

Congress Quits After Cutting Its Work Short

had wormed deep into the federal government.

Those hearings brought bitter words from both the White House and the capitol.

Mr. Truman accused the Republicans of trying to hide the short-comings of Congress by a "red herring" hunt for Communists.

Then, in the Senate's closing hours, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) went so far as to speak of "impediment."

In its last long day, Congress cleared first the housing bill, then the anti-inflation measure.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky), President Truman's running mate in the fall campaign, pleaded for adoption of the White House anti-inflation program. He said a do-nothing policy would endanger America's economy and national security and impair the nation's foreign policy. Inaction on high prices, he declared, will cost the American people $10,000,000,000 in the next year.

The Senate previously had rejected two proposals to investigate high prices. Both were offered as amendments to the anti-inflation bill.

Putting restraints on installment buying, the bill authorizes the federal reserve board to fix credit controls on consumer goods. If the board adheres to the wartime pattern, down payments of at least one-third of the purchase price of such articles as automobiles and washing machines would be required, with a maximum of 15 or 18 months to pay the balance.

S. Willamette Meet Called for Thursday

Residents of the South Willamette area have scheduled a public meeting at Dunn School the evening of Thursday, Aug. 12, to discuss a complicated legal situation which arose after part of the area was annexed to the city of Eugene.

The South Willamette Sanitary District had been formed by court order before part of the area within the district was voted into the city. The question now is whether that part of the district which was annexed still is part of the sanitary district.

City Manager Deane Seeger has pointed out that the city cannot proceed with installation of sewers in the annexed area if the property owners also are going to be assessed by the district.

He said the principal objective of all concerned was to untangle the legal phases of the problem so that some type of sewage installations can be started. Owners of property both inside and outside the city limits are urged to attend the meeting.

Phosphate Discovery Regulations Subject

Additional aid in the discovery and production of phosphate from the public lands under proposed new Department of Interior regulations will be discussed at public hearings at Pocatello, Idaho, on Tuesday, Aug. 31. # Skaters Have Special Period

Something new in the way of free entertainment for children has been added to the schedules of the city Bureau of Parks and Recreation summer program.

It's free roller skating for kids on the tennis courts of the Nineteenth and Lawrence St. playground. Skaters must provide their own skates, but the city will provide supervision and music from 10:15 a. m. to noon Tuesday.

The recreation department also has announced folk and square dancing will be held on the tennis courts from 1:30 to 2 p. m. each Tuesday and Thursday for children aged eight to 16. Singing games will be held from 1 to 1:30 on the same days for younger children.

A special pet show is set for next Friday, with prizes and certificates offered young pet owners. The department announced that over 400 children attended a bicycle field day at the playground last Friday.

Court Agrees On 'Planning'

ing, agriculture, horticulture, or for the growing of timber." However, it does provide for "regulation for the conservation of the natural resources of the county."

Problem of Fringe Areas It was last November, in a talk before the Eugene Chamber of Commerce that William A. Bowes (commissioner of public works in Portland and formerly on the governor's interim committee on rural zoning) pointed out the "fringe" problem of cities in the state.

He remarked on people who move out of cities to get away from "restrictions," and said, "Unfortunately for them, others get the same idea, and before they know it they are faced with more problems than they ever faced within the cities." He said that in nine cases out of ten these "fringe areas" will become a part of the cities and if "allowed to grow uncontrolled, they will become a terrible headache for the city which has to incorporate them."

The city of Springfield is now experiencing the problem of making equitable land use regulations and an orderly development pattern for the Nicholas Gardens section which, until recently incorporated, was part of the "fringe" area around that city.

The members of the Springfield planning commission will testify that the problem is not an easy one.

The state legislature has provided the means for meeting these problems. It now remains, after initial steps by the county court, for the people of the county to accept or reject an orderly development pattern.

Superintendent Clarence Hines said preliminary arrangements had been made to employ the architect, and that final terms should be completed Monday night. The new high school will be constructed on Nineteenth Ave. E.

Hines said board members may set a date also for a public meeting to discuss public school needs. The meeting probably will be sometime in late August.

Board members will consider final payment to Contractor Gale Roberts for construction of fire escapes at Condon and Lincoln Schools. The escapes cost a total of about $7500.

Driver to Tell Court Of Train Accident

John J. Platt, 574 Fifth Ave. W., will appear in municipal court next Wednesday—and all because his car collided with an Oregon Electric train.

City police cited the Eugene men on basic rule charges after his car and the engine sideswiped at Fifth Ave. and Washington St. Friday evening.

Police estimated $250 damage to Platt's 1936 sedan. Engineer on the train was C. M. Smock, Portland. Platt told police he misjudged the distance between the train and a parked car at the curb and that he scraped along the left side of the train.

Alcohol Plant Bids End Set

Time is short for lumbermen in the Willamette Valley and others in the public interested in seeing the alcohol plant at Springfield operated under "local" control to subscribe enough money to enter a bid.

The War Asset Administration has set Friday, Aug. 20 at 2 p.m.

(EST) as the closing time for all bids. This will be noon by daylight saving time on the Pacific Coast.
