Beer Held Needed by Men in Aleutians

SANTA ANA, Cal., April 21.—U.S.—A load of beer once a month would do much to maintain morale in the Aleutians Lt. Col. John Chennault said in describing his 14-month "lifetime" in the Aleutians.

Visiting his 22-year-old brother, now a training cadet here, the 29-year-old son of Brig. Gen. Claire Chennault, head of United Nations air forces in China, told how he piloted a squadron of newly commissioned pilots to Alaska a little more than a year ago.

That was three weeks after Pearl Harbor, he said, and he and his fledglings embarked immediately upon combat duty—and have been at it ever since.

A year in the Aleutians is a lifetime, he said. Kiska is whipped by 100-mile-an-hour gales. Flyers landing in Aleutian waters die of cold in less than an hour.

Steady bombing prevents Jap establishment of formidable bases, Chennault said, adding the Japs do most of their work at night—with picks and shovels.

Balkan Nations Said Looking for Way Out

LONDON, April 21.—U.P.—Evidence has been uncovered that at least some of Adolf Hitler's Balkan satellites are trying to get out of the war before an allied Blitz hits southern Europe.

It may be a bit early to compare this world war with the last one but every one knows that the strength of the Central powers in 1918 crumbled first in the Mediterranean sphere rather than on the main front.

The crumbling came after the allies had suffered reverse after reverse in Mesopotamia, Turkey, Salonika. Eventually the first signs of the dying of German war power appeared at the farthest points instead of in the heart of the Kaiser's empire.

The Nazis are on the verge of a defeat in Tunisia. Sooner or later the allies will reopen the Mediterranean to allied shipping. The next move is fairly obvious—an attack on south Europe limited only by geography.

Union To Discuss Settlement Of Case. Settlement of the NLRB charges against the Eugene Fruit Growers association will be discussed at a meeting of cannery workers union, Local 25631, AFL, Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Labor temple.

The union and organized labor as a whole are well pleased with the handling of this case by the NLRB, said Mrs. Leona Zilkoski, AFL organizer, "as it proves the merits of the Wagner labor act in regard to protecting labor's right and at the same time tends to encourage better relations between management and labor."
