Around Oregon—

By The Associated Press

Scientists from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, California and Utah drafted 1944 orchard spray recommendations at the 18th western cooperative spray project conference at Portland. . . . Contact with a 440-volt power line electrocuted Ernest Beu, 39, Forest Grove, while working at the Gales Peak Lumber company mill.

Baker county announced plans to pay off the last of its bonds this year, leaving it free of debt for the first time since its creation in 1862. . . . Joseph W. Henderson, president of the American Bar association, described for Portland attorneys a legislative program which he said was drafted to protect civil rights "against arbitrary invasion" by federal and state administrative agencies.

Three sons of Mrs. J. H. Cooper, Portland, arrived home on fulough at the same time but she was disappointed because leave of a fourth was cancelled at the last minute and he couldn't be there, too.

William Hillis

William Hillis, 68, of Route 1, Springfield, died Thursday morning at a local hospital. He was born in Indiana, January 7, 1875. He had lived at Coburg since 1921, moving to Springfield but recently.

New York Markets

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Rails and specialties continued to furnish such rising power as appeared in today's stock market.

Gains at the best ran to a point or so but these were trimmed in many cases near the close and minus signs were plentiful for leaders. Transfers were around 800,000 shares.

Bullish sentiment was buoyed by another batch of pleasing dividends and earnings statements in addition to more optimistic tax prospects and the general business outlook.

Ahead the greater part of the proceedings were Swift & Co., Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Coty, Western Union, General Electric, United Aircraft and Woolworth. Stragglers included Westinghouse, Anaconda, Douglas Aircraft, Du Pont and Johns-Manville.

Bonds were steady. Commodities wavered after early firmness.

Mrs. Williams, long socially prominent in Chicago, died last night, 25 hours after a mysterious, middleaged woman, who had gained entrance to her Drake hotel apartment, fired a bullet into her head.

By Glenn Hasselrooth

"You're a Lucky Fellow, Mr. Smith," at the Heilig, gets its title from one of the hit songs presented three years ago in the first Abbott & &Costello hit, "Buck Privates." It concerns Evelyn Ankers as a blonde who must marry before she's 24 to inherit $95,000. Unable to get to Chicago to marry "fine, upstanding Washington monument" who has money, she tricks an army private into wedlock. The soldier is Allan Jones, whose tenacity and voice convince her she shouldn't get an annulment.

The plot is the kind of "light fiction" which comes in slick magazines and has flimsy motivation to hang its "cute" complications on. Story doesn't seem to matter much, however, since the cast has some vitality and most of the talent is average or above. This places it on a par with most of Universal's medium-budget musicals, which utilize old favorites rather than new scores and (praise WPB!) don't have any "big production numbers." The recording is not too sharp, in the solo numbers at any rate, but the closing scene featuring the title song comes off a winner with men's chorus in rhythmic step and voice. "You're a Lucky Fellow, Mr. Smith," has few surprises, no seven-year-contract entertainers, but it's as good as many top musicals and quite a lot better than several we can think of.

The bill is completed by "Outlaws of Stampede Pass" with Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton, two color cartoons, Chapter 12 of "Don Winslow of the Coast Guard," and a newsreel. Parents may feel safe in taking the children,
