

NEWS REPORTS FROM LANE COUNTY COMMUNITIES AND COUNTRY SIDE

Farm Machinery and Repair Class Starts

JUNCTION CITY—The first meeting of the farm machinery repair class will be held at the high school agricultural building on Saturday, January 16, starting at 9 a. m.

The different things that can be taken up at this class will depend upon the group that comes and its various interests. Some of the possibilities are: the repair, operation, and construction of tillage, seeding, and harvesting machinery; the operation and service of minor repairs of farm motors and tractors; major repairs of farm motors and tractors in addition to service jobs; and the repair and construction of essential equipment.

Plans at the present time are to start the class with the discussion and actual jobs pertaining to farm tractors and motors and keeping them in good running order.

Albert Foote, mechanic and repair man of the Junction City Implement company, will act as instructor for the class. This class will last for six hours each Saturday and will run for the next six weeks, concluding February 20. Any one wishing to attend these classes is to contact Stanley Green, agriculture instructor, so that he will know how many plans to attend and it may be necessary to limit the number to attend the class as only about 15 can be accommodated.

THE WOMEN CAN TAKE IT!

The other day a young man asked me to speak to a group of which he was a member. He made this request in the most doleful manner. He said they were all tired, t-i-r-e-d business men, so worn out with thinking about priorities, price ceilings, transportation difficulties and the like, that their brains were practically worn down to the bone. And since they were just too weary to listen to anything sensible, they'd decided he explained with that delicate and subtle touch so characteristically masculine, that they'd ask me to speak.

His appeal held so much of pathos, it touched the good old maternal side of my nature. If I'd known how, I'd have clucked

Heilig's Bill This Week Includes 'The Falcon's Brother'; Plus Last Autry Film, 'Bells Of Capistrano'

Hailed as one of the most exciting and baffling mystery films of the year, "The Falcon's Brother" introduces a striking new character into the popular mystery series in the person of Tom Conway, brother of George Sanders, who is featured in the role at "The Falcon." Conway plays the title role in this film now at the Heilig.

The story deals with the efforts of Gay Lawrence (The Falcon) to unravel the mysterious murder aboard ship of a man who sailed from the Bahamas under the name of his brother, Tom Lawrence, and the subsequent shooting of Diana Medford, the girl who tricked Tom into missing his boat. Early in his investigations, The Falcon is deliberately run down by a speeding automobile and taken to his home in a coma. Tom Lawrence then takes up the trail of the criminals where The Falcon left off.

A Fifth Avenue modiste, a Latin-American dancing team, a foreign photographer, the editor of a smart fashion magazine, and an ambitious girl reporter are involved in the affair. Two more persons are killed and The Falcon saves the life of a third before the gripping climax is reached.

In addition to Conway, three other players new to the series make their debuts in "The Falcon's Brother." Jane Randolph plays the persistent girl reporter who unearths the clues which reveal the international plot behind the murders.

Don Barclay, noted stage and screen comedian, is cast as Goldy Locke, The Falcon's irrepressible stooge, and Cliff Clark, noted for his police characters, appears as the frustrated Inspector Donovan.
