

Australian Bride Likes Hospitable Blachly Neighbors

WINIFRED HULT Blachly—Christmas here the north star and big dip- hope there will be snow! wishes charming au- drey Arkins from who a week ago became at a dance in Sidney while serving the bride of Andy Frasier of Blachly.

Up until the time he met her as her boat docked in San Francisco, after 18 days of sailing, it had been five years since Andy had seen his bride, whom he met at a dance in Sidney while serving in the U. S. Navy during the war. At that time she was working in a pharmaceutical laboratory, and later served with the Red Cross.

"I love it here—and I haven't had time to be lonely, people have been so friendly and hospitable," remarked Mrs. Frasier as she busied herself in her new home her husband has built.

"I like the informality of the people in their manners and dress. I must say, though, I was a little surprised to find men on the streets wearing 'jeans' and big jackets, which my husband calls 'lumberjacks.' On the streets in Sidney the men never wear anything but the worst or serge suits—even in the summertime they wear the same."

"Where can I find some mint?" she questioned, saying she could find none in the markets to serve with the lamb roast, which she thought "very expensive. In Sidney we can buy a whole leg of lamb for what we have to pay for a few chops here." Other items she mentioned as being a great deal cheaper are beef, eggs, and butter. Eggs sell for 25 cents a dozen.

SPESQSA Plans Radio Harmonizing

Their program will consist of Harmony singing with Christmas carols.

"Some things are more expensive in Australia. Petrol, for instance, we pay over (making a quick calculation) 45c. So of course people do not have so many cars. We use bicycles and trams a great deal."

"Do you think it will snow for Christmas?" she again questioned as we were leaving. "Last Christmas we went swimming in the surf. This year—I'm dreaming of a white Christmas!"

Editor's note: It just has to snow at Blachly for Christmas—can't somebody do something?
