WASHINGTON—(AP)—The U. S. Geographic Names Board on Thursday spelled Alvin, Oregon, just the way everyone does.

A Vermillion County village, halfway between Danville and Dayton, was incorporated as Alvin.

Alvin is still legally spelled Alvin and even the post office department has spelled it "Al" for years.

The board said that even the town clerk joined in urging federal maps and documents thereafter designate it as Alvin.

Alvin is still legally spelled Alvin and even the post office department has spelled it "Al" for years.
