WFA Warns Of Foodstuffs Lack

SEATTLE, March 24.—(AP)—"We won't go hungry, but there will be some decided changes in our diet," John J. Flynn, district representative of the war food administration's office of supply, declared last night in warning that the full impact of the war will reach the northwest in a shortage of foodstuffs even if the European war ends this year.
 In addition to the meat situation, which he described as "most alarming," Flynn said there also would be fewer potatoes, fewer eggs and less sugar.
 Adequate supplies of whole grains and cereal products will be available, but fruits and vegetables will be adequate "only if city people help the farmers with their larders," and continue their victory gardens.
 Most canned fruits and vegetables will reach the "scarce" stage next month, he said.
 Regulations have cut the western Washington allowable meat kill for March to 59 per cent of what it was in December last year, he added.
 George Francis Train, six times legally declared insane, had a brain which weighed 54 ounces, the 27th heaviest known to science.
