Budgeting Of Ration Points Now Problem

Tightening of wartime food controls will mean stricter budgeting of ration points for Mrs. America in the new year. Food requirements of the armed forces will be greater than was at one time anticipated, which means that there will be less for the home front, according to the OPA.

The return of several items to rationing was necessary so everyone will get his share, OPA says.

Blue ration stamps are going to figure more prominently in family marketing, as they will be required when buying canned asparagus, green or wax beans, corn, spinach and peas. And when it comes to spending red points, the housewife must remember that she will need them for buying almost all meats, that is, all cuts and grades of beef, all pork except a few fat cuts, all lamb except utility grades and some fore-quarter cuts, beef and veal liver, and most sausage products and canned meats.

Butter will now be "spread" more evenly throughout the country, if perhaps a little thinner in some spots.

To compensate partially for the return of most meats to rationing, the OPA has announced that red stamps will now be validated at the rate of 50 points a ration period instead of 30, as previously. Sugar stamp number 34 is still good for five pounds of sugar. However, OPA warns that this stamp must be used with caution because the stamp which will become valid Feb. 1 will have to last three months instead of two and a half.

Housewives have been urged by Frederic F. Janney, district OPA rationing executive, to destroy immediately all canceled food stamps to prevent their diversion into the black market.

"Don't give your old stamps to anybody but destroy them at once," Janney emphasized. "If they get out of your hands, they can only serve to put increased pressure on already low stocks as unscrupulous persons may still find ways of using them."

Kennedy. She married Charles Mossey there. Later, they moved to Chicago and then to San Francisco, Mr. Mossey dying there. In 1923, she married John Warehime in Cascade, Mont., and they came to Oregon in 1924, residing at Brownsville. In 1926 they moved to Riverview. Mr. Warehime died in 1930.

Surviving Mrs. Warehime are two children, Mrs. Smith, and Charles W. Mossey of Portland; also nine grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Phil Bartholomew mortuary, Springfield, Thursday, 2 p.m., burial to be in Rest Haven memorial park.

Local Girl Joins WAC On 20th Birthday

Ann Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Potter, The Bruce, completed her enlistment in the Womens Army corps in Eugene when she was given her oath at the local recruiting office by Lt. Elsie K. Nedrow, recruiting officer of the local Wac recruit station.

Miss Potter, who was sworn in on her 20th birthday, is a graduate of Eugene high school and has completed her sophomore year at the University of Oregon where she majored in liberal arts. She will leave for basic training at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa on Jan. 14. Upon completion of basic training, Miss Potter will then be sent to a technician school where she will receive training as an occupational therapist.

Co-op Gets 'Headache' Trying To Buy Books

It's getting so there's many a headache for the professors these days, they find at the University of Oregon. It's as tough to get "larkin" for the kids as it is to give it to 'em.

Last fall, for instance, the University Co-op store was asked to order certain accounting books by one of the professors. The order was wired in on Sept. 25.

The other day the 18th telegram, in a rapid fire exchange between the Co-op and the book-seller in San Francisco, was received. It was a long one, the culmination of a series of wires running something like this: "Books being shipped today." "Where are books?" "Sorry, out of stock. Ship next week."

"Where are books?" "Books will be shipped tomorrow." "Where are books?" and so on ad infinitum for 17 telegrams. The telegrams, in fact, cost as much as the books almost.

Well, the books are finally on their way but the class doesn't really need them much now. Most of the work in them is finished. So is the professor. So is the co-op. The final decision is to return to an older model textbook for the duration—it's easier. Surer, too.
