Farm Transport Is Bulletin Subject

Eight hundred Lane county farmers are receiving through the mail this week copies of a bulletin entitled "Farm Transportation Facts," sent out by O. S. Fletcher, county agent. This bulletin, just released by the extension service of the Oregon State college, brings up to date important transportation facts and answers many questions concerning gasoline production and needs, the tire and rubber situation and farm trucks. It also contains many helpful suggestions to extend the service of farm transportation facilities.

Additional information is being sent the farmers along with this bulletin, contained in a letter accompanying it and furnished by Paul Carpenter, its author, as follows:

1. The total production of gasoline has dropped.
2. The truck tire situation today is more critical than the circular indicates.

3. The section "Haul for Neighbors" shows farmers have greater operating privileges under "F" plates than generally appreciated. 4. To meet emergencies, more farm trucks should qualify for common carrier usage. The procedure is outlined in the circular, and the organization of the public utilities commissioner is geared for quick action in caring for such applications. The PUC representative in Lane county is Victor R. Walder, 281 Miner building, Eugene.

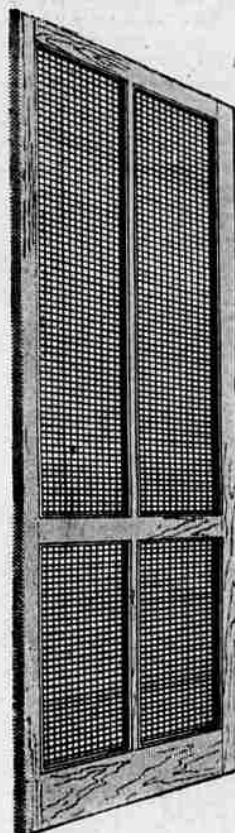

ANNEXATION MEETING

The Chambers - Westmoreland area annexation committee, headed by Jess Hayden, met with city officials Tuesday evening at the city hall to discuss the west boundary lines of the proposed annexation to the city of Eugene, according to Mayor Elsha Large.

Dvinsk gets its name from the Dvina river, which bends around the Russian city on the south and west.
