

Either Hiss or Chambers Must Face Perjury Charge

At previous hearings, Chambers has accused Hiss of being a member of a Red underground in Washington in the 1930s. Hiss has denied it. Hiss also once testified publicly that he never knew Chambers. But since then, Hiss has told the committee in a closed door session that he did know Chambers under the name of Crosley.

Chambers Called
With Hiss under oath, Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, turned to Chambers, who was sitting behind one of the press tables.

"Mr. Chambers, will you stand up?" Stripling said.

Turning back to Hiss, the investigator inquired:

"Mr. Hiss, have you ever seen this individual who is standing?" "I have, sir," Hiss answered.

Date Disputed
Hiss said he knew Chambers as George Crosley in the winter of 1934 or 1935. He said he last saw Chambers in 1935.

A moment later, Chambers said he last saw Hiss in 1938.

That was after Thomas swore Chambers in as a witness and the two key men in the hearings stood facing each other.

Stripling: "Do you know this man?"
Chambers: "Yes."
Stripling: "Who is he?"
Chambers: "Alger Hiss."
Stripling: "When did you know him?"

Chambers: "In 1934."
Stripling: "When did you last see Mr. Hiss?"
Chambers: "In 1938."

Conflict Seen
So right at the start there was an element of conflict in the testimony of two men who had taken an oath to tell the truth.

In the caucus room of the old House Office Building, hundreds of spectators watched the drama unfold. Others trailed out in a string around the rotunda of the building, down a corridor and out into the street, waiting for a chance to get in.

Six of the nine members of the committee were on hand for this point of climax in the investigation.

Chambers has never said the Communist underground he talks about was engaged in spying.

With reference to that, Thomas said the issue presently before the committee is not "definitely involved in the two espionage rings the committee is investigating."

But Thomas said it deal with a Communist underground, and that the committee is determined to get at the truth of the conflicting statements of Chambers and Hiss.

After the confrontation, Hiss resumed his seat at the witness stand and Chambers sat down in front of the committee dais. The two men were about 25 to 30 feet apart.

NLRB Seeks Contempt Count

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The NLRB general counsel (P) Wednesday asked that the International Typographical Union be held in contempt of court for insisting on closed shop contracts.

The union is under a five-month injunction against negotiating such agreements, outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Act.

In a critical move against the ITU in its fight to keep the closed shop, the National Labor Relations Board's prosecuting agency charged the union's top officers with having disobeyed and disregarded the injunction.

The restraining order was issued March 27 by Judge Luther M. Swygert at Indianapolis. It was there that Robert N. Denham sent his formal petition that the union be cited for contempt.

Carroll Martin, an NLRB attorney, filed the petition a few minutes after the federal court clerk's office in Indianapolis opened Wednesday morning.

Kitchen Was Last Straw

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — Arthur W. Little, Jr., 43, publisher, movie actor and poloist, divorced Mrs. Letha Smith Little, 23, New York socialite this week on his testimony she wanted to go back East after he showed her an apartment equipped with a kitchen.

"She said, 'Buy me a one-way plane ticket home,' and she pulled out for New Hartford, Conn.," Little told Superior Judge Ben Rosenthal. He agreed to pay her $1200 in six months.

Actor Tyrone Power flew the couple to Las Vegas, Nev., when the two were married Aug. 14, 1946. They separated June 26, 1947.

DALLAS, Ore. — (AP) — Amos H. Sooter, 40-year-old farmer accused of shooting a neighbor from ambush on a country road, was indicted by the Polk County Grand Jury this week on a first degree murder charge.

Dwarf Stars Said Found

MINNEAPOLIS — (UP) — Discovery of nine new white dwarf stars — stars so dense a single cubic inch of them weighs as much as 2,000,000 pounds — has been announced by the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Willem J. Luyten, chairman of the university's astronomy department, said the discoveries were made by himself and Dr. David MacLeish of the Cordoba observatory in Argentina.

Finding of the nine raises to 100 the number of white dwarf stars discovered by scientists, Luyten said. Of the total, 61 have been found through the University of Minnesota working with Cordoba and the University of Arizona's Steward observatory.

Luyten said the first white dwarf star was seen through a telescope in 1862. In 1915, it was found to be white hot on its surface and only a little larger than the earth.

Yet despite its size, it was packed with as much matter as the sun, 35 times larger. Scientists concluded they were dealing with "matter in the raw," in which atoms were stripped of their protective covering of electrons and packed more closely together than in normal substances.

Luyten said scientists have been able to determine the weight of some of the stars because of discovery of 19 "double stars," which by mutual gravitation revolve around each other and so provide researchers with a base for computations.

Luyten said discovery and explanation of the dwarf stars "not only caused a minor revolution in astronomical and physical thinking but forged another and very important link in the chain of events that eventually led to the atomic bomb."

Atomic Workers Return to Jobs

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. — (UP) — An estimated 80 per cent of the 3300 Los Alamos construction and maintenance employees who walked off their jobs a week ago returned to work at the atomic energy project Wednesday.

Contractors made the estimate and added that some workers left the Los Alamos area when the walkout began and could not be reached immediately for notification that the work stoppage is over. They are expected to return to work later.

Carroll L. Tyler, Atomic Energy Commission manager at Los Alamos, said the commission "looks forward to renewed and continued activity on the part of the returned personnel to continue the national security work here."

Rep. Norblad Laments His Young Appearance

PORTLAND — (AP) — Rep. Walter Norblad (R-Ore) arrived here this week from Washington, home-bound to Astoria, and complained he looks too young.

People, complained Norblad, won't believe he is a Congressman. "The guards are usually alert

Harvest Slow As Days Cool

Cool weather has slowed bean crops in the Lane County area, although more pickers will be needed shortly for both beans and hops.

Oregon State Employment Service will need about 50 bean pickers without their own transportation, and about 50 with their own cars Monday. There was no acute shortage of bean pickers Wednesday, although jobs were available for any who cared to work.

About 65 hop pickers who have their own transportation will be needed Monday. Hop pickers are paid four cents a pound.

Workers in the area are in the midst of snapping corn, pulling beets and harvesting mint, although there is no serious shortage of help in those fields.

during the joint sessions of Congress," he said. "I am always stopped and forced to explain that I really am a Congressman. They at first pushed me aside as a gate crasher."

But the worst trouble, said Norblad, are the older congressmen who occasionally ask him to run errands in the belief he is a messenger boy.

a serious agricultural problem in 18 months," he said. "Oats are down about 30 per cent from 90 days ago. Corn is going down and wheat is promising to be a problem."

However, he agreed that the present parity system should be re-vamped with the farmers receiving fair and reasonable subsidies for crops.

Housewife Leader: But How Else?

Housewives who heard the senator's speech passed the blame for high prices back to Congress.

In a brief rebuttal speech, Mrs. Agnes McCloskey, head of the Housewives Assn., told the senator:

"We can no longer look to Congress for action in bringing down the cost of living. We realize we are working at the fringes, but we can't get at the basic issues. We can no longer afford to pay current prices, and therefore we do not buy it."

Eugene women voted last week to continue their boycott against meat prices, and Mrs. McCloskey said the senator's talk failed to convince them Tuesday night that there was anything to do except continue the boycott even longer.
