

Zoners to Tour Coastal Cities

The governor's interim committee on rural planning and zoning, which toured fringe areas near Eugene and other Oregon cities this month, now plans a tour of coastal cities September 9 and 10, Committee Chairman William B. Bowes wrote City Manager Deane Seeger here Tuesday.

Bowes wrote that the committee was grateful to all communities visited for the manner in which arrangements were made to afford the committee an opportunity to discuss fringe and rural development.

"We were able to realize more fully than ever before the need for legislation to enable county officials to invoke some type of control if rural areas are to develop in an orderly and efficient manner," Bowes stated.

On the coast tour the committee will investigate and study development adjacent to highways.

California is the second largest state in the union with a total land area of 156,800 square miles.

Six UO Barristers Keep Record Clear

When five University of Oregon law school graduates and one university student passed the bar examinations, they kept perfect the record that has been maintained for seven successive years now, according to Dean Orlando J. Hollis of the law school. For seven years every Oregon law graduate who has taken the examination has passed.

Now privileged to practice law in the state are the following Oregon graduates: LeRoy Elliott and Gerald Kabler, both of Eugene; George Luoma, Portland; John Hathaway, Tillamook; and Herman Hahner, Fairfield, Wash. James Buell of Portland, who took the examination by special permission, is a student in the law school who will complete work for his degree in December.

Timber Sales Planned By Willamette Forest

Newell Wright, Portland, from the forest service regional office, will be in the Willamette National Forest several days this week to assist in preparing appraisals for several large sales of national forest timber.

Largest of these will be the sale of approximately 75 million feet in the Salmon Creek drainage, ten miles from Oakridge. Several smaller sales are being prepared in the Fall Creek district.

The sales will be advertised in September.

FINED $200

Roy Wyatt, of Springfield, plywood worker, was fined $150 in Justice Court Monday for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

He was also fined another $50 for driving an automobile while his operator's license was revoked.

Building Work Has Jobs Open

A serious labor shortage now exists in nearly all phases of building and construction work, according to Ray McGinnis, secretary-treasurer of the Central Labor Council.

Jobs open include the following:

Twenty men for Cottage Grove Dam, with lowest wage $1.15 per hour.

Ten laborers for Cottage Grove housing project, low wage of $1.25.

Two powder men and two jack hammer men, low wage of $1.50 per hour.

Ten men for road job up McKenzie, with cabins or board and room available, with low wage at $1.50 an hour.

Bricklayers are needed, low wage is $2 per hour.

Twenty painters needed at a minimum wage of $1.50 per hour.

Ten men needed for Porter Yett road work between Eugene and Springfield, at minimum wage of $1.15 per hour.

Ten men needed at fairgrounds with wages ranging from $1.25 to $1.40 an hour.

Six men needed at the alcohol plant, minimum of $1.15 an hour.

A two-year job with the Ace Construction Co. needs an unlimited number of men at minimum wage of $1.15, and the Ace Construction Co. has called for 20 laborers also.

McGinnis pointed out that most of the jobs are steady. All applicants must report to Room 204 in the Labor Temple at Sixth and Willamette for clearance.
