Doctors Find Smoking Interferes With Seeing Well in Dark Places

EDWARD W. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY — (AP) — Dr. [illegible] Sheard, of the Mayo [illegible] told biologists here today [illegible] smoking two standard cigarettes interferes with seeing well in the dark.

The cigarettes cause a 15 to [illegible] minute delay in the time eyes [illegible] to adjust themselves to [illegible] well in dim light, such as a [illegible] darkened theater or starlight, the [illegible] explained.

He said it made no difference whether the cigarette smoke was inhaled or not. When filters were used that extracted the nicotine from the smoke, there was no effect on night vision. Smoking cubebs and corn-silk cigarettes did not affect the eyes.

Dr. Sheard concluded that the nicotine, rather than anything else in smoke, has the bad effect on eyes for night seeing.

Breathing pure oxygen, a practice of aviation flying at night, did not overcome the effect of the nicotine.

6000 Tests Made

Before the war the late Raymond Pearl, of Johns Hopkins University, reported tests on about 6000 human beings indicating that smoking tobacco shortens life. But he said it would require tests on 100,000 to be certain of this. Dr. Pearl died before the extensive experiments were made.

Today a similar experiment on the life span of rats was reported here by H. B. Haag, Jr., J. H. Weatherby, Doris Fordham, and P. S. Larson of the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond.

The rats could not smoke cigarettes, but the human smoking was said to be simulated as closely as possible by exposing the animals, in a cage, to a nearby machine that emittted about one big puff of smoke each minute.

The animals that were exposed daily to the cigarettes lived an average of 642 days. The non-smoked rats lived an average of 631 days.

But the non-smokers grew fatter and heavier than the smoking rats. Otherwise there was little difference. The blood pressures were the same and autopsies after death revealed no damage done to the smokers as compared with the non-smokers.

Sgt. Robert L. Tramp Death Confirmed

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Tramp, 1877 Willamette St., have received confirmation from the War Department of the death of their son, Sgt. Robert L. Tramp in March, 1945.

Sergeant Tramp, who was 21 at the time of his death, was killed in the crash of his B-29 on a flight over Nagoya. The entire crew perished in the crash. Sergeant Tramp, waist gunner on the plane, is buried now in an American cemetery in Nagoya, his mother said. The family is planning to have his body brought home.

The young airman attended high school at Marshfield, and was a student at the University of Oregon where he was associated with Sigma Chi, men's fraternity. He entered the air forces in April, 1942, and went overseas to Saipan in December, 1944.

Sergeant Tramp was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Service Medal, and the Purple Heart.

Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, Virgil, and two sisters, Mrs. Bob O'Conner and Miss True Tramp.

He is survived by his wife, Geneva; one son; and one sister, Mrs. Mary Wallace of Eugene.

One million people were injured in traffic accidents in 1945.

When the young men who boarded with her left for the service, Mrs. Nina George promised them a "homecoming party" when they came back. And Wednesday night she gave the party.

Six veterans showed up at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday for the reunion supper at the Del Rey Cafe. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Karl Waggoner, Mrs. Pearl Teague, Mr. Mrs. Merle Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Willie, Jim Gavelin, Morris Reed, Harold Black and his sister, Mrs. Helen Ivy.

The "going over" you give your home each spring can be a much simpler task this year if you enlist help at Safeway. How to Make Spring Housecleaning Easier

The room-at-a-time method of spring housecleaning leaves most of the house livable during housecleaning and it helps get rid of lots of clutter. I like to do a room a week, then the whole job isn't so tiring and seems much easier.

HERE'S HOW I DO IT:

. . . Dismantle the room by removing knickknacks, pictures, draperies, curtains, window shades, rugs, and smaller pieces of furniture.

. . . Move the larger pieces of furniture to the center of the floor and cover with sheets.

. . . Start at the ceiling and work down, cleaning walls, woodwork, and windows in that order.

. . . Clean furniture, then the floors and rugs.

. . . Clean blinds, wash curtains, clean pictures and small furniture. Be sure to cover every inch of exposed space with some sort of cleaner.

. . . Clean mirrors and picture glass with window cleaner. Use soap and water on knickknacks wherever possible.

. . . Reassemble the room and move to the next one. In no time the entire house is spick-and-span.
