Henry Wallace Warns Against Effect of Republican Victory

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — Former Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace believes that if the Republicans gain control of the House, the nation will learn "the full meaning of real inflation," and of "sudden deflation."

In his first speech since his Madison Square Garden address Sept. 16, Wallace Thursday night addressed a mass meeting sponsored by Southern California progressives. He virtually ignored foreign issues but said that peace prospects had "brightened greatly."

Wallace prefaced his remarks with a five-point declaration:

"First, I am still a Democrat.

"Second, more than ever before I am a progressive.

"Third, I am happy that the prospects for a peaceful world have brightened greatly during the past month.

"Fourth, I want to do everything I can to elect progressive Democrats to Congress.

"Fifth, if the Democrats fail to control the 80th Congress, there is only one way in which they can get control back again and that is by becoming more progressive."

The Republicans, he said, were appealing to local and temporary irritations in their efforts to win the elections.

"If they win control of the House . . . we shall then learn the full meaning of real inflation, sudden deflation, and of Soviet baiting, labor baiting, war provoking tactics which will make the bipartisan bloc of the past Congress seem pale by comparison," he said.

He named five men as the only Republican progressives in Congress—Welch of California, Fulton of Pennsylvania, Hull of Wisconsin, La Follette of Indiana, and Baldwin of New York—and said the latter two were purged. He warned his listeners not to be deceived by Republican attempts to masquerade as progressives.

Local Man Clears Name

John Merritt McGee, Sr., a professor in the University of Oregon department of chemistry, has been an anxious man recently.

Wrongly accused of various crimes since an automobile thief who took his car last June began using identification papers in the vehicle as a basis for embezzlements, the professor came to Eugene police for aid in clearing his name Thursday.

The latest in a series of mistaken identity mishaps was a news dispatch from Concord, Mass., which said police there had arrested a "John McGee, Eugene, Ore.," on armed robbery charges.

Perhaps the man arrested in Concord will prove to be the thief. At any rate, Professor McGee wants it known that the man who stole his automobile has also taken illegal possession of his good name.

Clowning More Than Profession To Veteran Funny Man Randow

By BILL WASMANN

"Papa" Randow is a good clown, one of the best that ever played in Budapest . . . so good, in fact, that when clowns are mentioned in Budapest, someone is sure to remember the antics of Papa in his baggy Pierrot suit.

But when you can clown like Papa, your destiny is not just Budapest and village street carnivals. Your audience becomes the whole world and you travel, as Papa did, from Hungary across Europe, to England and to the United States. Thus spoke Gene Randow, who is in a clown act this week in the Pollack Bros. Circus at the armory. Final show will be Friday at 8:15 p.m.

A modest, reserved fellow, Gene made skillful attempts to place his talent for making laughs in the background by changing the subject to his father, Papa Randow.

Clowning with the Randows is more than a business, more than a profession, it is a tradition, handed down from father to son. "Papa has been a clown for over half a century," Gene said, "and I've been in the show business, doing clown acts and trapeze work for 17 years."

When the war began Gene and a friend had a trapeze act which was selling well. The boys joined the Army and Gene was assigned to an entertainment job. His friend is still in the service, in Japan. Gene is awaiting his friend's discharge so that they can begin their act again.

"There are two kinds of clowns," Gene averred. "There is the kind that is corny, and the kind that's really funny."

He said that after more than half a century of clowning in acts all over the world, before all types of audiences, including the King and Queen of England, the Randows know what is genuinely funny.

The change from business suit to "working clothes" was made in a matter of minutes and Gene, in clown suit, Holligan hat, and his face covered with clown-white, entered the ring.

For the first few seconds there was no laughter, no noise, then a little girl tittered, someone else joined her and in a few more seconds the sharp squeals of youngsters flooded the armory.

A little girl in a red coat bounced up and down on her seat. Her eyes bugged as if they would pop out. "Wheeeeeee, mommy, I love him, he's so funny." She squealed.

"Clowning, with the Randows is more than a business, more than a profession, it's a tradition," Gene said.

Order Cutting Loaves Revoked

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The Agriculture Department Friday paved the way for return of bread loaves and rolls to normal sizes by revoking the size-reduction order of last June.

Last June 30 the department ordered bakers to cut the size of bread loaves and rolls 10 per cent to save wheat for world famine relief.

The revocation presumably means that bakers in states with laws setting weights for bread loaves and rolls will return to normal size loaves almost immediately.

In many cases, states suspended their weight requirements to assist in the campaign against famine. In states not having such laws, it will be up to the individual baker whether he returns to the larger loaf.

Consignment Sales Okay

The ban on consignment selling of bread also was lifted.

Originally instituted to cut down bakery deliveries as a means of conserving tires and manpower during the war, this order later was adapted to the famine program.

Under consignment selling, a baker delivers the bread to stores with the understanding he will take it back if the grocer is unable to sell it. This frequently results in waste of slightly stale bread.

The revoked order also required the enrichment of white bread and rolls. Agriculture Department officials said they thought bakers would continue this practice voluntarily.

The order also banned the making of more than 20 varieties of bread and 12 varieties of rolls. Bakers now may make as many varieties as they wish.

Reasons for Revocation

The department said the order was revoked because of improved supply of cereal grains and because of President Truman's announced policy of accelerating government decontrols of foods.

The department also canceled a number of other food orders, including a delegation of authority to the OPA to ration meats, fats, oils, cheese and processed foods because none of these items are now rationed.

The OPA will keep its wartime authority to ration sugar.

SPRINGFIELD

Nominating Petitions For Directors Due

SPRINGFIELD — Nominating petitions for candidates to fill one position on Willamalane Park and Recreation District's board of directors must be filed with the county court by Monday, Oct. 28, Walter Hansen, park superintendent, reminded Friday.

To be valid, petitions must have the signatures of at least 10 resident property-owners in the district. Any property-owner residing in the district is eligible for election to the office, Hansen said.

Elections will be held Nov. 12 at polling places to be named by the county court. William E. James, Glenwood, at present holds the position to be voted on next month. His term expires Jan. 1, 1947.

Conciliators Called Into Contract Talks

SPRINGFIELD—U. S. Conciliators have been called into contract negotiations between Simmons Motor Co., Fourth and A Sts., and United Auto Workers, CIO. John J. Binder, union representative, said Friday.

Binder charged that the employer, Max Simmons, had refused to bargain with the union. "The plant is organized 100 per cent," Binder said, "and the employes are determined to get a contract. The UAW-CIO has definitely made up its mind to organize everything under its jurisdiction in this region."

Negotiations between the newly-organized local CIO-affiliate and the motor company have been underway only about a week. Neither the union nor the employer had threatened a strike or lockout by Friday.

Simmons could not be reached Friday morning for a statement.

City Parking Survey Final 'Lap' Saturday

Cottage Grove residents also were urged by Strommer to help the boys all they can.

Plans for the Saturday survey were explained Thursday night at a meeting in Knights of Pythias Hall, where nearly 100 boys gathered to receive questionnaires.

Strommer announced the free show at the McDonald Theater, starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 16. The pictures will be "Henry Aldrich's Secret" and "Buckaroo Bugs," starring Bugs Bunny.

Wyatt also stressed the invitation to the Girl and Boy Scouts who aided on the other survey. He said he had been informed they did an outstanding job and that he was glad to offer them the special show in recognition of their work.

After the Thursday night meeting the carriers enjoyed hot dogs and soda pop.

The survey starting Saturday will ask different questions than were asked in the Oct. 15 survey. Data from the two will be coordinated to make a complete picture. Correct addresses are especially important. The questions, which Eugeneans are urged to prepare to answer when carriers call, follow:

1. How many cars are there in your household?
2. Does anyone in your household drive a car down town regularly to work?
3. If so, where is the car usually parked, and for how long?
4. How many persons ride to work in the car when it is parked down town?
5. How many of these people would use bus transportation if it were extended or service were more frequent?
6. If the car is not driven down town daily, how often is it parked in or near the down town area and how long on an average?
7. On what day of the week is it parked down town most often?
8. If the city provided a conveniently-located parking area, would you be willing to pay a reasonable fee for using it when you drive the car down town?
9. How much would a member of your household who drives down town to work be willing to pay to park in such an area all day?
10. Assuming the project would pay for itself over a reasonable period of years, would you prefer an annual tax levy or a bond issue for the original financing?

Jail Caller 'Regular'

D. H. Riley, Eugene, was released by city police Friday morning after what police records said was his 38th arrest on charges of intoxication since August, 1943. Riley was arrested at Seventh and Oak Sts. Thursday.

Meet Oregon's Lightweight Champion

This light-weight, husky little John Deere Lindeman crawler tractor in the picture above really is a champion at getting in the punches that count around a farm. Donald J. Reets's Lindeman handles all his 75 acres of row crops and 8 acres of orchard near Harrisburg, and, according to Reets, does a fine job of it. Ask us for the latest "dope" on YOUR Lindeman crawler.

Defeat This NEW TAX on your CASH Receipts
Oregon has TWO Income Taxes NOW!

No One Can Win . . . Everybody Will Lose!

- WAGE EARNER: Loss take-home pay; monthly reports; job threatened.
- HOUSEWIFE: Higher prices added to present High-Cost-of-Living (See Time Magazine, Oct. 14, page 23). Don't let your savings and widow's insurance be taxed.
- ELDERLY PEOPLE: A dollar that buys 50 cents worth of groceries is a snare and a delusion. You can't build contentment through destroying something.
- FARMERS: A 3% cash receipts tax will make you "sell cheap" and "buy dear."
- YOUNG PEOPLE: Goodbye! business and home-building opportunities in Oregon. Goodbye thrift! What job would you take that is now held by a person over 60—a person who would apply for a Townsend pension.
