READ, AND TAKE HEART!

So everybody is selfish, eh? Everybody is out to get all he can out of the national defense situation? No, not everybody.

Perhaps you haven't read about the instrument-builders of the Long Island Plant of the Sperry Corporation. These are highly skilled men—men whom it would be difficult, perhaps impossible, to replace. The usual means of holding down hours, that is, hiring more men, doesn't work in their case. There just aren't any more men available with the proper skill in their delicate work on precision instruments. So 200 of them have been working 60 hours a week, and 1300 more face an increase from 40 to 60 hours.

Are they sore about it? No. Frank Craig, president of the United Instrument Workers, their C. I. O. union, says the workers are 100 per cent behind the defense effort. He is cooperating in a movement to give up their annual two-week vacation and think 85 per cent of the men will follow his own lead in doing so.

True, these men are being, and will be, well paid for their extra work. But money cannot compensate them entirely. For three months this winter these men worked from 8:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. three days a week and from 8:30 to 5:30 the other three. They arrived home every night in such a state of exhaustion that they had to tumble directly into bed.

It is doubtful whether the highest production is obtained with such hours, except in cases like this one, where no more trained workers are ready to step to the benches.

Money can't pay for effort like this. The pay comes in satisfaction in having done what was right; in having contributed very definitely and at some sacrifice to the defense of our country.

Similarly, another story comes to mind. Carl G. Swedilius, a blue-eyed Swede with a fine eye for a gun, bought a New Haven vacant lot. In 90 days he had built a 15-acre factory, equipped it with second-hand machinery he picked up here and there all over the country and rebuilt, gathered up a lot of former employes of World War days, and is now turning out 50-caliber machine guns in thousand lots.

Army officers called it a miracle, but Swedilius did it.

He, too, one presumes, will make money out of his venture. But there is a satisfaction in it far beyond that—he has taken his abilities and given them freely to defense.

There is talk of sacrifice. Too many have not yet caught the "all-out" spirit. But when you think of that too often, think of the instrument-makers bending over their benches for 60 hours a week and giving up their vacations; think of Gus Swedilius turning out machine guns on junk lathes in a plant which 90 days before was a cemetery for rusting jalopies.

SWORDS INTO—BOMBS

The ancient vision of a people beating their swords into plowshares was given a flicker of new life the other day by news that in Britain 10,000 swords, no longer of military value, are to be melted up. Not into plowshares, however, but into newer and deadlier forms of munitions.

The sword no longer kills with efficiency. Therefore, the luxury of sporting them, and the fine steel they contain, is no longer to be indulged in. The swords, many of World War vintage, are to be called in and melted down for airplane motors or whatever a modern age of modern war decides is most deadly. The world looks wistfully ahead to a day when the peoples shall convert their tanks into tractors, and their bombers into transport planes.

PUBLIC AUTHORITY MUST CONTROL

There is only one authority in the United States which must be allowed to maintain order in public assemblies—that is, the regularly constituted public authority.

People who attend meetings with the obvious purpose of disrupting them must be suppressed, not by members of the organization holding the meeting, but by police or other public authority. For if a meeting organizes its own bouncers to preserve its own order, then they are only embryo storm troopers.

Freedom of speech does not include organized disruption and hoodlumism at meetings. There have been incidents in which those who disagree with the point of view they knew would be expressed at a meeting attended that meeting, not to dissent in orderly manner, but to disrupt and break up the meeting. That sort of hooliganism has no place in America.

EAGLE'S EGGS HATCHING

The American Eagle is hatching warriors of the air at a rapid rate these days. The other day at Maxwell Field, Alabama, 147 bronzed flying cadets from 31 states pinned on their wings, making 554 pilots turned out at that center since Feb. 7.

Thirty weeks ago, these 147 young men wouldn't have known how to crawl into a cockpit. When those wings were pinned on, each of them had flown more than 26,300 miles, or 1300 miles more than the distance around the world at the equator. Together, they had flown 3,866,100 miles—without a fatality.

More than 1800 young men are now in that process of highly practical training. The nest of the eagle is full of fledglings. It is rapidly hatching a mighty brood.

Friendly tip to prospective June brides: dishes have to be washed about 1000 times a year.

You can take a tip from even the lowly insect. It has a habit of getting at the root of things.

Spring is definitely here when a clerk looks up as if he wonders who let a customer in.

Borrowing is very bad for some people. It makes them lose their memory.

Maybe the girl who doesn't use rouge thinks discretion is the better part of pallor.

A Minnesota farmer inherited a fortune. Now he'll be able to farm a few years more.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JOHN W. KELLY
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Neither workmen nor employers are anxious to rush a national defense or aid to Britain contract when they have no assurances that another contract will be given. This is an explanation given by John Biggers as a reason why production is so far behind schedule. But it does not explain why the administration is so slow in giving contracts. At this time scarcely 50 percent of the money voted to carry on the defense program has been contracted by either army or navy. It would appear that there has been more talk than production going on.

When Oregon's Brigadier General George A. White leads his 41st division into war maneuvers, the preliminary to the greatest peace maneuver ever held in this country, troops will be using phony weapons. Of only one article will the soldiers have sufficient—the rifle. There is a great shortage of anti-tank guns, anti-aircraft guns, field artillery 105s and 155s, motorcycles and larger trucks. There are only a handful of medium tanks, but more are being produced monthly. And the less said about combat planes the better, for two-thirds of the production is flying to England.

THIS same uncertainty as to additional contracts is cited by major contractors as reluctant to farm out part of an order to subcontractors. There are, of course, a few factories working 24 hours a day and seven days a week, but these are the exception, not the rule. By putting on a third shift production is expedited and the order filled at an earlier date, and this means to the contractor an empty plant and to the workmen idleness again. In a short time OPM will do more than talk; it will let contracts which can be carried on when current orders are filled.

Three shipyards on Columbia river and at Coos bay have, in addition to current orders, been signed for more ships when their present contracts are completed—and not even the keels have been laid for the first vessels. This policy of duplicating orders has not been generally observed, but the high command is catching on; it recognizes that only by dangling additional orders in the face of a contractor will production be rushed and part of the work be sublet.

WHEN Senator Homer T. Bone, his colleague Senator Mon C. Wallgren and house members from Washington state went to Philadelphia last month and saw the U. S. S. Washington commissioned, they looked over a battleship that cost between $70,000,000 and $118,000,000, depending on what is included. It bristles with heavy guns, and whenever a 14-inch gun is fired it represents the price of a Ford super deluxe sedan. At the moment there are 124 such guns in the one-ocean navy, which will probably be doubled with a two-ocean navy. A single shot from all of these 124 weapons represents $11,600. But the navy has some 16-inch guns, and these take $1,600 from the taxpayer each time one is discharged.

Just to keep the record straight, because there has been so much confusion about airships: A four-engine bomber costs practically $500,000 equipped with armament. The government can buy 140 of these bombers for the minimum cost of the U. S. S. Washington, and a single bomber from a bomber can put the battleship out of commission, if not send it to the bottom. Right now the war department is arranging for delivery of 500 bombers each month, or 6,000 a year. These are in addition to the fighting and the training planes.

FOR light tanks it costs the army $27,000 each. A medium tank rings up the cash register for $67,000 while a heavy tank costs $114,000, without including the guns. The light tanks (13 ton babies) are being produced at the rate of four a day, or 150 a month. Medium tanks, weighing 26 tons, will not be produced in quantity until September or October. Designs for these tanks had to be revised, based on the experience of the panzer brigades in France. The medium tanks would have trouble with many of the bridges on the Oregon highway system and there is probably not a bridge that can take the heavy tank and survive. Scout cars, the small combat vehicles, are coming off the assembly line at almost 400 a month and sometime in August the army will have a fair supply.

AFTER appropriating billions of dollars, congress had to be fought by the Oregon senators to obtain $2,400 for the experiment station in Sherman county; not the price of two blasts from a navy gun nor the salary of a third-class press agent in the new deal set-up. Congress becomes economical only when the sum requested is microscopic. . . . Astoria is in line for federal assistance to provide schools for children of families moving into that area in connection with Tongue Point naval base and army activities at Fort Stevens.
