Roger Wiley Paces Webfoots, 43-21 Victory Over Vandals

HIGH CLIMBER

By DICK STRITE

Let's take a jaunt to the metropolitan area of the Pacific coast—San Francisco. We need no "C" card or priorities on train or plane travel, but editions of the San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle. Sure, and our editions are two or more weeks old, but we find some interesting things that may be interesting to you all. Take a recent column by Prescott Sullivan of the Examiner for example.

"We wouldn't know who's to blame, but the sad truth is that no football team ever started with more and accomplished less than did the St. Mary's Pre-Flight team of this year.

"Liberally supplied with former all-Americans, ex-professionals and players of long experience, the Pre-Flighters figured to breeze through all of their games with college teams." (Breeze through 'em so easily that Oregon State and Washington State both cancelled contests after the Airdevils had whipped UCLA 18-7).

"At the start of the season, those who questioned the wisdom of the Pre-Flight playing such old hands as Vic Bottari, Frankie Albert and Bobby Grayson, to the virtual exclusion of young and eager cadet players, who really needed the competition and exercise football affords, were told that the main purpose of the team was to inspire and encourage enlistments in navy aviation.

"The team, it was said, was designed to give the Pre-Flight program something that the youth of the land would talk about and arouse in it a desire to be part of the program—as if any red-blooded youngster wouldn't have that desire, anyway!

"Unfortunately the team failed to captivate the imagination of youth. It was lucky to beat a poor Oregon team. It was tied by Washington and it was beaten successively by Stanford, California and U. S. C. As an 'ad' for the Pre-Flight program it was an utter flop.

"It's floundering defies all understanding. Possibly the Pre-Flight coaches were so numerous (Head Coach Tex Oliver had eight assistants) they got in each other's way. Perhaps the pre-Flight players had been too long in the game to have the proper enthusiasm for their jobs. We don't profess to know the answer.

"But we do know this—

"If there is football next year the Pre-Flight should do one of two things.

"It should put out a team that will do it credit—

"Or it should get out of football."

These remarks by Sullivan were only incidental. Our real purpose of taking you all on a remote-control jaunt to the Bay Region was to get the opinion of sports writers on the performance of our Tommy Roblin, Oregon's fullback who played some 22 minutes of the game in which the East beat the West 13-12.

First we turn to Spud Lewis who wrote a column from the "expert analysis" viewpoint for the Examiner. In part, the former S. F. U. and Northwestern University coach said: "The West's most powerful back was Tom Roblin of Oregon, who smashed and knifed and bucked like a demon. The first West touchdown play was one of the neatest of the season. With second down and seven yards out, Roblin took the ball on a smash into the line, drawing the East in close. After taking three steps in, Roblin leaped into the air and pivoted, throwing a lateral pass out to Kennedy in the left flat."

Sullivan, in his game story, said: "Roblin took the pass from center and feigned a blow at the middle. But as the East defense converged to stop him, Roblin, his timing perfect, lateralled to Kennedy who stormed around the right side for the touchdown. . . . Roblin lateralled to Reese for 22 more." This latter indicates that Tommy did much more than the statistics credited him with—six times carrying the ball with 30 yards gained, none lost for a five-yard-per-play average.

According to Bob Stevens of the Chronicle, East Coach Andy Kerr said, following the game, "That Jurkovich boy from California was tremendous. I liked him, a great runner. And Susoeff . . . he nearly broke my heart when he caught that touchdown pass. And Roblin and Kennedy, and Taylor . . . oh, why try to single any of them out? They're all-stars aren't they? Sure, and they played like it."

Delano Fox, the last of the Thurston Fox', shows promise of beating his brother Howard's record of averaging better than 20 points per game for two reasons of independent basketball. . . In three City league games to date, Delano has collected 79 points, an average of better than 26 per game . . . The committee handling arrangements for the 1943 Lane county "B" basketball tournament are going to be tough. . . . If the necessary $10 entrance fees are not in their hands by noon Saturday, when they meet at the Osburn hotel, only those schools with the ten bucks on the line will be permitted to vie for the title. . . . The absentees at the present time include Pleasant Hill and Oakridge, perennial contenders.

THEY'LL STILL SHOOT

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Penn State's undefeated basketball team is in line to lose its entire starting lineup to the armed forces in January.

Frosh Center Bags 16 Points

Oregons Downs Idaho With Comparative Ease

MOSCOW, Idaho, Jan. 13—(AP)—Although both teams played raggedly, the University of Oregon's towering basketball team easily outclassed the University of Idaho five here last night to win as they pleased, 43 to 21. It was the opening game of the northern division, Pacific coast conference basketball season.

Roger Wiley, 6-foot-8 Oregon center, was the spearhead of the Coach Howard Hobson of the Oregon basketball team wired the Register-Guard from Moscow that the Oregon-Idaho games are not being broadcast. There has been no announcement regarding the Oregon-WSC series at Pullman Friday and Saturday.

Webfoot attack, dropping in 16 points. Fred Quinn, Idaho center, took second scoring honors with 11.

Oregon scored first on a free toss. Quinn gave Idaho a 4-1 lead with two baskets and that was the only point at which the Vandals lead in the contest. Oregon went on to build up a halftime lead of 23-10 and coasted to the finish.

The visitors switched to a man-to-man defense at the start of the second half but quickly returned to a zone style when Idaho began to dominate the play.

The teams were to meet here again tonight.

Quinn was unable to match Wiley and no other Idahoan could ring more than three points.

Operating out of zone with fast break, the Webfoots swept the Vandals off their feet with a scoring rush that piled up 15-4 lead after Idaho had taken an early 4-3 edge. In 13 minutes Idaho made only one point while Oregon rolled up 21 and the score was 24-5 before the Moscow club tossed two desperation baskets and a freethrow to get a halftime tally of 10.

The Webfoots easily maintained a two-for-one scoring pace through second half, Idaho failing to generate a scoring threat even when Oregon briefly abandoned the zone defense, although the Vandals were able to control the ball until the visitors switched back to a tighter style of play.

Wiley and Taylor had full control of both backboards, tapping in numerous rebounds.

By grabbing the division lead in the first tilt Oregon staged no upset, although the Vandals had appeared a much improved team during pre-season games after finishing last year in the cellar.

Each coach used two full teams, but no combination could click for Idaho while Oregon's well-knit defense and fast-breaking offense seemed unaffected by substitutions.

Junction City Trips Elmira, 52 to 17

JUNCTION CITY, Jan. 13—Junction City's District 6 basketball quintet ran roughshod over a completely outclassed Elmira hoop squad here Tuesday night, 52 to 17. The local team got off to a flying start, and was never tied nor headed. At the end of the first quarter, the Tigers held a 13-to-2 lead, and were in front 25-8 at the half. Elmira was on the short end of a 37-to-10 count going into the final frame.

Coach Frank Thomas used his entire squad against the 'B' leaguers, with sub Wilmer Larson copping scoring honors by potting 10 points.

Klowman topped the losers with four.

St. Mary's At Marcola

MARCOLA, Jan. 13.—St. Mary's Catholic high school from Eugene will meet Mohawk high's 1941-42 county and district "B" basketball champions here Wednesday night. In the first meeting between the two teams here last month, Mohawk won by a narrow margin.

Joe Gordon Given Biggest Vote In 1942 All-Star Selections

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—(U.P.)—The New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox each placed three players on the 1942 all-star major league team, selected by the Baseball Writers Association of America and announced today.

The team was picked for The Sporting News in a nation-wide vote of the 260 members of the association.

Only one member of the organization—Paul Scheffels of the United Press — nominated the team, man-for-man, position-for-position, that was chosen.

Only Two Cards Named

Joe DiMaggio in center field, Joe Gordon at second base and Pitcher Ernie Bonham were the Yankee nominees while Ted Williams in left field, Johnny Pesky at shortstop and Pitcher Tex Hughson snared spots for the Red Sox. Rightfielder Enos Slaughter and Pitcher Mort Cooper represented the St. Louis Cardinals.

Johnny Mize won the first-base slot for the New York Giants, Stan Hack garnered third base for the Chicago Cubs and Mickey Owen tabbed the catching post for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Seven newcomers to the championship squad were Bonham, Cooper, Hughson, Owen, Slaughter, Mize and Pesky, largest production of new men since the team's inception. Additionally, Pesky and Hughson were playing their first full season in the big time.

DiMaggio Named Sixth Time

DiMaggio was voted a place on the team for the sixth consecutive time, but after being a unanimous choice three times previously, finished fourth in the total vote, Gordon topping the list with 255.

Cooper followed with 250 and Williams with 247. Closest battle developed between Hack and Ken Keltner of Cleveland for third base, the Cubs' man garnering 95 to 91. Williams and Gordon were chosen for the fourth time and Hack for the third.

EUGENE'S JOE GORDON copped another honor to add to his "most valuable American league player" award of 1942 when the nation's baseball writers gave the Yankee second-baseman the greatest number of votes in selecting the 1942 all-star major league team.

Oregon State Beats Ramblers, 54-47

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 13—(AP)—Oregon State defeated the powerful Vancouver Ramblers, 54 to 47 here last night to extend its string of basketball victories to nine in 10 games.

Three former Oregon Staters in the Ramblers lineup, John Mandic, Jack Mulder and Sam Dement, failed to stem the tide, although the first half's end found O.S.C. out in front by but one point, 25-24.

The Beavers drew away slowly in the first half; the Ramblers, on some sharp shooting by Mandic, pulled to within one point, and the Beavers finally forged safely ahead on baskets by Don Durdan and Bob Howard.

Commander Hamilton 'Champions' Sports

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—(U.P.) — Commander Tom Hamilton, head of the navy's pre-flight physical fitness program, said last night that the feats of former athletes on the far-flung battlefronts provided proof that athletics should comprise a major part of America's wartime educational program.

He spoke at the annual banquet of the Maxwell Memorial football club, at which Paul V. Governali, Columbia's all-America backfield ace, received the club's award as the nation's outstanding football player of 1942.

"This is the opportunity, I think, to prove that this is the kind of training the country needs more than any other," Hamilton said. "The system has proved itself in peace, why should we change it in war?"

Hamilton, refuting arguments that sports should be curtailed for the duration, pointed out that teamwork, of the type learned in sports, is necessary on the battlefield.

"What they learned in sports—the values of teamwork, how to stand up and take it, how to give it back in the face of fatigue—this is standing them better now than any book learning."

Wagner Eyes Tony Zale After Beating Local Mat-Mitt Talent

George Wagner is an ambitious athlete. "Gorgeous George," better known to the Lane county wrestling fraternity as "Crybaby," is stopping with a fistic victory over Tony Ross here at the Pearl Street arena Thursday night.

Wagner has announced that after he has knocked out Ross he wants a match with Elton Owen and will then seek a top-flight engagement on the Portland circuit with a goal set for a meeting with Tony Zale, current world middleweight titleholder.

Hearing of Wagner's boasts, Ross said, "Wagner won't be able to wrestle after Thursday night, let alone setting his sails for a world boxing crown, because I'm going to knock him kickin'."

The 10-round fight will feature the sports show being staged by Matchmaker Don Owen—a show that will also mark the return of Sgt. Babe Small, popular villain who is now a wrestling instructor for Uncle Sam. Small will meet Coast Champ Jack Lipscomb in a non-title 45-minute engagement.

Owen completed his program Wednesday by signing Tex Hager and Bulldog "Cop Beater" Jackson for a 30-minute opening bout. The curtain-raiser promises to be a colorful affair.

Reserved seat tickets were reported at a premium, but the Club Cigar store agency said a few seats were still available. The show will be the first one here since Christmas night.

Eugene Whips Corvallis 38-27

Axemen Stage Comeback After Trailing 13-4

Eugene high's basketball club opened its southern division, No-Name league season with a "three-quarters" victory over a talented band of Spartans from Corvallis high on the westside court Tuesday night. The 38-27 triumph was registered in a sparkling reversal of form in the final three quarters of play after Coach Earl McKinney's visitors had taken a stunning 13-4 lead in the opening period.

The victory was the tenth of the season in 11 games for Coach Ford Mullen's "Big Purple" quintet against prep-school opposition.

The slick-passing Corvallis courtmen cracked open Eugene's zone defense in the opening period as easy as shelling a pea—and high-scoring Allen Anderson took advantage of set shots with three in less than three minutes. The Spartans took command of the backboards and the only Axeman scores came from the freethrow line—two by Bob McKevitt and a pair by Al Wolf. Eugene's lob passes were broken up with comparative ease.

Sprecher, Berg Help on Boards

Early in the second quarter Mullen sent Curt Sprecher and Cece Berg into the game and the recoveries beneath the boards started to favor Eugene. Ray Cain, who later did splendid work under the baskets and was the leading scorer with 15 points, tallied Eugene's first fielder early in the second quarter. Berg, Sprecher and Al Wolf added two-pointers, but it was from the free-throw line that the winners managed to remain in the ball game and close the half trailing by a slim 17-15 margin. Eugene had connected on seven consecutive free shots. Corvallis' shooting, after hitting six for 15 in the first quarter, started to fade as the Eugene defense tightened.

Tom Shaw, Spartan center who did Trojan work under the hemp during the first half, scored from close in as the second half opened—the last Corvallis field goal until Wayne Roberts, who collected 10 points, canned one from far out after 3:25 of the third period—a lapse of nearly 11 minutes. Four out of five gift shots kept Corvallis ahead until Cain popped one in from the side and then bagged one of his frequent long two-handed heaves to knot the count 22-22 after six and one-half minutes of the third quarter. With 10 seconds remaining in the period, Jack Fassett blasted one from mid-court that found the hemp and gave Eugene its first advantage—24-22 going into the final frame.

Substitutes Finish Contest

Cain tallied four points in the first two minutes of the last period and Berg added another basket before Roberts broke Corvallis' scoreless spell. The Axemen built up a 35-24 lead with three minutes remaining and a steady stream of substitutes completed the game.

Bob Dunn of Corvallis was the first of three personal-foul victims, leaving the game with six minutes remaining. Wolf was lost to Eugene mid-way in the fourth quarter, and Shaw was counted out two seconds before the final blast.

In the preliminary second-team game, Warren "Gus" Hunter scored eight points as Fritz Kramer's Hatchetmen defeated the Corvallis "B" squad 34-15, after holding a 19-5 halftime advantage.
