

Scout Council Makes 1944 Objectives In Successful Year

The actual record made during the year, according to the beginning of last year's report of the council, Boy Scouts of America, was "By the end of '44," the council president, J. R. Bruckart, said in his report to the membership.

The report features the council's operation, size of staff, committees, establishment of a trust fund, leadership, long-range plans, Lucky Boy, advancement, and membership.

A brief and concise report of the council during the year, compared to 1943, Bruckart states, "we are proud of the accomplishments and desire to express our appreciation and that of our membership to the scoutmasters, senior leaders, and commissioners whose efforts have made this possible."

Information given in the report, first, the objective for the end of 1943 to be reached by the end of '44," the record made during the year, and finally, the objective to be reached during 1945, Bruckart said.

North Star Bright Guide For Travellers At Night

By J. HUGH PRUETT
Astronomer, General Extension Division, University of Oregon.

In the night we had left our troop ship. Presently, beneath overcast skies—and with no idea of direction—we were wearily plodding through a dark and strange French countryside. But just before dawn the clouds broke rapidly.

"The north star!" cried an eager voice. There it gleamed above the rocky road ahead of us, our "very own" north star. Later, when in the clear June dawn the skylarks sang joyously high above the green fields of Brittany, our directions were still secure even though our faithful starry guide had faded.

So very helpful has the north star often been to those lost in the night, that all should know how to find it. Early in the evening at this time of year, look for the familiar big dipper low in the sky a little east of north. The two outer stars in the dipper's bowl, the two farthest to the right, are known as the pointers. An imaginary line drawn between the pointers, then —or very close to—another star of about the brightness of these pointers. This is the north star, also known as polaris, or the pole star.

Polaris, from our part of the world, measures about half way up from the northern horizon to the overhead point. But it looks much higher than this due to the illusory widening of the sky near the horizon. As one travels toward the earth's pole, the north star appears higher and higher in the sky. Right at the pole it is practically overhead. At the equator, polaris is on the northern horizon; farther south, always below the horizon.

For general purposes we may assume that the pole star appears fixed in the sky and is always due north. But it is actually one degree from the real celestial pole, or the place among the stars right over the earth's north pole. Thus it seems to move in a very small circle around the true pole during a day. Twice a day, when it is right above and below the true pole, the star is due north.

Polaris is slowly approaching the celestial pole. At the time of Columbus, it was 3½ degrees distant; in Julius Caesar's day, 15 degrees. It will now continue to get closer—and thus be a still better north star—until 2100 A. D. when it will be less than one half degree in error. But by 15,000 A. D. our star will be so far from the pole that some other must inherit the name. The heir will be bright Vega, the finest star now in the north-west in the evening.

Two-year increases in membership showed a 72 per cent increase in scouts, a 124 per cent increase in cubs, a 97 per cent increase in scout leaders, a 173 per cent increase in cub leaders, and a 93 per cent increase in total membership. The number of troops increased 48 per cent in the two-year period and packs increased 64 per cent. The objective for 1945 shown in the report is "to have a total enrollment of 3701 scouts, scouters, cubs and cubbers in 87 troops and 28 packs."

Outstripping the membership goal which was set to be reached "by the end of '44," the record showed that there were 3331 scouts, scouters, cubs and cubbers in 77 troops and 23 packs as compared to the objective of 2830 scouts, scouters, cubs and cubbers in 70 troops and 18 packs. This was 501 members over the goal, and seven troops and five packs over the 1944 objective.

Society Slates Field Trip, Campus Lecture

Some recent discoveries about fossil whales and turtles in Oregon will be presented by Dr. E. L. Packard, head of the geology department at Oregon State college and formerly with the University of Oregon, at the January meeting of the Eugene Natural History society Friday at 8:00 p.m. in room 121 Condon hall on the campus.

Dr. Packard has done original research on Oregon whales and turtles for some years and will illustrate his lecture with slides.

Sunday the field trip will be to Cottage Grove dam to visit fossil localities. Both the lecture and the field trip are open to the public as well as members. Transportation for the field trip will cost a cent a mile. Old clothes should be worn and lunches provided by all participants. Dr. Warren D. Smith, president of the society, advises.

Students Study Load Subject Of Survey

The possibility that the able college student carrying the usual 16-hour schedule does not have enough to do is brought out in a recent study of the effects of acceleration of the college course, made at Ohio State university and sent to the psychology department at the University of Oregon.

While such studies are not the final word, Dr. Howard Taylor, head of psychology training here points out, the conclusions reached are interesting because the acceleration of studying has been much questioned.

Columbus, it was 3½ degrees distant; in Julius Caesar's day, 15 degrees. It will now continue to get closer—and thus be a still better north star—until 2100 A. D. when it will be less than one half degree in error. But by 15,000 A. D. our star will be so far from the pole that some other must inherit the name. MONTGOMERY WARDS' TELEGRAM TO THE PRESIDENT

January 17, 1945.

The President of the United States, White House, Washington, D. C.

Mr. President:

At your personal direction, the army seized Wards' stores on December 28, 1944.

On the same day, you directed that a suit be filed in the federal court to decide whether you had any right to order this seizure.

The constitution makes it the supreme law of the land that, "No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law." The supreme court has said that an order which is before the courts should not be executed before the judges have declared its legality.

In defiance of this safeguard of liberty, you have ordered the army to place in immediate effect the arbitrary and illegal orders of the war labor board without awaiting the decision of the court.

You have ordered these war labor board directives placed in immediate effect despite the fact that the courts have held them to be legally unenforceable, and despite the fact that in issuing them the board refused to give Wards the hearings required by the war labor disputes act.

You have ordered the army to place in effect a wage directive at Portland, Oregon, which a representative of the war labor board admitted on January 9, 1945, was unworkable.

You have ordered the army to place in effect wage directives at St. Paul, Minnesota, which unfairly discriminate against sixty per cent of the employees. When several hundred walked off their jobs in protest against your command, the army forced them to return by threats of criminal prosecution.

You have ordered the army at Denver, Colorado, and Jamaica, New York, to increase wage rates which the war labor board admitted were already higher than those paid by Wards' competitors. No increases have been ordered against these competitors.

Finally, and most importantly, you have ordered the army to impose that form of the closed shop called maintenance of membership. Obedience to your order will require the discharge of all employees who have chosen not to maintain their union membership, and deny to them the liberty to choose whether or not they wish to remain union members.

Wards, in opposing the closed shop in all of its forms, has not been prompted by any feeling of anti-unionism. Wards has fully recognized the freedom of all of its employees to join or not to join a union, as they wished, and has assured all employees that their opportunity with the company will be the same whether they are union members or not. Wards' refusal to accept the closed shop arises solely from a determination that its employees be secure in their individual liberty to join a union or not—free of the fear of physical injury, damage to their property, or loss of their jobs.

Wards, in opposing the closed shop, has not acted against the wishes even of its unionized employees. In the seized store at Chicago on December 15, 1944, ninety per cent of the employees through a signed petition declared against the maintenance of membership requirement. Spokesmen for the unionized employees in the four seized stores at Detroit have openly stated that they do not desire maintenance of membership.

Wards has been singled out for unequal treatment. The army has been used to enforce orders of questioned legality without first giving the courts an opportunity to make a decision. These are the methods of dictatorship.

The legality of your order commanding the seizure of Wards' properties is now before the courts for decision. Wards respectfully calls upon you to order the army to withhold the taking of action which would deprive Wards' employees of their liberty, and Wards and its customers of their property until the case has been decided in the courts as required by the constitution.
