Col. C. S. Pettie Has Command At Adair

COL. CHARLES S. PETTIE is new commanding officer of the 274th regiment, 70th infantry division, at Camp Adair. He is a veteran of six World War I campaigns, and formerly headed the organized reserve headquarters in Eugene. (Wiltshire engraving)

CAMP ADAIR—Veteran of six world war I campaigns is Col. Charles S. Pettie, new commanding officer of the 274th infantry regiment. He wears battle clasps for Aisne, Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and the defensive sector actions.
 He was awarded the purple heart for wounds sustained in October, 1918, which required nine months hospitalization.
 Col. Pettie has an extensive background. After taking his A. B. degree at the University of New Hampshire in 1916, he was commissioned in the regular army at the start of the first world war. He served overseas with the 7th infantry regiment, the 3rd division and then in the 3rd's headquarters.
 Between the two world wars, he was with the 36th, 63rd, 84th, 26th and 4th infantry regiments and then was head of organized reserve officers for the local district with offices at Eugene.
 When the 363rd of the 91st division was activated, he became its executive officer until January of this year. In the fall of 1943 he was chief umpire for the IV Corps and held the same position for the III Corps this May and June.
 His two sons are following their father's footsteps: Capt. Robert H. Pettie was promoted in action with the 9th division in Italy; Cadet Jack Pettie is a first classman at West Point preparatory to entering the air corps.
