Po Valley Advance Virtually Halted
ROME, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Rain, mud and stiff German resistance have virtually halted the allied advance toward the Po river in Italy, but the 5th army's heavy artillery now is keeping the Bologna-Rimini highway under systematic fire, headquarters disclosed today.

British 8th army troops already are astride this highway at the Adriatic end of the allied line, but it still is of vital importance to Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring in maneuvering his strong forces laterally between the 8th and 5th armies.

Allied headquarters said continued bad weather and the water-logged ground combined to keep activity at a minimum. In the 8th army's area, operations were confined to patrols, while in the 5th sector some local improvements were made in forward positions.

Airfields in the Athens area of Greece were bombed by the Mediterranean air force last night, while light bombers and fighter-bombers attacked Adriatic shipping and gave support to mixed ground forces in Italy. Five allied planes were missing from approximately 300 sorties.

Increasing resistance was encountered by Americans along the German defense line south of Bologna and Imola, where Kesselring has committed fresh and refitted troops to the fight to hold the Po valley. Strong hill positions held by the nazis protect Bologna, although the Americans are within 10 miles of the city and have moved within heavy artillery range of its network of railways and highways.

has been stationed at Childress, Tex., is in Springfield for a few days visiting with his mother, Mrs. Ida Holverson. Holverson will leave soon for further training in Louisiana.
