Forum Will Give Tax Plan Views

Eugene voters and taxpayers will have a chance Tuesday evening on Lane County Town Meeting to hear the state's leading proponents of the three per cent gross income tax proposal, up for a decision from Oregon voters on Nov. 5, advance their arguments for passage of this most controversial measure on the fall ballot.

Joe Dunne, ex-state representative and leader of the movement to pass the bill, will be in Eugene from Portland, accompanied by James McKenzie, state Townsend Club manager, to lead the affirmative section of the forum.

A formidable opposition is expected from S. Eugene Allen, editor of the Oregon Labor Press and member of the Portland school board. Allen will be teamed with Dr. Calvin Crumbaker, professor of economics at the University of Oregon and Eugene councilman.

The American Veterans Committee and Radio Station KUGN, joint sponsors of the program, invite all interested persons to attend the meeting, which will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Center, 1078 Williamette. The meeting will be broadcast from 8:15 to 9 p.m., over KUGN.

VA Plans Pay After 30 Days

With 14,000 checks to mail to veteran students this fall, the Veteran's Administration hopes to forward first subsistence checks 30 days after the start of school, R. J. Gridley, University of Oregon veteran's office staff member, announced Monday.

These 14,000 veterans under the rehabilitation training program are enrolled in 22 colleges and universities in Oregon. Veteran's guidance centers have been established at all of these schools to enable VA to keep accurate records and make prompt payments of subsistence, Gridley pointed out.

A veteran must be in school for at least 30 days before subsistence payments start, Gridley said, and in some cases a slight further delay is unavoidable.

He advised students that any change of address from that on their certificate of eligibility should be sent to the VA immediately, in order to prevent non-delivery of checks. Veterans who change schools are also required to obtain supplementary certificates from their VA office.

Rings of Brazilian professional men signify their calling. Doctors wear emeralds; lawyers rubies; engineers sapphires, dentists topazes.

Three other university students who received store privilege and scholarship awards last spring were Jean A. McCormick, of Portland, Mary J. Copeland, Junction City, and Mary Kay Crumbaker of Eugene. Miss McCormick is attending the University of Pittsburgh, Miss Copeland is at Northwestern University. Miss Crumbaker did not accept the award.

Anna Louise Holliston, 65, of Creswell, died Sunday at a Eugene hospital. She came to Creswell in 1912, and was a member of the Norwegian Lutheran Church, the Creswell chapter of Eastern Star, and the Presbyterian Aid Society.

Mrs. Holliston was born March 2, 1881 at Hanley Falls, Minn., and was married to William Holliston in that state in 1912. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Rebecca Kelson, of Shelby, Mont., and Mrs. Mary K. Olsen, Detroit Lakes, Minn.; six nephews and five nieces.

Services will be held Thursday at the Schwering Mortuary in Creswell, with interment in Rest Haven Memorial Park in Eugene.

In the first quarter of the 14th Century, the lester was an important part of every large household.

Circus Comes, Sans Housing

The circus is coming to town. And the Pollack Bros. circus is finding out first hand just what the Eugene housing problem is.

"It's hard enough to find accommodations for our performers," wailed Roy Farrell, business agent for the circus, "but we can't find a thing for our elephants."

The homeless elephants are due to arrive Monday evening by train and they may be down-right peevish, according to Farrell, if housing hasn't been found for them.

Also arriving Monday from Olympia, where the show closed Saturday, were Sonny Moore and his dogs in a specially equipped truck; Saranath the Second, musical horse who plays Swanee River and other songs on bells, in his custom-built steel trailer; clowns, aerialists and other performers in trailers and cars; and the animals by train.

Reserved seat tickets to the "close-up" circus may be bought at Millers Department Store for $1.65 and $2.25. General admission tickets are being sold for $1 by the Business and Professional Women, American Legion and the Active Club.

The show will open at the Eugene Armory Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. and will play at that time each evening through Friday. Matinees will show at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Proceeds from the show are marked for the Eugene park and playground fund.

Oregon Factory Payrolls Rise

SALEM—(P)—The number of factory workers in Oregon increased 13.3 per cent during the first half of this year, or double the national gain of 6.2 per cent, the State Unemployment Compensation Commission said Monday.

Oregon's industrial jobs increased from 105,601 to 118,576 from January to June.

The expansion occurred in spite of a reduction in shipyard employment from 14,813 to 7,719 during the period. Lumber and logging firms accounted for most of the gain, rising from 42,173 to 54,275. Food processing plants increased from 16,495 to 20,931.

Employment by all firms covered by state unemployment compensation reached 2773,317 in June, a gain of almost 12 per cent since January. Among non-manufacturing firms, construction was the leader, advancing from 12,290 to 17,718 jobs in the first half of the year.

The commission said continued seasonal demand for workers indicate that employment now has reached an all-time high for any peacetime year.
