University ASTP Program Closed

Capt. Robert G. Davis, former ROTC instructor at the University of Oregon, Capt. Thomas C. Davis, graduate and former athlete from the University of Montana, and Cpl. David Rosditzky, New York City, were on the campus this week from the 9th service command at Fort Douglas, Utah. They officially closed the army specialized training program that has been operating at the university since May, 1943.

Capt. Robert Davis left the university military staff in February, 1944, going to Washington, D. C. There he headed an auditing team covering colleges and universities on the east coast, returning in June, 1944, to the west coast for the same type of work.

The three army officials praised the manner in which the university has conducted the army program here.
