problems and then they seemed to continually grow worse. My digestion became upset and there were so many foods that I did not dare eat at all. Often the suffering from gas and bloating after my meals was more than I felt I could endure. I could not eat any fruit or berries either and tea or coffee would upset me terribly. I had a dreadful sour stomach most of the time. Really foods held no enjoyment for me for to eat meant suffering. I was wondering just when, if ever, I would locate the medicine to help me when I began the use of KruGen.

"Little did I expect to receive such pleasant results so quickly as the KruGen capsules gave me," continued Mrs. Kime. "Proper elimination soon had me on the mend until today I can eat and enjoy my meals without those distressing effects afterwards. I have even eaten strawberries, something I had dared not touch for years before. It is such a pleasure to me to be able to recommend to others a medicine that I know gives such satisfactory results. It is truly wonderful what a medicine can do when it fits your case."

KruGen is sold by Hiron's Everybody's Drug Store, 906 Wilamette St., this city, and by the leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

cluded the United States senate resolution in 1928 against breaking the precedence.

He commented that many fine statesmen of the democratic party and many of the new deal who started out with President Roosevelt have deserted him, and said that even considering President Roosevelt's good intentions the advisory group around him leads one to believe that "machines" like those of Nash and Kelly, Hague and similar ones would get in control of the national government the way they now control some of the large cities.

Mr. Reid gave most of his time on the third term issue. In discussing defense, he declared Willkie a very capable person to carry on the program, and reminded his listeners that large sums of money allowed for defense purposes in this administration had not resulted in the defense protection needed.

The speaker said it was granted notable advances had been made under this administration, but that much of this social legislation could be improved upon and carried forward under another administration, and for the reasons listed above he again advocated that a change be made to assure that our form of government be maintained.

W. J. Miesler was announced a new member of the club. Guests included Claude Van Wyck and Harry L. Chase. Substance From Nose Held Possible Key to 'Flu Cure

By RENNIE TAYLOR
PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A discovery by three Australian researchers that the human nose secretes a substance which will make certain disease viruses harmless may open the way to effective medical control of influenza, says Dr. W. H. Manwaring, of Stanford university.

About a year ago, F. M. Burnet, Dora Lush and A. V. Jackson of Melbourne, found that a chemically purified secretion of the normal human nose inactivated every kind of influenza obtainable there for testing.

The substance also demonstrated a limited ability to kill the viruses of parrot fever, infantile paralysis and a type found in a certain kind of tumor.

The researchers concluded that the purified substance contained an enzyme which changed the chemical composition of the viruses and thus took away their disease-producing powers.
