GI's In Apprentice Training Entitled To Monthly Allowances

Monthly allowances provided by the "GI Bill of Rights" will supplement wages earned by veterans who qualify for apprentice training, C. V. MacDonald, manager of the Eugene office of the United States employment service, explained Wednesday.

MacDonald said that to date approximately 600 veterans from coast to coast have taken advantage of apprentice training, and as many as 200,000 eventually may apply. However, fewer than 100 throughout the country have applied for and are receiving the monthly allowances provided by the "GI bill of rights." Eugene has seven who are receiving this aid, he said.

The manager stressed the advantages of such payments to veterans wishing to build up their earnings during the initial years of industrial training.

He observed that probably one of the reasons for the small number of veterans taking advantage of the training offered is that many jobs are open in war industries and veterans, through referral by the USES, are filling these jobs. When the war's end brings large-scale cutbacks in war plants, more and more veterans may be expected to enter apprentice training, he said. This training is provided by the war manpower commission, in its apprentice training program.

The "GI bill of rights" authorizes the veterans' administration to supplement the veteran apprentice's wages with a subsistence allowance of $50 to $75 a month, depending on whether he has dependents, MacDonald said. The combined earnings may not exceed a regular journeyman's wages in the trade for which he is training.

In cooperation with the Oregon apprenticeship council and with other state councils, labor unions, management groups and veterans' organizations, this program is aimed at building a foundation structure to give returning veterans their choice of entry into local programs of bona fide apprenticeship training for more than 120 skilled jobs in the building trades and other fields, according to MacDonald.

Further explanation of the program, and assistance in applying for the allowances, are available at the USES office, 1133 Willamette.

Any Yank who fought in North Africa, Sicily, Italy or France will tell you that the German 88-mm. gun, used on their tanks and tank destroyers, is a trouble-makin' baby. Now Uncle Sam has a pretty tough trouble-shooter of his own—the 90-mm. seen on the tank pictured above. Tank is the new "General Jackson" (M-36), produced at Fisher Body's Flint and Grand Blanc, Mich., plants.
