OSC Men Here For Irrigation Talks

A party of Oregon State college faculty members and federal men interested in irrigation and drainage came to Eugene Friday to confer with O. S. Fletcher, county agent, and some of the prominent farmers of the county on future projects in this county. No plans as to the carrying out of any particular project were announced. The members of the visiting party were Dr. E. L. Potter, head of the division of agricultural economics at the college; Dr. W. L. Powers, head of the college department of soils; H. E. Selby of the division of land economics of the United States department of agriculture, from Berkeley, Calif., and J. L. Thomas, economist of the federal soil conservation service.

The American Red Cross was founded by Clara Barton in 1881.

Wider Rift In Labor's Ranks Seen As Result Of Pay Action

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Labor Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The AFL and the CIO, losers together in the war labor board's decision to give President Roosevelt no recommendation on easing wage controls, may start swinging at each other again before the year is over. Despite the ostensible unanimity of the AFL and CIO members on the board, there are some important differences in their positions. Their association is more formal than intimate. Feelings run deep into the stratum of politics, labor-wise and nationally. There have been no personal recriminations so far, but they may come after the election. The gap in the labor movement is widening. On the surface, two groups of labor leaders clamored for a liberalization of the little steel wage policy and both suffered equally by the WLB action in taking a non-committal position. But there is more to it. CIO President Philip Murray is in the position of having assured his members more than three weeks ago that the little steel formula would be revised soon. He is in the position of publicly advocating the candidacy of President Roosevelt and hence has risked some personal prestige in a labor movement that is already divided. He has specific contract disputes before the WLB involving large amounts of retroactive pay which might be lost to his members if the wage formula went unchanged until the reconversion period. Murray antagonists wisecrack that CIO members have already spent the retroactive pay. None of these circumstances fit the AFL as an organization or the AFL individuals on the WLB. There is no evidence of personal chagrin among them. They feel that Murray overplayed his hand and has placed more dependence upon the government than AFL doctrine tolerates. They feel no sympathy for him and less for the people whose advice he has taken. The AFL is merely in the position of having been turned down by a new deal agency.
