Women Voters Told Need for School Aid

Federal aid to education is every bit as important as spending millions of dollars on development of atomic energy and building of a huge army and navy, Dr. Henry M. Gunn, city school superintendent told the League of Women Voters here Tuesday night.

The penalty of ignorance, he said, is not confined to one state. However, there are two things to guard against in any bill proposing such aid to schools. One is federal assistance on the basis of daily attendance and the other is federal control of education.

Dr. Gunn contends that all problems of education should be handled locally. Members of the League of Women Voters were asked to write their congressmen urging passage of the Patman Housing Bill, the Wagner, Ellender, Taft Housing Bill, and extension of the price control act beyond June, 1946.

Writer Foresees Development Of Japanese Atomic Charter

By JAMES D. WHITE SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. (AP)—It looks as if the first atomic charter of the atomic age has been drafted in Japan, whose people first felt atomic warfare. Japan's new constitution thus can be either history's greatest joke on humanity, or its most significant turning point. This depends upon whether the people of the world make the atomic use of one of brief and final destruction, or one of peaceful cooperation and construction.

For the new constitution goes far beyond the United Nations charter and abstains from the basic pillar of national sovereignty as we have known it—the right to defend oneself by force. It denies that force altogether, and throws itself completely upon the mercy of other peoples, trusting them to act in humanity and justice. No other national or interna-

Nazis in Hungary Die by Strangulation

BUDAPEST (AP)—A crowd of 8000 hysterical Hungarians saw Ferenc Szalasi, prime minister of Hungary during the German occupation, executed by strangulation yesterday in company with three other pro-Nazi leaders.

While the screaming mob watched the contortions of the four condemned men, 4000 others who could not get into Marko jail smashed their way through two doors in an effort to see the execution. They were finally checked after Hungarian police fired rifles into the air.

The three who died with Szalasi were Josef Geza, former Nazi organizer; Károly Beregffy-Kerger, former minister of war, and Gabor Vajna, former minister of the interior.

It would make full citizens out of the industrial slaves, indentured prostitutes, and domestic chattels who now loom large among half the race—the women of Japan.

It would replace with civic rights what the Japanese cop has considered his divine right to torture and bully.

It holds great hope for the Japanese people because it might give them a chance to use constructively instead of destructively their well-known tropism to work together.
