

Amazon's Silt Clearing Okayed; Eighteenth Ave. Work in View

for street excavations and repairs in connection with the installation, the council directed that one of the 30 contemplated alarm boxes be deducted and the saving applied on street work.

Within Estimate
The councilmen made this decision to keep the entire project cost within the $40,000 estimate published when the voters approved a $1220,000 fire department bond issue in May.

An hour-long discussion of two rezoning applications — both of which had been unfavorably reported out of the city planning commission — resulted in the council action to permit one rezoning and deny the other.

Grocery Permit
Charles A. Dickinson won with his petition for a land use reclassification to permit a neighborhood grocery at 2280 Eighteenth Ave. The merits of his case were argued pro and con by a dozen residents of the area.

The principal objection raised was that the store would be located directly across the street from the proposed Westmoreland grade school.

None Closed
The major contention in Dickinson's behalf was that the building has no grocery store within walking distance. Added to this argument was the fact that the property lies almost on the city limits.

Outside the city boundary, it was pointed out repeatedly, any type of structure can be erected; there are no county zoning controls although the last legislature passed an enabling act to permit such regulations.

One Denied
The petition denied had been entered by Jewel A. Newbury relative to property on Filmore between Seventh and Eighth. Mrs. Newbury asked for reclassification of the property from single-family residential status to permit light industrial use.

For the third successive meeting, the needs of an arterial street system in Eugene came up for council discussion. The question was raised this time by City Engineer W. C. Clubb who asked the council for instructions upon the width of paving desired on Eighteenth Ave. between Willamette and Pearl Sts.

Clubb explained that the street section passes through an area zoned as part of the central business district, and the council instructed him to have the street improved to a 42-foot width.

Eighteenth Ave.
Then turning to the problem of east-west transit in the south end of town, the council instructed the engineer to prepare plans and specifications for the uniform improvement of Eighteenth between Kincaid and Pearl.

The proposed improvement, to a standard 34-foot width, would cover all portions of the street not already paved or in line to be paved immediately.

Less Costly
In discussion, Councilmen Calvin Crumbaker pointed out that the ultimate development of the street is certain and that a consolidated project would be less costly to the owners of property along the street.

A public hearing will be held at the next council to give the Eighteenth Ave. property owners opportunity to express their support or objections.

Street Names
Another action by the council authorized the coordination of street names and numbers in the South Willamette and College Hill districts recently annexed by the city.

The council asked that full publicity be given the plan and set a public hearing date for its next meeting. Details of the plan, which basically provides for the application of existing city street names in the new areas, will be published in the Thursday issue of the Register-Guard.

Negroes Sue Two Railroads

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Nine Negroes Tuesday sued two railroads for $180,000 damages on grounds they were removed from deluxe, air-cooled chair cars into less favorable seats when they reached El Paso, Tex., on a train trip from Los Angeles.

The federal court suit named the Southern Pacific and the Texas and Pacific railroads as defendants.

The Negroes, eight from California and one from Texas, said they were transferred without their consent from modern, comfortable cars to ones with "old-fashioned chairs, hard and uncomfortable," when the train reached El Paso July 24, 1947.

"The Jim Crow cars to which they were transferred were practically useless cattle cars," Attorney Joseph Lewis said in filing the suit. He said the suit was drawn up as result of a U. S. Supreme Court decision against race restrictions in real estate sales agreements.

Portland Milk Price Raised; No Local Effect Seen as Yet

The price of milk in the Portland area will go up from 19 to 20½ cents per quart Aug. 1, State Agriculture Director E. L. Peterson announced Tuesday. Whether this rise will effect the Eugene area will not be known for a day or two, according to local milk and butter fat heads.

At the same time Peterson announced that producer's prices for butterfat will advance from $1.15 per pound plus $1.40 per hundred-weight to $1.16 and $1.58, respectively.

The increase is divided between distributors and producers approximately one cent and producers the balance, according to Associated and United Press reports.

The president of Lane County Milk Distributors Assn., Gordon Coleman, said Monday, there is no scheduled hearing for prices in this area and "there will be no changes until a hearing is held."

August Meeting
He revealed, however, that a meeting has been scheduled for sometime "in early August" to decide whether to include Josephine County as a secondary marketing area for Eugene and did not exclude a possibility that the question might arise at that time.

F. A. Kesey, manager of the Eugene Farmers Creamery said, "I don't think local prices will change." He added, however, that he will contact a number of producers in the Eugene area before the final decision is made and it will be "a day or two" before that decision would be announced.

"I personally would like to see it remain where it is," Kesey stated.

At the present time, milk prices in Eugene are on the same basis as Portland's, being 18½ to 20½ cents with butterfat at $1.15 per pound plus $1.40 per hundred-weight.

Provisions requiring milk and cream to be labeled on the outer cap or container with the minimum butterfat content are included in the agriculture director's order.

Tells Reasons
Peterson said the milk price was increased because:

"A growing population in the McInnis Will Serve On District Council"

Ray McInnis, head of the AF of L construction laborers local in Eugene, said Tuesday he had been elected to a two-year term on the board of directors of the Columbia River District Council, AF of L.

The union representative said the council, meeting in quarterly session at Portland, went on record as favoring the six-hour day and the 30-hour week in 1949 union contracts. McInnis said he also was named to the negotiating committee for 1949 contracts.

Accused Man Denies Insurance Charge

Lloyd H. Pepperling, Blue River, entered a plea of not guilty Monday in circuit court to a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretenses.

He will be tried during the fall term of court on a charge that he tried to collect fire insurance on property that was not actually in his house when it burned July 13.

Pepperling is accused of filing an insurance claim for household possessions allegedly lost in the fire, but which insurance adjusters claim were not in the building.

cogent reasons why the United States should help bring to reality the International Court of Justice, already provided for in the UN Charter.

Judge Bosone, one of Utah's outstanding women in public life, demanded that the United States back the UN organization instead of writing it off as a loss.

(Sen. Morse, who as moderator took part in the discussion, had earlier proposed in a press statement at his home that the United States offer to throw the current German dispute with Russia into the World Court as a demonstration of good faith. The US is on record as willing to grant the World Court jurisdiction if the opposition also agrees to accept the finding of the court.)

Power Politics
At times the discussion grew heated as speakers parried to defend their points of view. Fry declared that atomic energy and power politics cannot exist together on the same planet. "Power politics must go," he observed. The audience was vocal in its agreement.

Said Judge Bosone, who wanted to give the United Nations an opportunity to succeed, "War proves not who is right, but who is left." The United Nations, as is, cannot stop war, but it can be made strong, she declared.

Following the broadcast, Chairman Ray Siegenthaler of the sponsoring Eugene Council on World Affairs, announced that membership in the council was open to the public and that the group hoped to schedule additional speakers on world problems.

The program was produced by Townhall Inc., New York, under the direction of Mrs. Marian Carter, who has taken over for the summer tour in the absence of the permanent president and moderator, George V. Denny, Jr. Station KUGN and the Eugene Council on World Affairs cooperated in the production, which was made financially possible by the contributions of Lane County citizens.

Department Answers Three Small Calls

Fire alarms from two apartment houses were answered by city fire crews Monday night, and property damage was held to a minimum in both cases.

At 7:52 p. m. a crew travelled to 725 Fourteenth Ave. E., where an apartment tenant reported an overheated oil stove.

At 9:43 p. m. paraffin caught fire on a stove at 1511 Mill St., and scorched an apartment wall.

Another run was made earlier in the day when a rubbish fire was reported on the Rubenstein Furniture Co. parking lot at Eighth and Olive. No damage was done by this blaze at 12:02 p. m.

West-Side Accident Brings Driver's Arrest

City police arrested Leo R. Hammer, 106 Lincoln St., Monday evening after his car collided with a couple driven by Robert A. Centry, Portland.

The 5:10 p.m. accident occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Lincoln. Both cars were moderately damaged.
