Cottage Grove Beats Eugene 26-24 to Retain District Lea[d]

HIGH CLIMBER

By DICK STRITE

It all depends on what you want in a basketball referee—a fancy tooter who puts on a fine show, or a fellow who depends on 10 hoopsters to give the feature performance.

Our classification of a good basketball official is one who keeps the contest moving at as fast a pace as possible, prevents the game from turning into a brawl and is still conspicuous by his absence from "front center."

We feel sure those are the qualities the coaches and athletic managers look for in collegiate or "amateur" basketball. That, however, may not be the requisite of a spectator-pleasing whistle-tooter. And no doubt Ned Irish, the Madison Square Garden hoop promoter, and others who book basketball as a business look for the unusual in a referee.

You'll say the ideal official is one who works a creditable game and still puts on flares. All of which boils down to the point—is basketball a five-man game of a 5-5-1 competition, with the two fives and the one competing for the spotlight.

The answer was, in our opinion, clearly demonstrated in the last two Oregon basketball series here.

Emil Piluso, one of the first show-boats and the premier Barrymore of the maple boards, was one of the two referees in the initial Oregon-WSC series. The much-mustachoed Portland Italian gained fame in the northern division for his colorful antics while vying with the hoopsters for spectator notice. Piluso was one of those unusual fellows who knows the game of basketball inside out, can put Swiss bell-ringers to shame with his whistle and still do a fine officiating job.

But suddenly Piluso has gone "back stage," and the really tough Webfoot-Cougar series was handled admirably well with Piluso doing one of his best jobs in recent years. The games were in marked contrast to the Oregon-Washington series in which Frank Heniges used every method known to "steal the show."

The Webfoot-Huskes series was miserably worked and we feel certain that Heniges, who has been Piluso's whistle-tooting stooge for several seasons, was responsible. Officiating and showmanship don't mix on the Pacific northwest maple courts regardless of the likes and displeasures of Gotham hoop fans.

We believe fans in this neck of the woods are more appreciative of good refereeing because they have been better educated to the game and are more ardent students of the maple court than the general run of hoop followers.

Carl Lenchitsky and Bobby Leute, who worked with Piluso and Heniges, are not mentioned in this discussion because they are just breaking into the "big time."

No doubt there is a big demand for foul-charging courtmen. And if you're interested in the loudest and most articulate casaba thespian in New York you might find Lewis B. Funke's story about Patrick Aloysius Kennedy of Hoboken, N. J., an interesting one.

The story appears in the current edition of the Saturday Evening Post. The junior high school physical education teacher averages about 125 games a season, travels some 25,000 miles and loses 15 pounds. Having a yen to become another Bill Klem, the 34-year-old Irishman umpires baseball in the Inter-State league.

Burton Benjamin, the NEA sports writer, gives an excellent description of Kennedy's court conduct. "His punch line—it never fails to bring down the house—occurs whenever an opponent in the pivot hips his guard out of position. There are four or five shrill whistle blasts. Immediately Kennedy moves front and center. He assumes a pontifical expression—a sort of "Upchurch, how could you?" demeanor. His dramatic pace is superb. He waits until the house is quiet and then, in stentorian tones which can be heard in Brooklyn, gives:

"'Numbah five—you're giving him this' . . . and Pat promptly goes into an illustrative hula. Garden officials worry lest a member of the A. Corio-M. Hart union picket the establishment. Kennedy is not a union man in the strip league."

They say during the Temple-West Virginia game in Philadelphia Pat blew so hard he blew the side of his whistle from its moorings. According to Funke, Pat said, "Lucky for me my motions automatically stopped play." Benjamin says Kennedy is so bulky of voice that on one occasion four bats, which had hidden in the Garden loft during the John W. Davis nominating convention in 1924, were routed into the open.

In some 17 years of whistle tooting, Kennedy is credited with officiating more than 2000 games and during the height of the season works every night and twice on Sundays (professional ball).

So, it might be good advice for our up-and-coming basketball referees who have a yearning for grease paint to take a shot at the Metropolitan circuit.

DERRINGER SHOOTS 72

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Paul Derringer, Cincinnati Reds pitcher, rounded the Miami Country club course with a par 72 yesterday in a practice game for the professional baseball players' golf tournament Feb. 11-13.

Zone Bottles Axemen Offense

DISTRICT 6	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Op.
Cottage Grove	2	0	1.000	91	75
Springfield	1	1	.500	68	79
Eugene	0	1	.000	24	26
Junction City	0	1	.000	26	27
University	0	1	.000	41	43

Cottage Grove's high school hoopsters had everything, or nearly everything against them Tuesday night on the Eugene high court—except the final score. The 26-to-24 victory for Coach Tom Preece's Lions came the hard way.

In the first place the Lions' two straight victories in District 6 play were considered just one of those things. In the second place the visitors were meeting a school that had won the district title in stride last year, and a team that leads the tough No-Name league with three consecutive victories. In the third place a Cottage Grove eligibility "wrinkle" cost the Lions the use of their veteran high-scoring center, Paul "Junior" Langston.

As if those handicaps weren't enough, "Battlin' Tom" Jones of the Grovers—who was the real sparkplug of the victory—took the opening tipoff and scored two points for his rivals. But those two points gave Eugene its only lead of the game and the Lions carried on with a hard-fought triumph that gave them a commanding game and a half lead in the District 6 standings.

34 Fouls in 32 Minutes

But there was no Salem and state tournament talk around the southern union high school today, like the championship gossip circulated through the local westside school before Tuesday night. The backers of the Lions know the coming campaign will be a tough one with all four rivals still definitely in the race for the district title and the state tournament berth that goes with the championship. Fritz Kramer's Axemen will be tougher opponents from here on in.

Tuesday's game was not a pretty hoop exhibition to watch, unless it was the aggressiveness of the Lions who wouldn't be beaten. The play for the most part was ragged, the errors many and the personal fouls mounting to the unusual figure of 34—for a 32-minute contest. Four players were ousted, as follows:

Bob Kramer of Eugene after 4:46 of the third quarter; Al Wolf of Eugene after 5:43 of the fourth frame; Howard Harpole after 6:30 of the final period, and John Minor with but one minute of playing time remaining.

It was a blistering battle from the opening whistle until the final gun and the tempo increased with each second.

After Jones put Eugene into the lead in the opening seconds his teammates quickly built up a 6-2 advantage and it wasn't until after five minutes that Wolf gave the Axemen their first "earned" points on a nice pass from Ray Cain. Kramer dribbled the length of the court to score and the count was knotted 6-6. But Harpole retaliated seconds later and Cottage Grove was never headed again, taking an 11-8 lead at the end of the quarter.

Zone Defense Effective

An effective zone defense kept the Eugene attack bottled and the Lions continued to lead, 20 to 11 at halftime. The Grove third-period scoring was confined to two freethrows while Eugene tallied eight points to trail 22-19 at the close of the third quarter.

Gift shots by Ken Brauner and Claire Lindsay cut the margin to one point, 22-21 after 2:43 of the final frame. But Gordon Elfving hooked in a shot with five minutes remaining to put the Grovers ahead 24-21.

With one minute to play and behind 26-25, Eugene elected to take possession on a freethrow, but failed repeatedly to connect for the tying basket in wild scrambles under the basket. With only 38 seconds remaining, Lindsay had a chance to knot the count on two freethrows, but missed both, the game ending after several Axemen "prayer" shots.

In the second-team game, Ken Carter scored 10 points in leading Coach Don Mabee's Hatchetman to a 50-21 victory over the Grove reserves. Eugene led 19-1 in the first quarter and 30-10 at halftime.

Huskies Beat OSC 43-38; Regain Lead

By BUCK BUCHWACH

CORVALLIS, Jan. 21.—(Special)—The Washington Huskies got their second wind here Tuesday night before 3300 spectators, and successfully employed it to blow the Oregon State Beavers out of first place in conference standings by a score of 43-38.

Washington thus regained its eminent position at the top of the northern division, which it had relinquished to the Oregon Staters for just 24 hours.

The entire Washington team appeared rejuvenated as it closed the Willamette valley invasion in successful fashion and headed for home as the team to beat for the championship this year. Bobby Lindh, effectively muzzled by the Beaver's zone defense Monday night, connected for 10 points, as did Center Chuck Gilmur. Merlyn Gilbertson, a rugged forward substituting against the burly Beavers instead of the fragile Norm Dalthrop, hit the hoop for nine points, all in the second half when they were most effective.

The Beavers had a respectable batting average for shots at the hoop, hitting 14 of 42 for a .333 mark. But Washington, although it had a slightly lower average, whipped the Beavers by the simple expedient of taking more shots, the Huskies connecting for 16 of 50 during the torrid tilt.

NORTHERN DIVISION	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Op.
Washington	4	2	.677	240	222
Oregon	2	2	.500	181	194
Oregon State	2	2	.500	180	178
Washington State	2	3	.400	227	220
Idaho	1	2	.333	91	104

Oregon State really lost the game in the first 10 minutes of the second half. Or, the correct statement should read that Washington won the rugged skirmish during this portion of the game. The halftime score favored the Orangemen, 19-15, and Slats Gill had a pleased smile on his countenance as he led his team to the dressing room for the rest period.

That smile faded immediately at the start of the second half. In 10 minutes the galloping Huskies, spurred by a stimulating speech by Coach Hec Edmundson between the halves, dropped five of nine field goals and five of five freethrows to reverse completely the trend of the game and make the score 30-23 for Washington.

For the first 14 minutes of the second half not a single Beaver with the exception of Jack Mulder—who made two buckets—could pierce a smothering Washington "floating man-for-man" defense for a field goal, and the Beavers never got within hailing distance of the Huskies at any time during the half.

The Beavers actually played better ball Tuesday night in losing than they did Monday night in swamping the Huskies.

Oregons Prepare For Orange Invasion

With both teams needing a win to stay in the thick of conference campaigns, the Oregon Webfoots will meet the Oregon State Beavers Saturday night at 8 p. m. at McArthur court.

Oregon and Oregon State both split with the league-leading Huskies, and although the Beavers are slight favorites to wallop the Ducks, a traditional and hectic struggle is expected.

Coach Howard Hobson, who scouted the Beavers against the Huskies both Monday and Tuesday nights, along with members of the Oregon team, indicated his club would be in top physical trim for the "Civil War" clash. George Andrews, who played in both games against Washington last week-end despite injuries, has recovered completely, and is expected to lead the Oregon attack. Andrews scored 32 points in his first two games, but injuries hampered him last week and he scored a total of only twelve points for the series.

The Oregon team is expected to continue to rely on its zone defense to halt the high-powered offense of the Orangemen. A variation of the zone gave the Washington team a win over the Beavers, and Coach Hobson evidently will not overlook that fact.

The Oregon team had a full scrimmage Tuesday, and appeared in fine fettle for the coming tilt, for which the largest attendance of the 1942 season thus far is expected.

Ashcom May Swim Against O. S. C.

University of Oregon varsity and freshment swimmers get their first taste of competition this season Saturday when they tangle with Oregon State college mermen here in the men's pool.

Freshmen teams vie at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and the varsities open their dual meet at 2:45 p. m.

Coach Mike Hoyman, not too well pleased with the performances of his charges in an intra-squad exhibition last Saturday, planned another one for Wednesday afternoon.

The Webfoots appear handicapped by the unexpected loss of Cub Callis, letterman handy-man who did not return to school winter term.

Some compensation for Callis' loss has been the good early practice work of 220-pound Dick Ashcom, Oregon football tackle, who is vieing for a berth as a sprinter.

Wagner Makes Ultimatum

"Sockeye" McDonald and Walter Tinkit Achiu will meet in the opening match of Promoter Herb Owen's weekly wrestling show at the armory Thursday night. While the match looms as a dynamic and colorful battle, it must take a back seat along with the semi-final between Tex Hager and the Black Devil.

The scheduled title tilt between George Wagner and Herb Parks, booked for the headliner, is indefinitely off.

Wagner, the champion, was evidently unaware of the fact that the Eugene wrestling commission had planned to secure the services of a certified National Wrestling association referee, and that the local mat moguls had planned to return the belt they have held since the last meeting between Wagner and Parks. Wagner wired Dick Strite, sports editor, as follows:

"In the name of fair play and good sportsmanship, will you please state in your sports section that I positively will not wrestle Parks Thursday nite. That it is my belt, according to the N. W. A. ruling, although the commission has not recognized me or my right. Until they do, I will never wrestle him. Also my public agrees with me in so doing. Signed—George Wagner."

Promoter Herb Owen said Wednesday that he was certain Wagner is determined to refuse to meet Parks under any condition. The local commission is expected to place a suspension on Wagner and might even vacate the championship. Owen said that he had signed Jack Lipscomb, the tough Indiana villain, to substitute for Wagner.

U. H. S. Swamps Lebanon, 49-15

By HARRY GLICKMAN

With too much to contend with—height, backboard dominance, and especially Ernie Danner and "Snick" Harbert, who accounted for 19 and 16 points, respectively—an outplayed but scrappy Lebanon hoop team fell before the powerful onslaught of University high's Golden Tide by a score of 49 to 15 at McArthur court Tuesday night.

Danner paced the Uni team in the first half, scoring 17 of his points in that canto, and Harbert led in the second half, making 12 of his 16.

The Golden Tide held a 14-1 lead at the end of the first quarter, and increased their margin to 25-6 at the end of the half. Third quarter score found Uni holding a 37-9 advantage.

Coach Hank Kuchera riddled his bench of substitutes in the final period and the reserves gave a good account of themselves.

University had complete control of the backboards, and intercepted numerous passes while employing an effective zone defense. Using a fast break on offense, Uni raced up the floor canning buckets with deadly accuracy.

Joe Mangold made the best of Lebanon's feeble efforts, to retaliate, netting the hemp for seven points.
