

ent Reminds Garden Care

through irrigation where possible, pest control, harvest and late seedings for winter crops are all important during August in the average garden, reminds W. B. Parker, assistant county agent.

From many parts of the county, more people indicate that more people had good gardens this year than ever before, even more than the war years, according to Ralph Clark, assistant extension horticulturist at Oregon State College. He says more people have used irrigation, an important item in better gardens a longer season.

Successful gardeners always pay to irrigate thoroughly at less frequent intervals compared with frequent watering which merely freshens the foliage and encourages the plants to come to the surface for a greater amount of water. A good soaking means less water and keeps roots deep where they won't dry up when a sudden day hits, Parker adds.

It is no time to let down on spraying or dusting, as unprotected plants can become casualties overnight by a sudden invasion of pests. Little black flea beetles sometimes descend on late crops, kale or cauliflower and riddle the leaves in a way if not handled promptly with rotenone, DDT or some other mixture.

Indians Agree to Court Test

INDIAN VILLAGE, Ore. — Until and unless the white man goes back on a treaty signed 1855, Columbia River Indians continue to fish for salmon their ancient tribal way, chiefs decided Thursday.

That was the substance of an agreement arrived at between representatives of the Yakima, Klamath and Warm Springs Indians with state fish and game officials of Oregon and Washington.

The Indians agreed to the initiation of "friendly" test cases to determine whether new fishing laws will stand in court against the old 91-year-old treaty. The new law prohibits taking of fish by any method other than hook and line after close of the commercial season, but the treaty allowed Indians the concession of a season's fishing with their traditional dip-nets.

Chases Owner; Money Changes Hands

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — "I know you won't believe this," Moreland told attendants at a police hospital, "but..."

"I'd just parked my car. My wife Mary, and I started for the grocery. I had a $10 bill in my hand. The car's brakes must have slipped, because the next thing I knew it had followed us about 100 feet down the hill, stopped the curb and knocked me down."

"Any witnesses?" he was asking as doctors patched up their cuts and bruises.

"One," Moreland answered. He grabbed the $10 bill from my hand while I lay on the sidewalk. I got up and grabbed back."

Packers See Meat Shortage

CHICAGO — (AP) — Spokesmen for the meat packing and livestock industries expressed disappointment Thursday over the new livestock price ceilings and predicted shipments to market would drop to a mere trickle for the next 60 days.

The overall supply will continue "very light" for the next 10 months, the producers said.

The American Meat Institute, representing the big packers, termed the ceilings a "blow" to producers because they were lower than could prevail under an open market. The institute warned that the new prices might bring a return to the black market.

"While the new livestock ceilings may stimulate production more than the old ceilings, much depends on the future price of feed grains which are not under price control, and the relationship between feed and livestock prices," the institute said.

The new ceilings, effective within 10 days, include a $20.25 top for cattle, compared with the old ceiling of $18. Choice cattle hit a $30 top price in Chicago and Kansas City Wednesday. The new price for hogs was pegged at $16.25 and $29 for lambs.

Honesty on Streetcar Brings Five Stitches

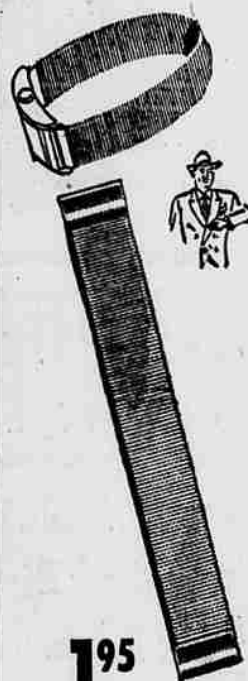

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Twenty-three-year-old John Walters stepped off a streetcar Wednesday night, then remembered he'd forgotten to pay his fare.

Recrossing the street he shouted to the conductor who extended a hand through the window to receive the token. Walters turned to go back to the sidewalk, was struck by another trolley. He suffered forehead lacerations which required five stitches.
