

WAVES Enlistments Curtailed Dec. 1

WAVES enlistments will be curtailed effective Dec. 1, with only a limited number allocated to Oregon, according to Chief W. E. Bell of the Eugene U. S. navy recruiting station.

Beginning in December, only enough WAVES will be enlisted nationally to provide replacements for the WAVES now on duty. The goal set for WAVES enlistments will be reached by Dec. 1, due to the record of approximately 5000 enlistments per month which has been maintained for the past year.

Although quotas now are being reduced, young women of Oregon will have the opportunity to qualify for WAVES enlistment as in the past, except that applicants in the future will be placed on a waiting list and enlisted when openings are available.

Any young woman interested in the WAVES, Chief Bell explained, should complete her application and arrange to place her name on this waiting list so that she will receive first call when billets are open. If enlistment quotas later are increased, larger numbers of WAVES can be taken.

TODAY on the HOME FRONT

By JAMES MARLOW and
GEORGE ZIELKE

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON—(AP)—A senate committee recommends that the allies break the back of German big industry.

There are two main reasons for this proposal for a hard peace which would ruin any German hope of again being an industrial leader:

1. To prevent Germany from re-arming after this war. Without big steel and chemical plants it couldn't.

2. To destroy Germany's grip on international cartels by which it has bored into other nations' economic and political life.

The recommendation came from the subcommittee on war mobilization—headed by Sen. Kilgore (D. W. Va.)—after months' long study of cartels.

An international cartel is an arrangement between private business groups in two or more countries. Through it they can control industry, trade and prices. It means they can operate independently of their own governments.

Maintenance of Cartels
"The German industrial group," says the committee, "has been the mainstay of the international cartel system."

"The industrial monopolists of Germany have worked long and ardently for pan-Germanism. They have willingly joined in partnership with Hitler and his lieutenants to achieve their ends."

"For all practical purposes, the social and political philosophies of the partners are indistinguishable."

The committee proposal doesn't mean that Germany should be reduced to an agricultural state. But it would be far-reaching. It says in part:

"A real disarmament program (for Germany) requires not only the dismantling of all direct munitions industries but also the dismantling and removal to the devastated areas of Europe of the primary munitions industries, including the metallurgical (steel) and chemical industries."

The Germans already have violently denounced the Morgenthau plan that Germany be destroyed as a modern industrial state.

Assailed By Dewey
Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in his last presidential campaign speech, said this plan so stirred up the Germans that it had the effect of providing them with 10 new divisions.

But President Roosevelt has instructed the foreign economic administration to speed up studies on how to control Germany's "power and capacity to make war in the future."

The committee, however, is not aiming only at the destruction of cartels with German interests involved. It wants all international cartels eliminated.

It says in effect that cartels not only gag economic development, free trade and free enterprise but lay the groundwork for war or political control of one country by another. It says:

"A cartel system dominated by American or British interests would produce the same undesirable results as the one exploited by the Germans."

The committee takes such a serious view of the power—past, present and future—of big German cartels that it recommends punishment for them after this war.
