Women Advised to Stay in College

College women can serve their nation in time of war by remaining in school, Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration, asserted at an assembly for University of Oregon women Thursday. The Oregon Federation, university alumni association, sponsored and arranged the assembly.

Pointing out the need for college training in war work, Dean Onthank urged university women to continue their schooling and high school seniors to enter college. High school boys, too, he said, may obtain at least one year of university work before going into military service under new regulations now in effect.

"Entrance restrictions have been modified to permit high school boys who have finished their junior year, are 17 or over, are recommended by their high school principals, and are in the top 20 per cent of their class to enter the University of Oregon this summer or this fall," Onthank disclosed.

College-trained women are needed to fill shortages in many professional fields such as science, journalism, nursing, business administration, and teaching, Dean Onthank declared. However, he said, women who have majored in some branch of liberal arts can also aid in war service because they have a broad general background, intelligence, and quick learning ability.

Railroad Measures Discussed in Review

Legal problems of railroads and municipalities are covered in the two articles that make up the greater part of the content of the Oregon Law Review for April. This quarterly, issued by the University of Oregon school of law, is edited by Charles C. Howard, professor of law.

The two articles are "Railroad Certificates of Convenience and Necessity Issued Under the Interstate Commerce Act," by Donald Ross Marshall, a member of the Oregon bar, and "Some Legal Approaches to the Problems of the Rural-Urban Fringe," by Orval Etter, research assistant in the university's bureau of municipal research and service and legal consultant of the League of Oregon Cities.

Under "Note and Comment" are several articles by university faculty members and students. Dr. James D. Barnett, emeritus professor of political science, wrote "Constitutional Law, Equal Protection of the Laws, Graduation of Penalties." Jeannette Thatcher, third-year law student, was author of "Contracts, Third-Party Beneficiaries, Donee's Rights in Oregon."

E. R. Bryson of Eugene and Ben F. Dorris of Springfield were elected directors of the Mountain States Power company at the annual meeting of the stockholders at Albany Wednesday. Soliday, Philadelphia; E. B. Williamson, Albany.

Out of a total of 301,373 shares outstanding and entitled to vote 211,367 were represented at the meeting in person or by proxy.

Modernization Of UO Speech Program Proving Satisfactory

Modernization of the program of the speech division, at the University of Oregon, to fit present-day conditions is working out satisfactorily, W. A. Dahlberg, director of speech and dramatic arts, said this week.

"The speech department," said Mr. Dahlberg, "takes the position that there is a 20th century type of speaking—the kind needed, for instance, at meetings of service clubs, which require weekly participation of speakers. The radio, also, is calling for a different, more intimate type of discourse. This sort of demand is reflected in our program." Working with Mr. Dahlberg in developing this program are R. B. Huber, assistant professor of speech and dramatic arts; K. E. Montgomery and Kenneth Wood, instructors of speech and dramatic arts.

The high point of the year was the winning of a national championship in radio debate by Jack McCliment, Portland, junior who was coached in radio speaking by Kenneth Wood, instructor in speech. McCliment captured the contest in which representatives from 250 colleges and universities of the United States took part. In his final debate over the blue network of the National Broadcasting company from New York on the "Wake-Up America" hour, McCliment was rated first by a jury of more than 200 selected listeners in all parts of the country, surpassing representatives from Princeton, Northwestern and Augustana. For his victory the Oregon man received $1000 war bond and $250 in cash. Participation in this contest followed a year of drill in forensics over the radio.

A group of 20 students were coached through the year on a symposium program. After a term of research on subjects of current interest and importance, teams were made up and during the second term made 79 appearances in high schools, granges and churches. These teams, varying from two to four members each, presented the various aspects of the subject, after which members of the audience were permitted to participate in further discussion. The set speech and the formal debate as known in former years were laid aside.

The Jewett prizes, gift of Mrs. Mary Jewett in memory of her husband, W. F. Jewett, amounting to more than $2000 were distributed to winners in several divisions of the speech work, speechmaking, poetry, reading, discussion of current topics. These awards stimulated competition among the students.

Dorena Grade School Students Buy Bonds

What may be a new war bond and selling achievement for school children in Lane county has been made by pupils of the Dorena grade school, who sold $2882.50 in bonds and stamps on one day recently. There are 62 children in the school, representing a per capita sale of approximately $46.50.

The students had hoped only to sell $900 in bonds and stamps, enough to buy a jeep.

Oris Steele, principal, reports that the children collected two tons in a paper drive, and 4,133 pounds in the first scrap metal drive. In their current scrap metal and rubber drive they have already gathered together 7,175 pounds. In the recent tin can contest, they collected 2,570 cans, and are still working.

Children taking part, whose ages range from six to 14, are:

New York Markets

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—Assorted rails and specialties took a late turn on the recovery side of today's stock market while many leaders lingered in losing territory.

Prices slipped at the start. Dealings then slowed and scattered come-backs were in evidence around mid-day. A little buying came in near the close and final trends were no worse than mildly irregular. Transfers for the full proceedings were around 1,000,000 shares. Variations mostly were in minor fractions although isolated gains and losses of 3 or so were observed.

Prominent forward movers included Union Pacific, Santa Fe, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Philip Morris and Douglas Aircraft. Downward inclinations were shown by J. I. Case, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda, Westinghouse and Electric Power & Light.

Bonds were uneven.

Foreign Trade Students Attend Portland Meet

Culminating this year's work in foreign trade, A. L. Lomax, professor of business administration, and four senior university students this week attended a dinner with the foreign trade advisory board in Portland.

The advisory board, composed of a group of Portland businessmen engaged in foreign trade, has been working in this field together with the university school of business administration since 1931. In normal times, meetings are held several times each year, Mr. Lomax stated, in which businessmen discussed their current problems before students.

Seniors attending the meeting were Raymond V. Packouz, Paul Lee, Portland; Thomas E. Baumgartner, San Jose, Cal.; Richard C. Lawrence, Vancouver, Wash. During the meeting all four students received certificates of merit signed by advisory board members. To be awarded these certificates students were required to pass a comprehensive written examination given in Eugene, and an oral exam in Portland.

The Mustang fighter, which was recently declared the world's outstanding fighter plane of 1943, has also been produced as a dive-bomber.
