Council Accepts Bids for Bonds, Okays Armory

SPRINGFIELD—The city council in a regular meeting here Monday night accepted the bid of the local branch of the U. S. National Bank of Portland for purchase of $19,000 in general obligation bonds to purchase a new city fire truck but rejected bids by five firms to manufacture and deliver a 750-gallon-per-minute pumper type truck.

The firm bids for the fire truck were rejected at the suggestion of Councilman John Boeshans, who said he believed the city should build up its pumping capacity by purchasing a 1000 g.p.m. pumper. For $800 more.

Company representatives who submitted the bids said they believed the additional pumping capacity could be included for about $800 more.

The council will open addendum bids by the same firms at an adjourned meeting Monday, July 19. The five firm bids submitted Monday night ranged from about $14,000 to $15,000.

The U. S. Bank's low bid for the fire truck bonds listed three percent interest with a $121.60 premium. Next low bid was by the Blythe and Co., Inc. of Portland. The recommendations by the city planning commission for zoning the recently annexed part of the city were studied by the council and then referred back to the planners with a suggestion to change the area on Main St. south to the alley between Twentieth and Twenty Second St. from light industrial to central business.

Petition Presented
Businessmen and property owners in the area requested the change in the form of a petition.

The planners in a meeting last week had made the area in question light industrial because they felt as central business, it would create too much of a traffic hazard.

At the request of Fred Buell, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs committee, the and the fire chief to select one property at Fourteenth and G Sts. at a cost of $2000 for a National Guard Armory site. The purchase by the city is to be made by Sept. 1, 1948. The funds for the site and also foundation work for the armory building was provided by a one mill special levy approved by voters June 15.

The council also authorized the city manager to arrange for bids for the foundation work for the armory.

In other action the council:
1—Voted to request engineers Corey and Valser to complete work of locating sewer risers on main trunk sewer project.

2—Authorized the purchase of an overhauled heavy street grader from the Columbia Equipment Co.

for $7500 to be operated until new grader can be ordered and delivered.

3—Authorized the city manager council approved the purchase of man from the city fire department to attend a one week fire training course at Oregon State College from July 25 to 31.

4—Instructed the city attorney to draft an amendment to the precinct ordinance to put the area recently annexed to the city in Ward Six until July, 1949.

The entire city cannot be re-warded until July of an odd-numbered year according to state law said City Manager Fred Cheatham.

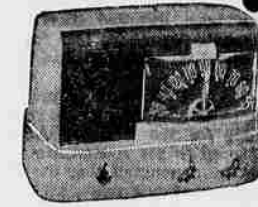

Cheatham explained that the two precincts in Ward Six county court expects to establish two separate polling places.
