Strengthening the Foundations Of Our Community

By ERWIN JUILFS
Principal, Wilson Junior High School
Throughout America this past week the public schools have been observing American Education Week.

Parents were reminded again through the week's theme, "Strengthening the Foundations of Freedom," of the very important part the schools play in keeping our heritage secure.

But it must be understood that the schools do not feel that they alone maintain these foundations.

Other institutions in the community must assume their share of the responsibility. The family still plays the major role.

More and more of these obligations are falling upon the school and the church. The school and the church, through its most potent agency, the Sunday School, must in a large measure share the responsibility of maintaining the ideals upon which our democracy rests.

Any democracy to be truly successful bases its operation upon two very important tenets. Government of the people, for the people, and by the people presupposes first that the people are able to govern themselves, and secondly, that every citizen respects the rights of every other citizen.

The public schools can teach the machinery of democracy; they can imbue their students with the "feel" of democracy; but a basic belief in democracy goes much deeper than just knowing the facts about our government and our history.

The Sunday School then becomes in spirit an arm of the government.

It can do more than any other institution in teaching the brotherhood of man. It can go to the heart. It teaches unselfishness. It teaches that all men are equal and helps a man to love his neighbor.

It is altogether fitting that American Education Week and Eugene's Go-to-Sunday-School month should be simultaneously observed. The schools have been urging you to pay them a visit.

Take your whole family to Sunday School tomorrow!

On Starting A New Church

By ROBERT BURTNER
(Pastor of the new Trinity Methodist Church)
There are always two realities involved in starting a new church: the needs of the community, and the meaning of the church in terms of life.

On the one hand are the facts which make merely a church building a necessity such as the distance of the people from the city churches, the inadequate transportation, or the largeness of the city church.

A glance at the sociological needs of the northern suburban communities of Eugene indicates two things: there does not exist a need to raise a structure to foster irrelevant prejudices in the community; nor is there a need for just another social group.

The task of the church is not one of imposing upon other people the dogmas of past generations, but of providing for the people of its locality a place of expression for their worship of God.

Some fathers can get up before dawn to go fishing or hunting, but can't get up in time to take Jimmy and Jane to Sunday School.

Sunday School should be a pleasant experience in a child's week.

Why We Take Our Children to Sunday School

By WAYNE AND RUBY JOHNSON Springfield

We believe that regular Sunday School attendance is an important thing in the lives of children. It gives them the basis of the right way of living, it is a way of worship, it offers Christian fellowship and education, and it is one way to support your church, its program and activities.

Sunday School is the high-point of the week for our children. Our three-year-old, now enrolled in the beginners' department, enjoys it because it's fun. But, underlying the fun she has, the songs and stories are teaching her about the life of Jesus, the games are teaching her of the rights of others.

In the primary class our six-year-old is learning of other peoples in the world, other races and colors, and the part our church plays in their lives. He is hearing inspirational and guiding Bible stories. He is beginning to understand the worship service and he is forming friendships that are worthwhile.

In our Young Adults class we are given an opportunity we should hate to miss. We are really reading the Bible and discussing it and its importance to us. We have the opportunity to get the opinions of others on moral questions, opinions that mean much because they are from people of our own age and experience.

Yes, going to Sunday School is all important to our family.

Who's to Blame?

A discouraging commentary is to be found in the reasons for not attending Sunday School given by third and fourth graders in our local schools, in a recent random check.

"Well, you see we never have breakfast until about ten or eleven on Sunday. Mom says she ought to be able to sleep late one day of the week. We just get up any old time and go out to play."

"I have to wash the dishes before I can go to Sunday School," said Jean, "and I hardly ever get through in time."

"My mother says it's had enough to have to put up my hair five nights a week," was all the reason one little girl offered.

"Dad says that if we want to go any place Sunday afternoon I've got to clean the car Sunday morning," was Billy's statement.

"Well, a mile is too far to Sunday School," said Dick.

One little girl explained that it was impossible for her mother to get three children ready for Sunday School. "Trouble is," she said confidentially, "they have Sunday School too early."

Almost worse than the parents who are too careless and selfish to see that their children go to Sunday School are those who can not agree and therefore deprive the child of Sunday School training.

"Mother says I should go to her church, but Daddy says I've got to go to his Sunday School. So now I don't go to any, but when I get about 16 I can decide for myself."

Faithful to this case: "I go to Sunday School whenever my father is out of town," said a little fellow earnestly. But when he is home I have to stay home Sunday, because it might be my mother would need help."

Church Leaders Help Holt

War criminals are still being given prison sentences in Germany, and a few are still being hanged. About a dozen convicted of killing American airmen and inmates of concentration camps were hanged last week.

American public opinion was first shocked to attention at this turn in the tide of convictions when Army authorities commuted the sentence of the notorious Ise Koch of Buchenwald from life imprisonment to four years.

At first an obvious abuse of clemency seemed to have taken place, and public outcry rose swiftly and savagely. But after General Clay had disclosed the legal realities of the case against Mrs. Koch, protest died down.

Now it has become known that one factor contributing powerfully to recent stays and commutations has been the intervention of German bishops and pastors, both Protestant and Catholic, who have not only interested with American Army authorities but in some cases have let it be known that they possess documentary evidence of grossly perverted judicial proceedings used in obtaining convictions.

Winston Churchill told Parliament the other day that "the time has come to stop these trials" in Germany. We agree. No useful purpose is being served in continuing them.

On the contrary, they now do little more than bring into question the judicial fairness of the Allies and make the courtroom atrocities of the Nazi period seem, by comparison, to be not so bad after all.

The Christian and Government

By EARL MARTIN

Our country will become better or worse according to whether or not Christians do their duty as citizens. Ours is a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people," and it will cease to be "for the people" when it ceases to be "of the people" and "by the people."

As citizens of the kingdom of God, we have a distinct responsibility toward our government in making our government and the world better. The only way to have a better society is to have better men and women, and we will never succeed in making better men and women unless an increasing number of people seek themselves to be better.

Tribute to Sunday School Teachers

By J. EDGAR HOOVER

I should like to pay tribute to the thousands of loyal men and women who are serving unselfishly as teachers in our Sunday Schools. We in law enforcement look upon them as companions-in-arms in the fight against crime.

If our children are not all that we would have them be, is the fault all theirs? Have we parents done our truly best by them? Have we filled their growing minds with the wisdom of God, with spiritual and practical knowledge and truth as it is in Christ Jesus?

There are truths which we learn by loving, by giving, by suffering. We become Christian not by listening to the reasoning of a philosopher, but by the loving surrender of the heart to the highest and best in life.

There are truths which we learn by loving, by giving, by suffering. We become Christian not by listening to the reasoning of a philosopher, but by the loving surrender of the heart to the highest and best in life.

Parents who wish to train up their children in the way they should go, must go in the way in which they would have their children go.

Thought for the Sunday School teacher: Are we perhaps trying to make little children sit still when God made them so they wiggle?

SUNDAY SCHOOL is recognized at the First Baptist Church as of equal importance to the adult services. Here the church's pastor, Rev. Vance H. Webster, stands by the door to chat with some of his flock's "lamb," and Dr. Merv Rosell (with hat), visiting evangelist, meets the youngsters, too. Talking to Dr. Webster are teenagers Mary Lou Teague and LaVerne Williams. Directly in front of them, little Gay Maxwell and Tommy Teague. In the front row, Mary Lou Weal, Allen Erickson, Helen Williams, Tommy Baker, Beth Teague. (Register-Guard staff photo, Wiltshire engraving.)

"We Cannot Anymore Be Wrapped in Rags" EDITOR'S NOTE:—Recently the Register-Guard published a letter from Mrs. Evdokia Th. Ethimadiu, Village Sterna-Paranesti, Drama, Greece, to a friend in America, offering to make Grecian lace in return for discarded clothing.

She said sturdily, "I am really ashamed to ask you to help me, but on the other hand we cannot be anymore wrapped in rags."

A number of church people became interested in the letter. One churchwoman reports her findings in investigating at the U. S. customs office in Portland, as to rules and regulations for sending things duty-free to Greece. The rules are so framed as to oppose black-market operations.

According to the office, one can send up to 22 pounds in each parcel, to Greece, and used clothing must not exceed 17 pounds of the total. Furs may be included if they are 40% worn. Six pounds of new clothing may be included, either made up or in piece goods, but excluding silk, wool, fur, or nylon.

Woolen material, enough for an adult-sized suit (mark it as such) may be sent, and up to four pairs of used shoes, and one pair of new shoes, or leather for a pair, also six pounds of linen.

Foods may be sent if they don't exceed six pounds of each kind, per family. Up to 200 pounds of wheat flour per family may be sent.

If the gifts are intended for Christmas, they should be mailed by Nov. 15.
