

School, Labor Temple Ransacked In Night

Two cases of break-and-enter were reported to city police late Tuesday.

Some one entered the Eugene high school building during the night through a window on the south side. Screws in the window lock had been removed, apparently in the daytime, making it easy to open the window later. The screws were found in a sawdust bin. Nothing in the school was reported missing. The Culinary Alliance room in the Labor temple was entered some time between 3 p. m. Monday and 9 a. m. Monday. The burglar had used a small jimmy to pry open the door. The desk in which money is customarily kept was ransacked. A total of 12 cents was all the thief obtained. The remainder of the money had been taken to the bank the day before. The police report stated the burglar apparently knew where the money was kept.

to see the general drift away from fundamental democracy. When a California sports man came up to Salem and lobbied a bill through the house closing the Rogue River to commercial fishing and (so I am told) putting over 250 families out of a living; and when the legislature gave the game commission authority over the game business, to raise a thousand pheasants on every square mile if they wish and the farmer can't do a thing without breaking the law. We just wonder what kind of a legislature we have got. Do they know anything about the U. S. constitution? California sportsmen have got us skinned a mile when it comes to nerve and brazen audacity. Then there is the free text book law that smells like the first step toward a union of church and state. The next logical move will be a bill to furnish free hymn book for churches, and pay the salaries of sectarian teachers and preachers out of the public treasury. It is not a pleasant task to continually watch our law makers; it would be far better to make them pass an intelligence test, an honesty or liars test or what have you, before being elected. When public confidence in our officials is lost they have themselves alone to blame. Let us hope for more honest men in public office.

MILK ROUTES
EUGENE—(To the Editor)—I note with interest that milk deliveries are to be greatly curtailed, a matter of importance to the public as a whole, of greater concern to families having children, and of critical importance to families without refrigeration. Many have been rather scandalized for a long time at the waste and needless duplication of delivery service not only in the Dairy business but in many other lines. Roughly there are thirty concern selling and delivering milk to Eugene customers and all of them deliver all over town, yet each route aggregates no more customers than a few score blocks would provide if all within the section patronized the same dairyman. To assure the customer uniform safety and quality of the milk he consumes, large sums are spent upon inspection and upon the facilities the producer is forced to acquire to meet such inspection. This added expense is, of course, added to the retail price of the milk. If kept within bounds no fault can be found with this.

But when an additional two cents or more per quart is piled on due to the cost of a vastly duplicated distribution method the costly foolishness of the entire set up is apparent. Now that war forces us to conserve on gas, tires, trucks and manpower why shouldn't we, the customers, relinquish the now pointless privilege of deciding which dairyman is to deliver us the standardized product they all carry in return for a proportionate reduction in the price per quart. The distributors could then block out the city in such a way that each one realized the same output as before but at about 25% of his present delivery costs.

I know a milk dealer here who lives only six miles out of town, yet whose route aggregates fifty-five miles or more per day due to the fact that he delivers all over the city. I have heard him say that if his present deliveries could be concentrated upon one portion of it he could sell for two cents less per quart and make the same profit.

I believe the general run of customers would gladly cooperate in the suggested plan if it were "sugared" with a fair reduction in the cost of delivered milk. I am sure I would. It would fit in better right now along with the many readjustments due to the war and be vastly less disruptive of consumer needs, particularly those without refrigeration, than the threatened five or less deliveries per week.

Yours for a better economy,
ALLEN T. OSBORNE,

EUGENE—(To the Editor)—In answer to the nice write up about "Dog Owner Fined," I have this to say, that the lady who put in the complaint about this big, bad and vicious dog is known by me and trespasses on my property very often.

Anyway this bad dog is exactly an eight months old female pup (which I can prove) belongs to my children and behold wouldn't harm anyone and stays on her own private property. But the complaining witness and dog catcher doesn't.

My property is 250 feet by 393 feet and Fillmore street from 6th and 7th avenue alley to 7th and 8th avenue alley is my property and paid for.

I hauled rock and gravel and made this block of Fillmore street and the city has been using it, never even putting on one load of gravel or maintaining in any way. Now then city and public you are trespassing — so KEEP OFF from now on.

This block will be closed but my children and their little puppies can play on their own property.

WANTS PROJECT
EUGENE—(To the Editor)—We recommend that the Works Progress Administration continue to sponsor the school lunch program. This worth while project should not be discontinued at a time when the need is greatest.

America's strength for the future lies in our children. Upon their health and well-being depends the adjustments which will be made following the present conflict.

Teachers unanimously agree that their pupils enter into the afternoon activities with added zest and enthusiasm following a hot noon lunch.

At a time when, in many cases, both parents are employed, part of the responsibility for a balanced diet must be assumed by governmental agencies. Placing the responsibility there rather than in the communities themselves, assures a more uniform program and distributes the costs more evenly. Plans have been
