

Wians Hear Explained

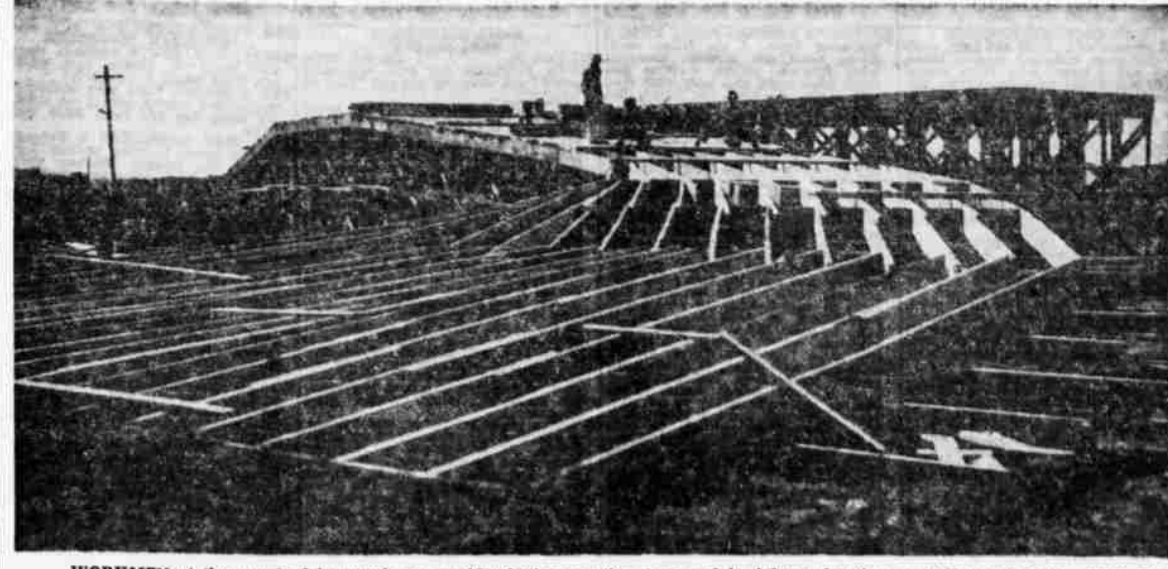

WIELD — The Rotary Friday noon heard Ken-O'Connell, Eugene attorney, explain the community property law recently passed by the Oregon legislature. The law became effective July 5. The new law, according to O'Connell, allows husband and wife to file separate income tax returns and thereby enter a lower income bracket. All real property acquired after July 5, 1947, and all income, regardless of which spouse makes the money, is legally owned equally by both, O'Connell said.

He presented facts and figures to show that the new law was of greater benefit to persons in higher income brackets. A married man with no children would need to have an income of at least 4000 before any tax saving could be made by filing separate returns. He said there are ambiguous statements in the law and many cases will be tested in court.

Ray Sims Recalls Club's Founding Obsidians Note Anniversary

VETERAN mountaineer and Obsidian Ray Sims, shown here rock-climbing an Oregon peak, will lead his 20th climb of the North Sister in August. (Wiltshire engraving.)

By RUBY FRAZIER It was 20 years ago this September that the Obsidian Club was founded under rather harrowing circumstances and by a group of men who, with the exception of one, have retired from active mountaineering with the club. This August the one remaining active founder will lead his twentieth Obsidian climb of the North Sister in the Cascade Range.

One of Five The veteran is Ray Sims, whose activities among the major peaks of three states seem to have kept him young. Sims was one of five men who sat down one grim September day in 1927 and decided to form the Outdoor Club, later changed in name to the Obsidian Club.

They were among 250 men who had been searching the rugged Three Sisters area for ten days, looking for Guy Ferry and Henry Cramer, two University of Oregon students who left to climb the Middle Sister, were caught in a blizzard, and never returned.

Bodies Found "The students' bodies were found exactly two years later by Harry Hayes, a trapper from McKenzie Bridge. They had frozen to death," Ray recalled.

It was while the search was going on that Ray, Ed Turnbull, Elmer Maxey, Sid King and William Landrum decided to form a club that would educate would-be mountaineers, provide leadership, and train for rescue work.

There were 42 charter members of the club, six or eight of whom are still active. The club now has more than 200.

North First Ray's first climb of the North was made in 1928, with seven men attending the first summer camp

New Discovery in a Way to Hear

A new star appears in the field of electronic hearing aids. It is a completely new, completely revolutionary hearing instrument — as different from early models as today's radio is different from the first crystal sets. It includes all the wonders of war-born electronics—a revolutionary circuit, which helps screen out annoying scratchy noises and catches every word, every note, every sound with perfect fidelity. Whether you now own an old hearing aid, a comparatively new one, or none at all, you owe it to yourself to know about this great new development. S. C. Mitchell, 214 Miner Bldg., Phone 4141 is with James H. Taft of Portland. One of the Pacific Coast's largest distributors of hearing aids is so proud of this achievement that he will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a full demonstration of this remarkable device in your own home without risking a penny. False Alarm, Sissies Run

SPRINGFIELD — Sissies scattered in all directions here Friday afternoon when the report was circulated that the Eugene Jaycee Whiskalantes were riding in town with an old mule and buggy. The mule and buggy were there all right, but no Whiskalantes, much to the chagrin of some of the bewhiskered members of the community.

H. G. Dudley, local horse dealer, with a beard that would make even the Whiskalantes jealous, purchased a mule and buggy for his wife to drive in the Pageant parade and he was just out giving the mule "some practice." He gathered a group of "singing cowboys," including Bill Pfeifer, L. E. Evenson, Clarence Bennett and Clyde Bowman and traveled up and down Main St., "just having some fun."

New Teachers Added To Springfield Staff

SPRINGFIELD—E. H. Silke, superintendent of schools here, said Saturday that a University of Oregon graduate, Mary Alice Lawson, has been hired as girls' physical education instructor for the union high school to round out a staff of 30 for the 1947-48 school year.

The District 19 school board hired Burke Yadon, graduate of Southern Oregon College of Education, as a grade five teacher. Silke said this leaves vacancies in grade one, grade three and grade six.

Ray Sims Recalls Club's Founding

with the Obsidians by pictures and articles. He is proud of his wife, Doris, whom he first met at an Obsidian summer camp and who is his constant companion on many of the trips.

Now their five-year-old son, Jimmy, is beginning to show all the earmarks of a good Obsidian. Not content with Spencer's butte, which he probably climbed as an appetizer, Jimmy this year has ascended Mt. Hardesty Lookout, a 12-mile round trip hike, and recently went up 7000-foot Paulina Peak.

The 1929 climb was really a big one, with 29 regular members of the club going. Among them were Turnbull, William Tugman, Percy Brown, Dot Dotson, Carl Baker, Henry Korn, Louis Waldorf, Dave Favelle, Orville Richardson, Dr. Billy Neal, Darwin Yorlan, Mrs. Dotson and Mrs. Glen Sims.

Ray has also climbed the Middle 11 times, the South 9 times, and all other major peaks in Oregon one or more times. In addition he has scaled Mt. Rainier and Mt. Shasta, but thinks Oregon's Mt. Washington is the hardest.

Ray is proud of his scrapbook, which covers 20 years of activity
