IT COULD BE YOU

Don't find fault with the man who limps,
Or stumbles along life's road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears,
Or struggled beneath his load.

There might be tacks in his shoes that hurt,
Though hidden away from your view;
The burden he bears, if placed on your back,
Might cause you to stumble, too.

Don't sneer at the man who is down today
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame
That only the fallen can know.

You might be strong, but still, the blows
That were his, if dealt to you
In the selfsame way, at the selfsame time,
Might cause you to stagger, too.

Don't be too hard on the man who errs,
Or pelt him with word or stone
Unless you are sure—yes, doubly sure,
That you have no faults of your own.

You know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice
Should whisper softly to you,
As it did to him, when he went astray,
It might cause you to falter, too.

Therefore, it seems to us that there must be a midway place of punishment and of cleansing, where most of us enter to stay until we are fit to reside with Jesus in Heaven.

This the Apostles preached and practiced. This the early Fathers taught and wrote. This the Bible, it seems to us, in many places pre-supposes. Of this the catacombs give living testimony today.

...oes Your Child Pray?

The school nurse had just completed her health talk. There were several minutes for a brief review. "Tell me, Johnny," she said to a bright-eyed seven-year-old, "what is the first thing we do when we catch a cold?" Johnny rose to his feet and replied, "We pray to Jesus."

One thing the school nurse knew for sure — Johnny came from a Christian home. All the health talks in the world, good and beneficial as they may be, could never mean as much to Johnny as the faith which he had learned at his Christian mother's knee.

NAPOLEON GIVES HIS OPINION OF CHRIST

"I know men, and I tell you that Jesus Christ is not a man. Superficial minds see a resemblance between Christ and the founders of empires and other religions. That resemblance does not exist. There is between Christianity and whatever other religions the distance of infinity. We can say to the authors of every other religion, 'You are neither God nor the agent of Deity. You are but missionaries of falsehood, moulded from the same clay with the rest of mortals. You are made with all passions and vices inseparable from them. Your temples and your priests proclaim your origin.' Such will be the judgment, the cry of conscience, of whoever examines the gods and the temples of Paganism.

"It is not so with Christ. Everything in him astonishes me. His spirit overawes me, and his will confounds me. Between him and whoever else in the world there is no possible term of comparison. He is truly a being by himself. His ideas and sentiments, the truths which he announces, his manner of convincing are not explained either by human organization or by the nature of things.

"Can you conceive of Caesar as the eternal Emperor of the Roman senate, and from the depths of his mausoleum governing the empire, watching over the destinies of Rome? Such is the history of the invasion of the world by Christianity. Such is the power of the God of the Christians; and such is the perpetual miracle of the progress of the faith and the government of his church. His arm has for eighteen hundred years defended the church against the storms that have threatened to engulf it.

"Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, and myself, founded empires. But upon what did we rest the creations of our genius? Upon force. Jesus Christ alone founded his empire upon love; and at this hour millions of men would die for him!

"What proof of the divinity of Christ! With an empire so absolute, he has but one single end, the spiritual melioration of individuals, the purity of conscience, the union of that which is true, the holiness of the soul."
