

Oregon Dads, Alumni Urge Building Fund

Two more resolutions urging the state legislature to give immediate attention to the actual and essential building needs of the Oregon state system of higher education were passed in Eugene over the week-end.

The executive board of the Oregon Dads' association, in an annual meeting here, passed one such resolution, and the other was passed by the University of Oregon Alumni association at a dinner meeting Saturday evening. Both resolutions making special comment on post-war requirements.

The Dads' resolution called the present facilities inadequate.

called attention to the responsibility for educational aid to returning veterans, and termed the $2,237,000 request of the state board of higher education a minimum estimate of needs. Resolution of the alumni took a like view of minimum needs and the sufficiency of present facilities, pointed to the expected post-war increase in enrollment, and said the budget cut to $1,000,000 for the next biennium "drastically curtailed prospects" for meeting the needs of the system. Immediate attention to the actual and essential building needs.

Business Session

Lynn A. Fetz of Portland presided at the alumni business session. A report of the nominating committee was made as follows: for president, Robert S. Miller of Portland and Charles Huggins, Salem; for vice-president, Mrs. Mildred Bagley Graham, Eugene, and Gordon Wilson, Portland. Ballots will appear in the February issue of Old Oregon, alumni magazine, and are to be mailed to the alumni office by March 25.

H. Abbott Lawrence, Portland architect, spoke to the group of his trip east last summer to study plans and construction of student union buildings on major campuses of the country. His lecture was illustrated by slides shown by Dr. Will V. Norris, acting head of the physics department of the university, who accompanied Lawrence on the trip. Plans were discussed for the Erb Memorial union which is to be constructed on the university campus when materials are available.

Meeting in lieu of the annual group meeting of the Dads the executive board conducted the business of that organization under the chairmanship of Gene Vandeneysde, Salem, president. It was voted to continue the present officers of the organization, expecting that a general meeting could be held next year if government restrictions on travel are lifted. Officers are: president, Gene Vandeneysde; vice-president, Loy W. Rowling, Eugene; secretary, John H. Carlin, Salem; executive secretary, Dean Karl W. Onthank, University of Oregon.

The board authorized cooperation with local alumni groups and other agencies in placing Oregonians in the high schools of the state. Ed Averill, Portland, chairman of the Donald Erb Memorial scholarship committee, reported that $3500 has already been pledged toward the goal of $25,000. A committee was appointed to study the housing problem on the university campus, especially as it is related to returning veterans, married and unmarried.

The board was informed that a fourth of the returning veterans are married and the problem of their housing is already acute.

population growth would create a future problem. About $1,400,000 of the area's valuation is in the Bethel district. It would be difficult to locate a school where some students would not have to cross the railroad, he said.

Barbee pointed out that consolidation has proved successful in many other areas and have produced better schools. He said he is squarely for consolidation, believing it good not only for Santa Clara but also for other districts.

Ed C. Hart pointed out that if the various school areas in Eugene should separate into small districts they'd be where the outlying districts are today, and they certainly wouldn't be likely to take such a step. "I don't fear losing our identity. Have the Eugene school areas lost their identity? They certainly haven't. I expect they have built it up."

O. A. Thompson, saying that at first he was opposed to the plan, declared he has changed. He expressed belief money would be saved over a period of years. None of the outlying districts could take care of their needs without bonds—and that is costly—since interest cuts down actual return on the money by about 35 per cent, he said.

O. K. Baldwin said he was afraid the Eugene high school might be built before the new junior high and he'd like to be assured on the latter's location.

Clarence Hines, assistant superintendent in Eugene, explained in answer to a question that it could happen in the future that the Eugene students alone would fill present junior high schools and in that case it might be questionable if Eugene would continue accepting outside students.

L. C. Moffitt, county school superintendent, explained the procedure for circulating petitions and outlined the qualifications of voters.

John New Group Affiliating with the newly organized association of Oregon school board directors, the board voted to pay $10 dues for its first year of membership.

Provided sufficient funds will be available from the federal government under the Lanham act, the board granted approval for the leasing of part of the annex to the Bartle court apartments. This lease will provide two additional rooms for the school district's nursery school on 11th Avenue and Pearl.

Members of this committee are James H. McMeunin, Portland, Eugene McClung, Portland, John H. Carlin, Salem, and W. H. Baillie, Salem.

SPRINGFIELD

Gasoline Bids To Be Opened In March

SPRINGFIELD—The city council Monday evening discussed petitions for many proposed sewers for the city, and petitions for streets. Any action on this has been delayed until the next regular meeting and in some cases until sufficient funds are available.

It was decided that the city would begin advertising immediately for bids for the gasoline supply for Springfield offices. Bids will be opened at the next meeting on March 12.

Several months ago the construction of sewers was approved for the south portion of the city and at the present time the council members are considering a change in the layout of these sewers due to an expensive cut which would be necessary and was found after the contract had been made. Members of the street committee were instructed by the council to investigate this possibility and a report will be ready for the next regular session.

Restaurant operators' licenses were approved Monday night for Verne Culp and A. D. Wells.

not question the importance of all these other projects everywhere in the state," said Maxey. "However, the Willamette project is one which is approaching reality. It is something very definite to work on and no project right now means as much in immediate benefits to so many people in the state."

Claude Buchanan, of Corvallis, member of the Willamette commission presented the main arguments. He pointed out that in addition to soil conservation through flood control and the safety of a huge population, the project carries with it irrigation and navigation features and some limited power development features which make it one of the most practical combination projects in the United States.

shall be passed on his approval, eliminating necessity of presenting them to the finance committee. The manager shall handle sales of property, but will work with the finance committee on those matters until he becomes better acquainted with the city. All warrants and checks for payments of money shall be signed by the mayor and the manager.

"We make these recommendations," Bailey said, "feeling that the city manager, being administrative head of the city, should know at all times everything that is going on. The council and the city manager should never be working at cross-purposes." The manager is to make such reports as the council may call for, but ordinarily this shall be a brief verbal statement of the state of the city, council agreed.

On recommendation of Councilman Crumbaker, City Manager Seeger was directed to make a study of the uses to which the city hall is being put and a report of total revenue it brings the city, with recommendations as to possible reorganization for more effective use of the facilities.

Following City Engineer William Clubb's report that the city's electrical code is out-of-date and irregular, council voted to request that the electrical board and inspector reorganize and bring it up to date and present their recommendations to the council.

W. W. Porter, secretary-treasurer of the army committee, submitted the committee's financial report. The armory has been turned back by the federal government.

It was voted to raise the city engineer's salary from $312.50 to $350 per month.
