Miss Ann Carlyle, William R. Wellborn Married Recently

Only the immediate family was present.

Miss Carlyle wore a suit of grey gabardine with aqua accessories and a small aqua dinner hat. She carried a nosegay of white carnations and pink rosebuds centered with violets. She was given away by her father.

Miss Yvonne Hutzler was the only bridal attendant, wearing a suit of light blue with nosegay which was a small replica of the bride's.

Many Women Assist In Tour of Houses

The guided campus tour conducted by Oregon Mothers last week end, as an innovation of the Christmas season, proved extremely popular and may be made an annual happening. In spite of a moist day, scores of women were taken over the campus to visit the women's living organizations, to view their Christmas decorations. Many ideas were found for home use.

While the tour did not return financially as well as the card party which it was planned to replace, it was felt that it would be of particular value in public relations. Mothers who were accustomed to visit but one house on the campus were enabled to visit dozens of them, and to note what features were used in their arrangements. It is believed housemothers will meet an attitude of renewed interest among their mothers clubs, as an unplanned result of the tour.

Tours were conducted from Gerlinger Hall through the afternoon, and at their close, hot spiced tea was served by Ordes Mothers at the hall.

Guests were met at the various houses by the following hostesses: Ann Judson House, Mrs. W. Van Atta, Mrs. W. E. Schick, Mrs. Galen Boles; Gamma Hall,

CHRISTMAS FUN was general for big boys and small guests alike, at the Christmas party given recently at Kappa Sigma fraternity house for the youngsters of the Alice Marie Home. Santa Claus pranced and danced to amuse the kiddies until he looked as though his girdle had slipped. (A moment afterward, he adjusted it with a hitch, and a small girl's eyes grew round, and she popped her hand over a shocked round mouth.) There was a fire engine with a ladder for one of the boys, which one of the hosts delightedly "explained" to him, on the basis of experience with a volunteer company, until it was time to go home.
