

Cordon Says Oregon Benefits $70,444,045 From Appropriation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Cordon (R-Ore) figured Tuesday that Oregon will benefit by $70,444,045 from government appropriations for reclamation, flood control and rivers and harbors during the year starting Thursday. Cordon said that of the $18,497,340 voted the Bonneville Power Administration, $8,887,800 is cash that will be spent in the state. Another $1,769,000 will be spent for transmission lines outside the state which will serve Oregon. In addition, he said, there is $3,015,490 contract authorization for Oregon work and $2,845,050 for work outside the state, which will benefit Oregon.

Under reclamation he listed $4,129,500, breaking it down to: $887,205 for construction on the Deschutes project, including $287,205 carry over from this year; $52,250 for the Atwood division of the project; $150,000 for Owyhee project construction; $2,449,393, all carryover, for Klamath project construction; and for operation and maintenance, $101,252 for Deschutes, $292,500 for Owyhee, and $217,000 for Klamath.

Under flood control, he said, specific construction will cost $12,888,800, while snagging, clearing and bank protection calls for another $3,613,200.

River and harbor operation and maintenance and construction of dams will total $29,750,000, he said. The latter figure includes $22,000,000 for McNary dam, which is shared by Washington.

He said Oregon will get $2,700,000 of the emergency $6,000,000 Congress gave Army engineers to repair flood damage in the Columbia River basin.

Jewish Lad Hung For His Opinions

DENVER—(AP)—A young Jewish lad told juvenile authorities Tuesday that one of his American playmates had tried to hang him "because he thought I hated Christians."

The story of six-year-old Henry Kosterlitz, who was born in a refugee camp, came out in halting English before juvenile officials Monday at the insistence of his mother, Mrs. Warner Kosterlitz.

Henry charged that an older playmate had taken him to a garage, made him stand on a ladder while he fixed a noose around his neck and then took the ladder away, leaving him strangling in the air. The child said that when he screamed the older boy became frightened and let him drop to the floor.

The incident was alleged to have taken place after Henry had replied "No" to the question, "Do you like Christians," which the older boy asked. Mrs. Kosterlitz said the boy had pestered her son almost continually with the question since they had moved to Denver. She said that Henry did not understand the question, getting it mixed up with Nazis.

"To think that this could happen in America," Mrs. Kosterlitz exclaimed. "I was so shocked."
