

City 'Mis zoning' Hit by Realtor

Bert Prescott, member of the Eugene Realty Board, made a plea before board members at the Thursday luncheon meeting for some concerted action by the board to correct "mis zoning of vital areas within Eugene's city limits."

"We of the realty board are the natural zoners of the community," Prescott said. "If we, who study land and its uses, aren't the best qualified to recommend correct zoning, then who is?"

Prescott cited the land along the Oregon Electric and Southern Pacific lines, now zoned to eliminate the business "that should naturally flourish there."

Proper zoning of the land within the city limits, in order to allow light and heavy industry to grow up "where it should grow and be encouraged," would do much, according to Prescott, to "reduce the tax rate in Eugene."

Prescott demanded a re-study of "the natural light and heavy industry areas in the city" and he asked James Rodman Sr., and Fay Bennett to help in making a survey to be presented to the city planning commission as a realty board recommendation.

Russell Maxfield, not a board member, attended the meeting and introduced a petition asking that Thirteenth Ave. E. be kept open at all times, even during the university class changes, at which time the street is now closed, as traffic is rerouted through Eleventh Ave. E. The petition was circulated, but no official action was taken by the realtors.

Jimmy Walker Funeral Draws Homage of City

NEW YORK (AP)—The body of former Mayor James J. Walker Thursday passed slowly through the heart of the city loved to St. Patrick's Cathedral for a solemn requiem Mass—a last ceremony for one who once saved the city from bankruptcy.

Thousands stood silently in warm autumn sunlight on Fifth Avenue to watch the funeral cortege of the suave, slight man who guided the administration of the city through the boom and bust era of 1926-1932 and died last Monday of a brain blood clot at the age of 65.

Photographer Exhibits Pictures from Overseas

A group of photographic studies made by Carol (Bob) Calkins of Eugene while on duty with the U. S. Army in Germany, France, England, and the United States is on display this week at Graves Music Store in Eugene.

Calkins' photographic works range from shots of the Crystal Cider Mill on East Broadway in Eugene to the Reims Cathedral and the Bavarian countryside.

Among the collection is a picture of the El Trocadero, cafe in Paris, the Notre Dame Cathedral, and a German bridge destroyed during the war.

Also included are photographs taken in Mexico.

Farmer Puts Frog in Throat, Claims It Produces Speech

SALEM—(AP)—A 34-year-old Oregon farmer Thursday gave a demonstration here of his talking frog.

The demonstration was a huge success. The frog talked. The audience was speechless.

As if a talking frog wasn't enough, M. I. Mix's vocal amphibian does his chatting from down in his (Mix's) throat. But there's no hanky-panky. It's no frog-in-his-throat; it's a tree frog.

Mix opened his mouth and placed his tiny, nameless frog well down on his palate. Then Mix did something with his tongue and out came a noise that sounded very much like "Margaret Mages," the name of a girl reporter who was standing near by.

The audience jumped back. All Agree
A few more names were uttered. Everybody swore that it was the frog doing the talking.

Mix explained that he began training talking frogs when he was a seven-year-old child crippled with infantile paralysis in Mason City, Ia. The disease left him without the use of his vocal cords.

Aids Speech
One day, he said, he put a small frog in his mouth and it began to sing. Later he found that by touching his tongue to the frog's mouth he could make vibrating noises that sounded like words.

He continued and it wasn't long before he recovered his speech. He pointed out that it takes three months to train his frogs. He says a frog only lasts about a year and a half.

Child Pneumonia Victim Released from Hospital
Dolores Wells, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Wells who was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital with pneumonia a few days ago, was released Thursday morning. The Wells family of five was evicted from their home, and have been sleeping in a tent since. They are unable to find a home.

American Veterans of World War II (Amvets) announced Thursday that a city wide search had been started by the organization for a home suitable for the Wells family. Persons knowing of such a home may call Mr. and Mrs. Wells at 2599-WX, or Loran

Classes at University of Washington Resume
SEATTLE (AP)—The University of Washington, which closed Wednesday because of reduced coal stocks, will reopen Friday, university officials have announced.

A Seattle coal firm has diverted 42 carloads of coal to the university and 1250 tons were acquired from the Bremerton naval shipyard.

University officials said this would be enough to tide the university over the crisis created by a power failure at the Big Four mine, northeast of Renton, source of the university's fuel supply.

However, the coal strike threatens another shortage as the Renton mine is now strikebound.

Thurston School Will Collect for Chest Fund
THURSTON—Friday, Nov. 22, has been set as collection day for the Lane County Community Chest Fund, at the Thurston Grade School. A contest is in progress to see which room can accumulate the largest fund by the Friday collection date.

Personals
Mrs. Velore Hickson was presented with a lovely friendship gift last Friday when she was the honor guest at the Harvest Tea at the home of Mrs. Inez Shough.

Hostesses, in addition to Mrs. Shough, were Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. Delight McQuinn and Mrs. Elizabeth Gossle.

Mrs. Burl Johnson, who has spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Jentilli, of Tacoma, Wash., has returned to her home.

Mrs. Selma Hanson left Monday for several days visit with friends in Los Angeles.

Mapleton Gives $837.63 Through Carnival Fun
MAPLETON—The student body of Mapleton High School reports the gate receipts of the recent carnival were $1,276.16, leaving them $837.63 to add to their fund. A new electric scoreboard, football and basketball equipment will be purchased from this fund. The remainder will be left to be used when need arrives.

Mapleton High will have their first basketball and volleyball game of the season at Mapleton Friday, Nov. 22 at 7:30 p. m. They will play Waldport.

School let out early Monday to let buses get students home before dark due to the storm.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Mapleton Post 6184 VFW, have received their charter.

At their last meeting final plans were made for the bazaar, Saturday, Dec. 7. Handwork, cooked food and produce will be on sale. Lyndal Ellingson, Gale Wheeler and Annice Johnson are in charge.

The charter was draped in memory of Fay Sweet. Gale Wheeler was installed as color bearer number one.

Surgical Dressings Conspiracy Charged

BOSTON—(AP)—A federal grand jury Thursday indicted four surgical dressing companies and five individuals on charges of conspiracy to restrain domestic and foreign trade and commerce in the manufacture, sale and distribution of surgical dressings in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The four companies allegedly manufacture 75 per cent of the surgical dressings produced and sold in the United States. Total sales of the four corporations in 1945 amounted to $31,960,372, the indictment charged.

The indicted corporations are: Johnson and Johnson, New Brunswick, N. J.; Johnson and Johnson International, New Brunswick; Parke-Davis and Co., Detroit, Mich.; and The Kendall Co., Boston.

Active Club Prepares State Hoop Tourney
Plans for the State High School Basketball Tournament in Eugene next March were outlined Thursday before the Active Club by Bob Cross, general chairman. The club will sponsor the tourney.

Cross reported that accommodations for 800 to 1000 students have already been arranged by Ray Siegenthaler, housing chairman, and that more will be obtained soon. Andy Maxon, chairman of the entertainment committee has planned a variety of programs for students and visiting coaches and officials.

A dance for students will be held each night at the Community Center and the Eugene Ice Arena and a roller skating rink will be open for their use.

Plans have been made for publishing an Oregon State High School Basketball Guide instead of the conventional program, as well as daily program guides of four or five sheets.

Members of the Active Club will sell 500 season tickets to the series by Wednesday, Nov. 27. Cross announced. Persons who desire reserved season tickets in advance may contact any member of the Active Club before Wednesday noon.

Arson Wave on Coast His Doing, Boy Says
PRESNO, Calif. (AP)—A 14-year-old boy, whom District Attorney James M. Thuesen said has admitted setting a $5,000,000 bonded brandy warehouse fire south of Fresno Aug. 28 and a series of other incendiary blazes elsewhere along the Pacific Coast, was being held here Thursday.

Among the blazes confessed by the boy, who gave his name as Williams, were three houses near Portland, Ore., and a grocery store in Vancouver, B. C.
