

Out of State Students Attend U-O Summer Session

Students from all parts of Oregon and as from a number of other states, will be on the University of Oregon campus Monday for the thirty-six-week summer session. President Donald M. Erb said that extra fees are charged for out-of-state residents the session is expected to draw a large number of students who wish to pursue a few vocational pursuits during the summer. Classes open Tuesday, June 25, and continue until July 25. The session is equivalent in character, credit value to the regular academic session. A student normally carries the amount necessary to earn nine credits, which averages at this time about 15 hours of class work per week.

Undergraduate courses will be in abundance, but many other courses are open to graduate students only, and many other advanced courses are so arranged so that they may be taken for graduate credit. In some departments the summer courses are arranged in sequences of two or three years, thus enabling the student to meet the requirements for the master's degree by attendance at several sessions.

A host of regular faculty members, as well as outstanding professors and instructors from other schools, will make up the staff. Visiting professors include C. H. Woodruff, supervisor of secondary education, Long Beach public schools; Dr. Hugh Miller, professor of philosophy, University of California at Los Angeles; Dr.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE HISTORIC DESIGNS Old Glory has worn since its birth June 14, 1777, and the 49-star emblem suggested as our future flag if Hawaii becomes a state. Flag with 15 stars and 15 stripes (1795-1818) was inspiration for Francis Scott Key's "Star Spangled Banner."

James H. Lambert, assistant professor of industrial education, University of Illinois; and Joseph D. Coppock, lecturer in economics, University of California.

Upon conclusion of the summer session, students may continue their work on the campus by attending the post session, which offers six hours of credit, from July 28 to August 22.
