

With Praises Report, Route F

What governmental agency your airport is important that it be built and quickly," Griffith, state WPA director, said at the chamber of commerce luncheon Friday.

He also congratulated Lane county and the chamber of commerce for insisting that work on the route be continued.

From these two local reports Mr. Griffith's principal was that in the interests of national defense all idle men are put to work.

He is threatened by Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia," Griffith said, "and there are no idle men in those countries. The employables in those countries are not five, not six, but eight weeks and at a minimum of eight hours per day.

Various groups now place their hands on the job in this country between 7,000,000 and 9,000,000 and declare that defense work should take care of about 10,000 more of these. However, accepting the most optimistic estimate that there will be only 10,000 unemployed by June, the defense industries have not been able to absorb the are faced by a reality and a theory," Mr. Griffith explained. "We are virtually at war. The house is on fire and the hand is on the pump. The citizen is in a state of panic. Communism and anarchy are the bastards of unemployment. Put them to work and the threat within will vanish; put all to work and the threat from without will be met and overcome.

the emergency of war if defense industry under private control does not absorb the millions unemployed, should the federal government put them to work by means such as the WPA?"

other important angles for consideration are that private industry does not want men 40 years over, thus seldom touching WPA rolls where the average is 45. The second angle is the wage condition which may find hundreds of men thrown out of work.

Enforcement Ready For New Speed Law

On Saturday, June 14, Oregon's new basic speed law goes into effect and Eugene's police department will begin strict enforcement of the provisions, according to Chief C. F. Bergman.

Principal change over the law previously in effect which gave certain designated speeds for each district is that any excess of these speeds now become prima facie evidence of the violation of the basic rule. In other words it is up to the driver and not the police officer to prove that he was not driving recklessly at the time. All that the officer must do is to prove to the satisfaction of a court that the motorist was speeding.

The designated speeds which will be enforced under the law are:

(1) 20 miles per hour—when passing a school building or grounds during opening or closing

Klamath Crash Death Toll Rises To Three

KLAMATH FALLS, June 13.—(AP)—The death toll of a head-on crash at Barclay Springs yesterday had jumped to three this morning with the deaths of John Barlow, 66, and Forrest Kegley, 53, during the night.

Barlow, switchman for the Union Pacific at Portland, was the father of Lee Barlow, and they, along with Robert Dombroff of Seahurst, Wash., and Marie McFarland of Portland were passengers in the car in which Maurice "Blackie" Cannalongo, the driver, was instantly killed. The conditions of Lee Barlow and Dom-

Cedar Marker Pays Tribute To Trail Blazer Felix Scott

A tribute to Oregon pioneer trail blazers in the form of a large, carved cedar marker for the Scott trail on the McKenzie is now under preparation and will soon be dedicated by the Obsidians with appropriate ceremonies, according to Art Clough, under whose direction the panel is being made.

The marker, the central panel of which has just been completed, is being sponsored jointly by the Obsidians and the Willamette Forest service and was designed and made by students in design classes at the Eugene Vocational school as an NYA project.

The central panel is 45 inches wide by 10 feet three inches high and is nearly four inches thick. Made from "Alaska" cedar from the Santiam high country, the panel shows in carving the first crossing of the McKenzie pass by Felix Scott in 1862, a pull which required 26 yoke of oxen to pull the eight wagons across. mour's and Sigwart Electric, as well as second-floor occupants of the building, were moving out records and belongings. The people occupying the residence at 41 Tenth avenue west were moving household belongings into the street.

The most severe part of the fire was apparently in the rear of the building where firemen played a steady stream on the basement and first-floor windows—expecting "hell to pay" when the blaze eventually came to a "head." The firemen were adding another line, the sixth, in an effort to control the fire at press time. The last line was carried to the roof of the building.

finishing the alleys were on hand, making the blaze a continual danger to the fire-fighters and the occupants of the building. The supply of materials was much less than at later date, however, when the alleys are usually completely refinished.

Girls Escape

The Newberry store was quickly filled with smoke and the sales girls scooted out of the rear entrance, coughing and choking from smoke—tears streaming from their eyes, either from the smoke or from frantic excitement.

Firemen were able to reach the origin of the blaze only through a small three-foot staircase in the front and an equally small rear entrance.

One fireman, Carl Cuddebeck, was overcome with smoke after battling the smoke and elusive blaze in the basement bowling alley. Neighboring business establishments, Everybody's Drugs, Sey-
