Lonesome Hens
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—It looks like enforced race suicide, certainly an awkward kind of family life, for chickens here.
A householder may keep 15 hens. He also may have up to 30 growing chicks, if the sanitary inspector thinks it's all right.
But none of the biddies' papas will be around. Roosters are taboo—they make too much noise, says a new city law, effective 30 days hence.
