Wagner Tangles With Clingman

Ernie Piluso And Jack Lipscomb In Opener

PLATE PROGRAM
Main Event—Ernie Piluso vs. Jack Lipscomb.
Final—Otis Clingman vs. George Wagner.
Jack Kiser vs. Walter Achiu.
Elliott Owen.

Appearance of five scientific wrestling on a six-man team is unheard of, but a combination of cleanies appearing on Promoter Herb Owen's at the fairgrounds arena today night pack more wallop than a coral pack-jammed mule.

Ernie Piluso, George Wagner, Clingman, Walter Achiu, Jack Kiser, all cleanies, but far and away the general run of or-matmen who depend on a combination of slugs to win.

Only "Outcast" will be Jack Kiser, the villainous Indianan, as the soon gouge out an enemy's eye as sit down to a plain-steak dinner. Lipscomb and Piluso in the scheduled main event.

The Hoosier, who has bargained for a busy night, what with the Portland "flying trapeze" hold not the most colorful, but one of the most effective in the business, doubt no doubt will attempt Piluso's dynamic style of wrestling with a varied fistic attack.

Clingman, who meets George Wagner in the semi-final, finally decided to campaign for a coast championship after a months retirement. Wagner, anxious to get another shot at the coast belt.

workmen and each have spectacular pet holds—Clingman his Sonenberg, an occasional Australian piledriver; Wagner his double holding drop kick.

The usual part of Thursday's card is that the reigning king of Pacific coast light-heavyweights is appearing on the opening bout, Jack Kiser, who has disposed of all opponents in the past six weeks since lifting the crown from Billy McEun, takes on Walter Tinkit Achiu in the 30-minute preliminary.

The match is of main-event caliber in everything but time limit. Kiser, who depends mostly on speed and his brilliant new hold—"skin-the-cat"—will be meeting a formidable foe, a Chinese jiu-jitsu artist capable of stopping his long string of triumphs.

Reserved seat tickets are on sale at the Club cigar store. The opener is scheduled to get under way promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

Stars To Pass Against Bears

Pro Champs Boast Tough Line Defense

By IRVIN LISAGOR
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(U.P.)—Football's College All-Stars, seeking the path of easiest resistance against the Chicago Bears' famed forward wall, prepared to use a forward pass attack in Soldier's Field Thursday night.

A crowd of 33,000 persons is expected to watch the annual contest between hand-picked collegians and the world's professional champions.

Head coach Carl Snively, Cornell's exponent of deft offense, stressed the passing attack as he sent his charges through a final drill. He admitted it would be folly to hammer too long at a line embracing a ton and a half of football's toughest defensesmen.

Not that the All-Stars lack balance. With runners like Michigan's Tom Harmon, Minnesota's George Franke, Stanford's Norm Standlee and U. C. L. A.'s Jackie Robinson, their ground game under normal conditions would function well, but the Bears just don't provide normal conditions. Despite Coach George Halas' baleful appraisal of his champions, they are the same boys who rolled up a 73-0 triumph over Washington in the professional playoff last year, and they still pack that terrible "T" formation.

The pros' fears that Sid Luckman, the Bears' signal-caller had damaged an ankle too seriously to play were dispelled when Luckman proclaimed himself ready to go.

If the passing will penetrate the professional fortress, the collegians may get the job done, for they boast Missouri's Paul Christman, Charley O'Rourke of Boston College and Southern Methodist's Ray Mallouf. In Dave Rankin, the All-Star captain from Indiana, they have one of the nation's best receivers.

The experts who know professional football say if the Bears cut loose they'll make a sham out of a spectacle. But Halas has no such fancy, complaining that the odds-makers price of 3½ to 1 for his club are out of line.

Some of the Bears' standouts for next season will be in the All-Star lineup, including Standlee and possibly Harmon.
