...the vocational field, there ...be a decline in number of ...es sponsored by the govern... for defense industries. Until ...er 1 the school taught an ...ge of from 400 to 500 air ... mechanic-learners. At that time the air forces met their quota, closed off-reservation training here. There are only two classes at EVS in this work now, while there used to be from 25 to 30. Since the defense boom started, changes have been made regularly to meet the chief needs of industry in aviation sheet metal, welders, and, more recently, aircraft maintenance.

Despite this, Dr. Cramer predicts no great decline in overall EVS activity. The school was founded to exist as a normal trade program to meet the needs of Eugene and vicinity before the war emergency started; it will continue in this capacity when the war is over. Today the average enrollment (not including high school students taking pre-induction courses) is 230.

School services have been offered to the veteran's bureau, and much use of the school's facilities is expected in the government's or other rehabilitation programs.

The superintendent believes the teacher shortage will grow more serious as the year progresses. Twenty teachers are in uniform. Four have been taken since September, and 12 others are subject to reclassification with the taking of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers. Eight have been added since school started. Specialized teachers (industrial arts, for example) are practically unavailable, since the army and navy and defense have made appeal to their particular talents.

Elementary teachers are comparatively easy to obtain.

The schools in many sections of the country will have to increase salaries if those now teaching are to be kept from taking other jobs, according to Dr. Cramer.

Enrollment will continue to decrease in the junior and senior classes of high school as teen-age boys are taken by the services, and enrollment in the lower grades will increase.

The school census for the past two years, during the fall, illustrates these trends:

	1942	1943
Elementary	1,554	1,620
(First grade)	(268)	(328)
Junior high	1,051	1,079
Tenth grade	431	453
Eleventh grade	436	413
Twelfth grade	430	377
Senior high total	1,297	1,243
TOTAL	3,902	3,942

Grand total of the school census, all aged from 4 to 20, and including nursery school students, shows an increase of 171 in the past year, 5,365 compared to 5,194.

New York Markets

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—An inclination to rake in profits after the strong two-session rally put brakes on today's stock market and many leaders retreated fractions to a point or so.

Although the news generally was favorable to bullish forces, commitments were lightened because of the thought a technical correction might be in the offing. Transfers were around 800,000 shares.

Behind most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Kennecott, General Electric, Du Pont, Southern Railway and Western Union "A." Occasional gainers included Schenley, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft and J. C. Penney. Bonds were mostly highest.

Curb laggards were Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, Aluminum of America and Puget Sound Power.

Curbing of Floods Studied by Group

Flood control and river bank protection were given major consideration at a meeting of the land use committee of the Lane county agricultural council in the 4-H club building on the county fair grounds Wednesday afternoon. The committee met for the purpose of discussing plans for work in 1944.

The committee discussed recommendations made in previous years and appointed sub-committees to review recommendations and report at a later meeting. A sub-committee was also appointed to review the land use map of Lane county and revise it where necessary.

The members of the committee were of the opinion that agricultural organizations of Lane county should bring up to date their recommendations in regard to minimum amount of land necessary for various types of farming in the county.

Among the flood control problems considered were the Goshen bottoms area along the Coast Fork of the Willamette river below the Willamette highway, and the Long Tom river bottom situation that has been aggravated by the Fern Ridge dam.

J. R. Beck, extension land use specialist of the Oregon State college, and O. S. Fletcher, county agent, met with the committee and assisted the members in their work.
