Quarrels Among Nazi Officers Reported

LONDON, July 19—Reports of bitter quarreling among German officers, of reckless disagreement over strategy and policy, and of still another shakeup in the structure of the high command in the west, echoed from within embattled Europe today as the nazis struggled desperately in the grip of a massive three-front war.

From Germany itself, in a broadcast of DNB, official German news agency, came a report that Joseph Grohe, 42, a high officer of Hitler's elite guard, had been named "reich commissioner of the occupied territories of Belgium and northern France," replacing the military commander. The same report said an infantry general named Grase had been given military command of the area.

In Moscow the press quoted captured Gen. Edmund Hofmeister, who commanded the 41st German tank corps, as saying: "The defeat in white Russia is an example of the talentless command of Hitler. When Marshals Brauchitsch, List and von Rundstedt and others tried to point out errors, they were discharged."

In Greece, six nazi officers died in a shooting affray rising out of a quarrel during a recent conference, the Greek government announced at Cairo. Five officers died in a hotel in Athens during the conference when pistol shots were exchanged, and the sixth, chief administrative officer for the Peleponnesus, was said to have been shot down by SS guards as he fled. Still another report said Austrian Col. Fritze, Athens provost marshal, had been executed for speaking against the German command.

Permit Suspended

The operator, who was fined in justice court, failed to provide watchman service and a spark arrester for a gas donkey in addition to not clearing inflammable debris for a distance of 50 feet from the donkey, it was asserted by H. L. Young, state forestry inspector, who suspended Tillegren's permit until he complies with the forest law.

Officers elected by a referendum ballot in May and installed Sunday were President W. O. Kelsay, Secretary-Treasurer C. P. Richards and Trustee Chester Hosman, all of Eugene.

Other officers elected at the Sunday meeting and immediately installed were Vice-president John Gamblin, Lebanon; Conductor Clayton Jones, Triangle Lake; Warden Ray Boone, Toledo; Executive board members John Walker, Roseburg; William Jenkins, Lorne; Ernest Cristler, Wendling; Gordon Gwin, Triangle Lake; Ray Boone, Toledo; W. L. Canoy, La-comb; H. J. Bullis, Salem; W. C. Byers, Valse, and W. A. Poppe, Sweet Home.

Much discussion was devoted at the meeting to new wage demands and working conditions, President Kelsay stated, pointing out that dissatisfaction was voiced by the members over the war labor board's denial of wage increases.

An easy quick dish for luncheon, dinner or supper is hot waffles with a cheese sauce flavored with chopped green or ripe olives.
