Conversion of Ship For Transport Flayed

SEATTLE, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Rep. Warren G. Magunson (D., Wash.) said today he has received confirmation that a Liberty ship which cracked open was being converted into a troop transport in a Portland, Ore., shipyard.

He reported that the vessel, the John C. Ainsworth, was being reconditioned at the Poole, McGonigle and Jennings ship repair yard. The Ainsworth broke open at two places while at sea and later buckled while alongside a pier at Adak in the Aleutians, he said.

"Entrusting lives of our soldiers in a ship which has shown serious faults is a matter of immediate concern for the Truman committee," Magnuson said. He has been taking testimony on the cracking of Liberty ships preliminary to opening of a hearing here next week by Sen. Mon C. Wallgren (D., Wash.) a member of the Truman committee.

NEW MILL—Among the recent additions to Eugene industry is the Thurston Lumber company mill, above, which salvages the core of plywood logs, and cuts them into two-by-fours. (Register-Guard photo, Wiltshire engraving)

Lumber Mill Eats Core of Plywood 'Apple'

A new lumber mill which salvages the core of the plywood logs used by Eugene and Springfield plywood plants has recently been put into operation by a group of Eugene men.

The new Eugene enterprise owned by L. W. and C. R. Manerud, C. A. Huntington and Ed Thurston and known as the Thurston Lumber company is located near the Eugene plywood plant and has been operating since the middle of December. The salvaged log, cores used in the mill operations are sawed into two-by-fours or from six-foot to eight-foot lengths. Daily capacity is 15,000 board feet. Eight men are employed.

Ed Thurston who formerly operated a sawmill at Creswell is in charge of operations. The J. P. O'Neill Lumber company of Eugene had formerly handled log cores for the Manerud-Huntington concern.

Kaiser Employes Represent All States

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U.P.)—Idaho and Minnesota, aside from Oregon and Washington, contributed most of the 97,518 workmen in the three Kaiser shipyards in the Portland area.

A survey conducted by the company publication, Bo'sn's Whistle, showed recently that the fewest of employes came from New England states. Every state in the union, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia is represented among the men and women who in 1943 sent tankers, liberty ships and aircraft carriers down to sea.

Mongrel Waits Three Months at Roadside For Master's Return

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 7—(AP)—In the blueblood ranks of dogdom, he would be definitely on the outside, sniffing in. He is just a weather-beaten brown and white mongrel, with one of those hangdog expressions that seem to tell something of the tragedy he has known.

But for loyalty, he's the blue ribbon winner.

Three months ago he stopped beside the Tacoma-Olympia highway when a tire on his master's trailer home went flat. The master and family drove away to get the tire repaired. When they returned, perhaps the dog was off on a bird chase. Maybe he got lonesome and went looking for canine company. Or he might have been left beside the road purposely.

Folks who have watched the drama of dogdom don't know just how the vigil started. But they do tell how the mongrel has stuck to that spot beside the highway for three lonesome months.

He isn't in want. Soldiers from Fort Lewis slip out of the mess hall with food for him. Motorists who have become accustomed to his presence toss a bone or a biscuit from their passing cars. Even passing trainmen toss tidbits to him.

He sniffs every car that stops, approaching with wagging tail and hopeful look. Then he slinks away disconsolately.

Both the state patrol and the Tacoma Humane society have taken an interest in the orphan. They hope the dog's master may hear about his loyalty and forward his address. With an old shoe or a piece of clothing with his scent, they are sure the faithful dog can be lured to his new home.

Akyab, in Burma, has almost seven times as much rain in one month as Phoenix, Ariz., in one year.

Idaho Mayor Freed In Salesman's Death

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 7 — (AP) — Duncan M. Johnston, 45, former mayor of Twin Falls, was a free man today after serving five years of a life sentence in the Idaho state penitentiary for the 1938 killing of George Olson, Salt Lake City jewelry salesman.

The pardon board voted 2 to 1 to free Johnston with Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen opposing clemency. Secretary of State George H. Curtis and Attorney General Bert H. Miller favored it.

Bottolfsen said he voted negatively because "I cannot accept the idea that Mr. Johnston is guiltless of the crime. I cannot believe that he should be given freedom from a penalty on a technicality."
