

day with a blunt challenge to prove his speculation charges against Edwin W. Pauley—or retract them—when the two met in a showdown session before Senate investigators Friday. Stassen's only comment on Pauley's challenge was a terse statement that "I will be fully prepared when I go before the committee."

The Republican presidential hopeful was accused by Pauley Wednesday night of doing "irreparable" harm to his (Pauley's) reputation through "false statements" about his commodity transactions. Pauley, who is soon to step out as special assistant to the Secretary of Army, demanded that the Senate appropriations subcommittee on speculations force Stassen to prove his allegations that:

1. Pauley moved in and out of the market in correct sequence with the pattern of government food purchases.
2. He received and profited from "inside" information on government buying plans.

3. He got advance information on these plans from federal officials.

The wealthy west coast oilman, who has admitted making almost $1,000,000 speculating in commodities, hurried his latest blast against Stassen in a letter to Sen.

Homer Ferguson (R-Mich) chairman of the speculation subcommittee.

Stassen was advised of Pauley's demands Wednesday night in Chattanooga, Tenn., and authorized a spokesman to issue the I-will-be-prepared statement.
